Soviets Grab Point on Last Escape Road From Crimea

Another Village Falls Within 27 Miles Of Lower Dnieper; Key Rail Line Cut

London (Friday), Oct. 29 (AP).—Russian troops striking across the Nogaisk steppes at a 12-mile daily clip reached the final 60-mile lap of highway leading directly to the Germans' Crimean doorway at Perekop yesterday, and captured a village only 27 miles from Nikopol on the lower Dnieper River, Moscow announced today.

A Moscow communique recorded by the Soviet monitor here announced the capture of Nizhne-Saragozhy in the Russian race to seal off the Crimea and trap hundreds of thousands of enemy troops, and a midnight supplement said 3000 Germans were killed at that point. Two hundred and fifty enemy freight cars also were reported captured.

The village is in the heart of the steppes, controlling highways radiating to the Crimea and the Dnieper.

Column Swinging Down

The supplement also disclosed that another Russian column swinging down from Melitopol toward the northeastern entry into the Crimea was less than 60 miles from its objective.

In the northern part of the steppes a Russian column raced through the village of Balki, 27 miles from Nikopol, in the effort to hurl back the Germans into the clutches of other Soviet troops hammering their way forward inside the Dnieper bend.

Inside the bend itself the Russians told of a new Soviet development, a surge of 35 miles northwest of besieged Krivoi Rog to capture Marianovka, thus cutting the Znamenka-Nikolaev railway, an important north-south German line between the Dnieper and Bug Rivers.

The Russians crossed the Mokraya Sura River 20 miles southwest of captured Dnepropetrovsky in a push to link up with other Soviet units pounding the gates of Krivoi Rog, where the Russians said 800 more Germans were killed during the day.

1500 Germans Slain

Several villages were seized in the push below Dnepropetrovsk, 1500 Germans killed and hundreds of trucks and guns, mortars and other weapons were either captured or destroyed, the communique said.

The Soviet air force destroyed more than 300 trucks used by the Germans fleeing across the Nogaisk steppes, Moscow said, as Russia's southern desert army under Gen.

Argentina Jails 48 Labor Leaders

Montevideo, Uruguay, Oct. 28 (AP). Col. Juan Peron, new chief of Argentina's national labor department, sent 48 labor leaders last night to an internment camp at Neuquen and others may follow as a result of a packing plant walkout at Laplata, a traveler arriving here from Buenos Aires said today.

Packing plants of both Swift and Armour companies at Laplata were reported forced to suspend operations.

'Progress Satisfactory'

Yanks Gain Along Volturno, Aim at Strong Nazi Defenses

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—The British radio said tonight that Frank Gillard, BBC reporter, had reported that "Allied naval units have shelled Gaeta, the port 30 miles north of Naples.

"The bombardment was carried out in full daylight in conjunction with Allied aircraft," said the broadcast. "The targets were troop concentrations and transport columns. Gillard says much damage was also done to important roads in this area."

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 28 (AP).—Defying a steady rain and deadly concentrations of German artillery, Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American troops have driven the enemy from more important high ground along both sides of the upper Volturno River as they pushed doggedly toward the Nazis' powerful new mountain defense line.

"Our progress is satisfactory," an Allied communique announced today in reporting the capture of Riardo, 11 miles northwest of Capua, by Clark's troops, and the continued success of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army in throwing bridges across the Trigno River on the Adriatic end of the battle line.

(The Nazi-controlled Rome Radio said the Allied armies had passed to the offensive after several days of active reconnaissance thrusts and that "this is the bitterest fighting experienced on this front" since Salerno.)

The Germans have massed great concentrations of artillery and huge mortars to defend their mountain line running from Mondragone on the Tyrrhenian Sea to Vasto on the Adriatic. Entrenched in well camouflaged positions are innumerable 88-millimeter guns and 210-millimeter mortars, two of the enemy's most effective weapons, as well as many other types of field pieces, machine-guns and mortars.

Fighting of the last few days has demonstrated that Hitler's fortress Europe is not a bluff, but a mighty citadel which will require terrific and costly battering to reduce.

U. S. Airman Tells of Attack By Reich Mob After Bailing Out

By Staff Sergt. Benjamin Spring
(As Told to Bob Considine)
(Distributed by International News Service)

At a Hospital in Cheshire, England, Oct. 28.—Enemy fighters hit us hard even before we got to our target, which was Hamburg. They knocked out our No. 3 and No. 4 engines and flak ripped through the ship until it was full of holes.

We were on fire, 30,000 feet up, and fixing to abandon ship. I saw our ball turret gunner, Staff Sergt. Eugene Morton of Eldorado, Ark., climb up into the body of the plane and start for the radio room. And that's the last I remember for awhile. I got hit on the head with flak.

It cracked my skull in a couple of places.

I came to after a while. We had gone over the target and dropped our bombs. Nazi fighters were after us—but bad—because we had dropped about a mile behind our formation.

The tail gunner, Staff Sergt. R. C. Bridges of South Deerfield, Mass., walked up to where Gene and I were standing. Swanson, our right waist gunner—I was left waist—had been hit in the stomach, but was standing near the door.

Bridges' hands were broken and cut by flak and 20 mm. shells, but he helped Swanson out. Bridges had decided to go down with the ship and with those who couldn't move enough to get out. But when he saw I had revived, he went out the door.

I was getting out my waist-gun

An Associated Press dispatch from Cheshire, England, quoted one of the released Americans as saying that they would have died if it had not been for the Red Cross packages of food that arrived regularly, adding that otherwise "we would have had spuds, spuds and more spuds and something that they call soup, but which was water."

Germans Using 'Silver Fire' In New Move to Combat Raids

By John G. Norris

The Army reported yesterday that the Germans, in their frantic efforts to block the Allied aerial offensive on the Reich, had introduced another secret weapon against our bombers.

Termed "silver fire," the new invention consists of massed clusters of white discs, probably of phosphorus, which are made to fall in front of our bomber formations. One cluster struck an American Flying Fortress, when the weapon was first put into use on a recent raid and the burning material set the plane afire. It later exploded.

This brief decription of "silver fire" was given yesterday by the War Department in the first official account released about the new German weapons. It did not state whether burning discs are shot from antiaircraft guns on the ground to burst and fall in the path of the bombers like Fourth of July fireworks or are dropped from above by planes.

Discussing the much talked about Nazi rocket gun, the War Department made it plain that the weapon could put a serious crimp in our bombing offensive against Europe if it could be fired with the same accuracy as conventional guns. So far, however, any such accuracy has not been achieved, it was stated.

At the same time, Secretary of War Simson made public some additional data on Allied plane losses in the raids on Germany. He stated that since United States Army Eighth Air Force began operations from Britain in July,

Churchill's Belief

Oblong Parliament Should Form Shape of Things to Come

London, Oct. 28 (AP).—The bombshattered House of Parliament should be rebuilt with its ancient oblong shape, said Prime Minister Churchill today, because a semicircular chamber "appeals to political theorists and enables every group to move around to the center, adopting various shades of pink as the weather changes."

Proposing to Commons that it name a committee to consider plans for rebuilding, Churchill remarked, "We shape our buildings and afterwards our buildings shape us."

He suggested the reconstruction use as much of the old foundations and shattered walls as possible.

Calling the oblong shape of the chamber "a very potent factor of our political life," Churchill said.

"I'm a supporter of the party system, having seen many ardent parliaments destroyed by a group system. The party system is much favored by an oblong chamber. It is easy enough to move through those insensible graduations from left to right but the act of crossing the floor is one which requires serious consideration. Logic is a poor guide compared to custom.

"Logic, which created in so many countries the semicircular assemblies which give every member not only a seat but often a desk with a lid to bang, has proved fatal to parliamentary government.

"Commons should not be big enough to contain all the members at once," without overcrowding, for its hold on the electorate depends to "no small extent upon its episodes, even its scenes and rows which everyone will agree are better conducted in close quarters. One of our war aims is a parliament which will be a strong flexible instrument free for debate. For this purpose a sense of intimacy is indispensable. Harangues from the rostrum would be a bad substitute for our conversational style."

Navy Seizes Islands Near Bougainville

Halsey's Forces Thrust Closer To Last Solomons Bases of Japs

By Olen Clements

Allied Headquarters, Southwest Pacific (Friday), Oct. 29 (AP).—Amphibious forces of Admiral William F. Halsey, thrusting toward Japan's last Solomons holdings in front of Rabaul, achieved surprise landings at dawn Wednesday in the Treasury Islands in the face of mortar fire, and chased the defenders into the hills.

At South Pacific headquarters of Admiral Halsey, a spokesman said today the landings, supported by shells of a naval task force, were accomplished on two islands in that group 30 miles south of Bougainville and its bombed-out airfields.

Closing in on Jap Forces

The islands occupied were Mono and Stirling. Mono, 7 miles across, is the larger of the two.

The move apparently is part of a plan to close in on substantial Japanese forces now confined largely on Bougainville.

Nearby are the Shortland Islands, whose Ballale fighter strip was unable to put planes in the air to oppose the new move because American bombings have rendered it inoperative.

These islands are separated by Bougainville Strait from the mainland of Bougainville with its bomb-battered airfields of Kahili and Kara, also in no condition to send supporting planes to the scene. Five hundred tons of bombs have left these fields useless since Saturday.

Slight Opposition Met

Headquarters characterized the opposition to the landings as "minor."

It was the first offensive move in that sector since the last Japanese were routed in the first week of October from the central Solomons, including Vella Lavella, 45 miles southeast of Mono.

There are no reports of any enemy installations on Mono and it is unlikely any air strip is there.

The amphibious operation was under direct command of Rear Admiral Theodore S. Wilkinson of Rosslyn, Va.

This new move, possibly indicating a drive to invest the remainder of the Solomons and lay bare the approaches to Rabaul, first was disclosed by Radio Tokyo, which admitted the landing, but made the unconfirmed claim that Japanese aircraft had sunk an Allied warship.

Prior to the landing, Allied planes in four days of terrific bombardment had knocked out the enemy Bougainville airfields of Kahili and Kara, and the Ballale strip in the Shortlands.

Continuing to add to Japan's disastrous air losses, Airacobras downed six enemy bombers and six fighters in the Finschhafen, New Guinea, area.

Oakes Trial Print Admitted; Cadet Confesses Slaying Wife

Lonergan Talks In N. Y. Case When Alibi Breaks Down

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—New York's greatest murder thriller in recent years hit a climax tonight when authorities said Wayne Lonergan suddenly had confessed that he slew his heiress wife, Patricia, 22, because she refused to let him see their baby.

District Attorney Frank S. Hogan, declaring Lonergan had signed a complete statement admitting the crime, said the 26-year-old Royal Canadian Air Force cadet would be charged with homicide.

Police added that Lonergan told a story of going to his wife's lavish Beekman Hill apartment last Sunday morning primarily to see the 1½-year-old child, Wayne William Lonergan, and that his wife's objections led to a quarrel.

Immediately after Hogan's announcement, police began dragging the East River near 79th st., where Hogan said the cadet had admitted throwing his uniform. Lonergan earlier had said it was stolen by a soldier he had befriended Sunday morning.

The police said Lonergan's statement of events at the murder scene was as follows:

He knocked at the door, his wife admitted him, and he said:

"I understand you are the belle of El Morocco (one of New York's swankiest night clubs)."

"Your behavior hasn't been so

Jury to Decide on Authenticity of Police Evidence

Nassau, Bahamas, Oct. 28 (AP).—A fingerprint went into the records against Alfred de Marigny today, but his attorneys sought to soften the impact on the jury trying him for the murder of Sir Harry Oakes by raising two doubts about the evidence.

Hoarse and excited, Chief Defense Council Godfrey S. Higgs shouted questions in the Bahamas Supreme Court room until he had brought out that no one can point to the exact spot on a bedscreen from which the disputed print was taken.

Then he turned upon Capt. James O. Barker to question the qualifications of the American detective who introduced the fingerprint—the Crown's principal evidence in an effort to prove that De Marigny beat and burned his father-in-law to death last July.

The usually impassive de Marigny, somewhat flushed as the result of a cold, grimaced when Chief Justice Sir Oscar Bedford Daly ruled that the print was admissible. Then he shrugged his shoulders, settled back on his bench in the prisoner's cage, and smiled.

After pondering the question overnight, Sir Oscar held that it was up to the jury to decide whether the fingerprint exhibited by Barker actually was lifted from

Fund Drive Extended Till All Are Asked

Was to Have Closed Last Night; District $1,648,744 Short Of $4,800,000 Goal

Washington's Community War Fund Drive, scheduled to close today, was extended last night by Coleman Jennings, campaign chairman, "until every potential giver is reached."

"The genuine enthusiasm found in meeting after meeting cannot be lost," Jennings declared in extending the drive that was $1,648,000 short of its goal of $4,800,000 last night.

In terms of actual dollars, the shortage could be measured, but in terms of the needs of the men and women in the armed forces, of fighting Allies, and of the home front destitute, that cannot be met unless the drive goes over the top, the shortage could not even be estimated.

Depending on the success of the campaign are 145 local Community Chest and welfare agencies, local and national USO and war hospitality organizations, and the United Nations War Relief Societies.

What Shortage Means

What a shortage of funds would mean to one of the local charitable organizations was summarized yesterday by Mrs. Margaret Gardner, superintendent of the Christ Child Fresh Air Farm for convalescent children, which is scheduled to receive $31,873 of Community War funds.

"It would force us to limit the number of children that we care for each year. We cannot curtail the benefits that they receive."

The farm offers care for boys and girls from 6 to 12 who are recovering from serious illnesses, accidents or who are underweight and anemic. Children are admitted whose home conditions are such that they cannot get proper care and rest during convalescence. Most are from underprivileged neighborhoods. Entirely dependent on community war funds, the farm provides clothing and special diets.

"We might have to become beggars," Mrs. Gardner added.

Rain No Barrier

Despite the heavy rains of the past several days, fund headquarters stated that Metropolitan division workers had continued to solicit funds from door to door, and that members of advanced gifts division, first to get started on the campaign, have been making last-minute efforts to collect funds from all prospects.

Yesterday Jennings congratulated members of the Metropolitan division on their present average of $18 per pledge, but reminded them that they should solicit funds only in their assigned neighborhood and not to duplicate the efforts of other workers.

In the meantime, Jennings called

Shadowy Figures Emerge

Mysterious Capitol Influences Charged at Brewster Hearing

By Mary Spargo

Charges of mysterious Washington influences, descriptions of international intrigues, and revelations of high-powered corporation lobbying combined to make yesterday's testimony in the investigation of the Brewster Aeronautical Corp. by the House Naval Affairs subcommittee the most sensational to date.

An official Government memorandum placed in the record by Representative Grant (Republican) of Indiana, said:

"There is convincing proof that mysterious influences inside and outside the company are at work, which reach into the upper Washington officialdom, both on Capitol Hill and into the Bureau of Aeronautics of the Navy. This factor has produced the so-called inefficient management which has continued throughout successive reorganizations."

Grant did not identify the source of the memorandum, other than as from a Government agency, but The Post learned last night that the agency is one whose investigations are usually taken as the most authoritative obtainable.

Grant's revelations directly followed charges against the Navy Department suave presented by F. William Zelcer, large Brewster stockholder, who was former president of the now defunct Brewster Export Co., which secured foreign contracts for the airplane company.

Zelcer, former aviation commissioner of New York City, former proprietor of a "famous speakeasy" in New York during prohibition, and present executive vice president of the American Armament Corp., an international munitions company in which T. J. and A. J. Miranda, brothers, are associated, came to the hearing flanked by a counsel and public relations experts.

His charges against the Navy Department were equaled only by charges made against him and his associates in certain other official reports from which Grant read, and on which the Indiana Congressman declared the Department of Justice should have acted.

Zelcer claimed that up to the time the Navy seized the plants and installed what he termed inefficient managements Brewster had been producing satisfactorily. He charg-

Sales Tax Plan Sidetracked By Committee

Way Cleared for Report

By Edward Ryan

A proposed 10 per cent retail sales tax was sidetracked by a vote of 16 to 8 in the Ways and Means Committee yesterday, and Representative Robertson (Democrat) of Virginia said he would not seek to revive the plan on the House floor.

Defeat of the sales tax plan cleared the way for early committee approval of a tax bill netting about two billion dollars of new revenue, compared with Treasury Secretary Morgenthau's 10.5 billion dollar demand, and revising the renegotiation statute.

The committee is slated to hear Federal Reserve Chairman Eccles and Budget Director Smith discuss the Government's spending program today in executive session. A subcommittee headed by Representative Disney (Democrat) of Oklahoma is expected to complete its draft of renegotiation changes next week.

Roll Call Vote Secret

Obviously on guard against political repercussions of their sales tax vote, Ways and Means members bound themselves to strict secrecy on how individuals balloted.

Defeat of the sales tax represented the first clear-cut victory for the Administration since work on the tax bill started. Administration officials have consistently opposed a retail sales levy as "unfair" and "inflationary" and leaders had conceded that Congress would not approve such a measure as long as the Administration stand was unchanged.

Representative Robertson's proposal was modified to short-circuit

Pot Bubbles

By Robert C. Albright

The bi-partisan crusade to strengthen the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's cautious foreign policy declaration gathered strength yesterday as Senator Warren R. Austin (Republican) of Vermont joined the Senate's outnumbered "B-2 H-2" band.

Austin, a leading GOP advocate of international collaboration and strong steps to avert aggression before Pearl Harbor, told newsmen he would support the Ball-Burton-Hatch-Hill amendment offered by Senator Claude Pepper (Democrat) of Florida to the Connally resolution.

"Judicial Tribunal" Urged

Senator Austin will ask the "B-2 H-2" Senators to make their own amendment even more explicit by specifically providing for a judicial tribunal with authority to settle international disputes peacefully. But Austin told reporters he will support the Pepper amendment whether his suggestion is accepted or not because it is "clearer and more definite" than the compromise proposals.

"Whether we succeed in changing the Connally resolution or not, I think we should make the effort to keep the record straight," said Austin. "Big problems are ahead of us and I think the Senate should do all that it can to clarify our foreign policy position. Neither resolution is as definite in this respect as I would like."

Austin's decision brought the known strength of the Pepper amendment to 16 Senators. Senate

Trouble Ahead

By Ben W. Gilbert

The War Labor Board certified the spreading coal walkouts to the White House at 7:30 p. m. yesterday, asking President Roosevelt to enforce the board's decision turning down the Illinois coal pact to protect the national wage stabilization program.

Earlier, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, hinted broadly that the UMW policy committee at a meeting Monday would reject the WLB order offering the miners a counterproposal, trimming the suggested Illinois rates by 37½ cents per day. In a telegram to UMW district presidents, Lewis interpreted the board's plan as "imposing a wage reduction on the mine workers of the Nation amounting to 4½ cents per hour."

Some board officials said the Lewis telegram was tantamount to a signal for a fourth general coal strike, starting midnight Sunday when the "truce" set last June at the end of the third general coal strike this year expires.

A partial survey of the coal fields by WLB officials showed 47,000 miners idle. The Associated Press sent in reports from at least 10 States indicating that more than 60,000 were on strike—an increase of at least 14,000 over the number reported idle Wednesday.

Public Member Wayne L. Morse in his capacity as compliance officer of WLB carried the board's report to the White House last night. It was assumed that the board

Anthracite Miners Get 32-Cent Raise

With the customary dissent by labor members, the Labor Board yesterday applied the Little Steel yardstick to the anthracite wage case and awarded a daily wage increase of 32.2 cents to 36,000 Pennsylvania hard coal miners.

No provision was made for "portal-to-portal" pay, but the WLB awarded payment for tools and cap lamps and increased vacations in accordance with the precedent established in the bituminous coal case. The operators had offered a 64 cents a day increase, including the miner adjustments worth 20 to 25 cents a day, but the miners insisted on receiving at least $1.30 a day of an original $2 a day demand.

Rumor of Attack On Mexican Coast Still Unconfirmed

Mexico City, Oct. 28 (AP).—A telegram sent to Mexico City by the Mayor of Tapachula, on the Mexico-Guatemalan border, advising that shots had been heard there, caused a rumor here tonight that foreign planes and a warship had attacked the western coast of Mexico, but there was no confirmation.

Manuel Tello, executive clerk at the ministry of foreign relations, said:

'We know absolutely nothing, absolutely nothing about such an incident."

The foreign office said a complaint that Guatemalan soldiers crossed into Mexican territory and fired on a Mexican official had been made to Guatemala. It was unofficially reported Guatemala held that the border was crossed by accident.

War Sidelights

Nazis Allay Pope's Fears For Holy City

Bern, Switzerland, Oct. 28 (AP).—A report that Pope Pius XII has sent notes to all belligerents, asking that Rome be considered a holy city and spared from fighting, was printed today in the Neue Zuercher Zeitung of Zurich.

In a Rome dispatch the newspaper said it was reported the Germans have not answered, but that they had given assurances tending to allay the fears of the Vatican for the possible fate of Rome.

Goebbels on Bombings

London, Oct. 28 (AP).—Paul Joseph Goebbels, German propaganda minister, told the German people today that Russia was "the real danger of this war," but that as far as the home front was concerned Allied bombings "represent the lion's share of our troubles."

He asserted that while Germany had met setbacks and had been forced to make retreats "there are no signs of military or moral collapse." Goebbels made the statements in a Das Reich article quoted by the Berlin radio.

Jews Reported Slain

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—The Polish Telegraph Agency reported today that the Jewish population of Lwow, one of Poland's largest cities, had been annihilated by the Germans.

The agency said the ghetto was destroyed, and that fleeing Jews were slain in the streets. The remaining Jews, except for 4000 who were sent to the Janow concentration camp, were put to death in gas chambers, the agency asserted.

An underground Polish paper, the agency said, estimated there were 35,000 Jews in Lwow at the beginning of this year.

King's Men, Partisans Accuse Each Other Of Treachery

By Richard G. Massock

London, Oct. 28 (AP).—The guerillas of the Royal Yugoslav Government and the Partisans of Gen. Josip Broz (Drug Tito) bandied charges of treachery and treason today in a sharpening of internecine strife in Yugoslavia while German motorized and armored troops smashed into the hilly strongholds in an apparent effort to wipe out both their forces.

The Bari radio, controlled by Italy's Marshal Pietro Badoglio, reported a broadcast by the Yugoslav Freedom Station declaring that the first court-martial held by the red-starred Partisans of Broz had sentenced 17 persons to death on charges of collaboration with the Germans. They were executed after a jury of distinguished judges had convicted them, the broadcast said, adding that each had been provided a lawyer for his defense.

The Partisan communique, broadcast from the Free Yugoslavia Radio, at the same time announced that the "well-known Montenegrin Quisling and former Yugoslav General Djukanovic and 30 officers," who were fighting on the German side, were captured in an action in Montenegro. Twenty-one others, including the "well-known Montenegrin traitor Stanistau," were killed in the skirmish, the communique said.

Peter's Faction Stirred

Meanwhile, the information bureau of King Peter's government in Cairo issued a statement which expressed regret at the "unfortunate schism" between the two patriot forces and for the first time charged the Partisans with "treachery," citing dispatches from Gen. Draja Mihailovic, government field commander.

The statement said Mihailovic's forces had suffered "inevitable sacrifices fighting the communal battle of the United Nations" and that the Partisans too "have been fighting bravely against the oppressor," but it charged the Partisans with engaging in a systematic campaign of vilification of Mihailovic in their accusations of treason and collaboration with the Germans.

Significantly, both this statement and the Partisan communique were publicized by the British in Cairo, who said they had convincing reports that there were no grounds for the Partisan accusations and lacked confirmation on the charges of Partisan treachery.

The Partisan communique indicated the Germans were waging two large-scale offensives, one in Bosnia in the north and the other in Montenegro in the south near the Albanian border.

Attacks Claimed Repulsed

Heavy attacks against liberated territory were repelled in both places, the communique said.

In the Aegean theater of the Balkan front, the Paris radio reported without Allied confirmation that Leros in the Dodecanese and Samos to the north had been reoccupied by German forces.

The Middle East Air Force, again active over the Aegean, caught Germans disembarking from a big Junkers -52 air transport at Cos, an indication the enemy was reinforcing the Dodecanese air base, and again bombed Antimacchia Airfield there. The harbor at Porto Maltesana on Stampalia in the Dodecanese and the barracks on Gavdos Island south of Crete also were bombed. The Cos attack was made at such point-blank range that one German officer "with a row of medals and ribbons" was seen to be hit squarely by a cannon shell.

German Company Linked to U.S. Firm In Antitrust Case

The Justice Department announced yesterday the filing of a civil complaint at Trenton, N. J., charging Merck & Co., Inc., of Rahway, N. J., described as the largest producer of pharmaceutical chemicals in this country, and E. Merck Chemical Works, Darmstadt, Germany, with maintaining a cartel agreement in violation of the antitrust laws.

The suit, filed in Federal Court, named as defendants Merck & Co., George W. Merck, president, and Powers - Weightman - Rosengarten Corp., a Merck subsidiary, with offices at Rahway.

The German company and three of its members, including Dr. Karl Merck, were named as coconspirators.

window when I saw Gene coming. He got out, too.

I didn't realize until I opened my 'chute—it was my first jump—that I also had been hit in the leg and across the shoulders by machine-gun bullets, probably when I was unconscious from the knocks on the head.

The 'chute opened with a terrific jerk and pulled all my back muscles, but I didn't notice that too much. I was watching a Messerschmitt-109 that was following me down, circling. But all the guy did was wave. I waved back.

I came down in a soft field a few feet from some barbed wire. I'd lost my shoes somewhere. The ground sure felt nice and soft on my feet. But I wasn't there long.

Three German soldiers stepped through the barbed wire, stood over me and made motions for me to gather up my 'chute. But by that time I didn't care what the hell happened to me, so I cussed them.

I passed out when they began cutting off my flying clothes, and was out for two days. After that they put me in a room downstairs. I was off my nut for four more days.

There was a German lieutenant who tried to help me—a real nice guy who spoke English.

Things "Get Tough"

When I got a little better, they took me to a railroad station. After picking up five American officers at the officers' club, they put us in boxcars for the ride to Luneburg. The ride wasn't so bad, but things got tough at Luneburg.

There was a guy at the station talking over one of those loudspeaker systems. He was really giving it to us. He kept telling the people we were American airmen who had been shot down after bombing Hamburg, and pretty soon a crowd began collecting around us.

Our guards moved us down to the end of the platform, but the crowd followed us. Some trains began to arrive, bringing refugees from Hamburg, and some of them joined the mob. It was getting wilder and wilder, and finally they started to curse us.

The women were the worst. You never heard such language—a lot of it American. One woman broke through the guards and spat at us. Another threw hot coffee over us.

The guy on the loudspeaker kept saying to us:

"If you want anything to eat, come to Hamburg."

That was when the soldiers and a few Hitler youth boys took charge of us. They got us out through the back end of the station. We went across some backyards and finally made it to the police station.

Crowd Hurls Rocks

The crowd followed, throwing a rock every now and then. They called the German soldiers "American Lovers."

A couple of people in the mob pulled guns, but the German soldiers—although they had only peashooters—pulled theirs, too, and told us if any shooting started they would see we got guns to defend ourselves with.

But there wasn't any shooting. We stayed in the police station for three hours. They wouldn't let us sit down or lean on the railings. A lieutenant tried to lean on a railing and a German officer slapped his hands away.

Finally they took us from the police station and locked us up in a room at the airdrome. Then they took me to Overmassfeld Hospital.

I guess I would have kicked off if it hadn't been for an English doctor they named Major Henderson. The Germans told me he was one of the five or six best brain surgeons in the world, and I don't doubt it.

The Germans had the greatest respect for him. You see, a little German girl near the hospital had a very bad fracture and was brought to this place. The German doctors hesitated to operate, and turned her over to the Englishman. He asked for the proper tools, went to work and saved her life.

He saved mine, too.

Army Officer Held By FBI in $50,000 Bribery Attempt

By the Associated Press

The Federal Bureau of Investigation announced yesterday the arrest in New York of Lieut. Col. Edward Gordon, jr., 52, on a bribery charge alleging he attempted to collect $50,000 from a shipbuilding company.

Director J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI said Gordon, contracting officer for the Army Transport Corps in the New York City area, allegedly attempted to collect the money from the Wheeler Shipbuilding Corp., at Whitestone, Long Island, N. Y., in connection with a contract for construction of war vessels.

"Officials of the Wheeler Corp., reported the proposal for the bribe and cooperated fully with the FBI in its investigation," Hoover said. "Colonel Gordon was arrested after $17,500 in identified currency was passed to him as a down payment on the bribe."

Nazis Suspend Safe Conduct Rule For Swedish Ships

Stockholm, Oct. 28 (AP).—Germany told neutral Sweden today that "military dispositions in the Skagerrak" necessitated a halt of Swedish "safe conduct" ship traffic between Goeteborg, Sweden, and the Americas.

(This traffic normally consisted of about five steamers a month plying chiefly to South America. The vessels brought Sweden a sizable portion of her foodstuffs, oils, fats, wool and other needed materials.)

Berlin's notice came in a period of tension between Sweden and Germany which reached a new crisis last week when a German fighter shot down a Swedish passenger plane.

The Swedish press carried a report saying Nazi troops had established a tight blockade along much of the Norwegian-Swedish border.

won last weekend, Montgomery's forces braved what was officially termed "extremely accurate" German artillery fire. The enemy's cannon fire also was intense farther inland, where Eighth Army units drove into the town of Torella Del Sannio, nine miles northwest of Campobasso, and Mafalda, seven miles northwest of Montecilfone.

In small scale but extremely bitter fighting, other Eighth Army troops advanced a mile and a half to capture Castelmauro, six miles southwest of Palata. An Allied communique said: "Troops of the Eighth Army are fighting their way forward through difficult country. Enemy positions, strongly held, cover all main approaches and have to be dealt with in detail."

Air operations were greatly restricted yesterday by the weather, though Allied fighters and fighter-bombers attacked enemy gun positions at Gaeta and patrols were flown over the battle areas. No planes were lost.

It was announced officially that antiaircraft gunners of the Fifth Army had destroyed or damaged 131 German planes since the landing at Salerno, with 48 definitely shot down.

The increasing strength of the Nazis' rearguard action is ideally adapted to the rugged terrain, where a continuous series of ridges and mountains prevent any swift exploitation of gains. Faced with the urgent necessity of a victory to bolster home morale, it is not impossible that the Germans will open a strong and desperate counter-offensive in Italy, as they did in France in the spring of 1918.

New Eisenhower Move Indicated

Stockholm, Oct. 28 (AP).—The correspondent of the Svenska Dagbladet said today that reports reaching Switzerland indicated Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was planning new amphibious operations against central Italy.

A large concentration of Allied transport, supply and warships was reported off the west coast of Italy.

Reds Reach Last Nazi Escape Route

Feodor Tolbukhin swarmed westward toward a junction with the Red armies battling inside the Dnieper bend.

Nizhne-Saragozhy, 46 miles west of Melitopol and only 44 miles from Kakovka on the Dnieper, was the big prize of the southern sweep, however. It controls the final road leading 60 miles southwestward to Perekop, through which the Germans must flee if they abandon the Crimea.

Moscow dispatches said the disorganized German flight across the indefensible desert above the Crimea, under the impact of General Tolbukhin's tank and motorized infantry armadas, had reached the dimensions of a rout.

Inside the Dnieper River elbow the Russians tightened their noose on Krivoi Rog, which the Germans were fighting desperately to hold. This big industrial center is vital to German plans to withdraw safely southward toward the lower Bug River, probably the next major German defense line now that the Dnieper has been shattered.

The Russian swing to the west and northwest of Krivoi Rog disclosed another Soviet attempt to cut all German communication lines in the heart of the Dnieper elbow, and to bag even more German troops in lower Russia. The number of enemy troops has been estimated at one million and Berlin broadcasts have acknowledged their peril.

Besides capturing Marianovka, which is only 30 miles southwest of the big city of Kirovo, the Russians said their troops also toppled Spasovo, 40 miles northwest of Krivoi Rog, in their steady carving-up of the enemy's formations.

Six hundred miles to the north a fresh Russian drive into upper White Russia gained from three to five miles and captured more than 80 villages, including Surash, only 25 miles northwest of Vitebsk, a major Russian goal since the fall of Smolensk.

Army Scouts in Italy Ride Horses, Mules

With the Fifth Army in Italy, Oct. 28 (AP).—American doughboys have resorted to horses and mules for reconnaissance forays through the rugged country in which fighting now is raging.

The mounted units were formed in Sicily after that island's conquest.

Cost of Living Rises After 3-Month Drop

Butter Going Up

Points on 42 Nonbeef Cuts To Be Pared

By Christine Sadler

Ration values of beef and creamery butter will remain the same during November as they are this month, but 42 pork, veal, lamb and mutton cuts will be reduced by one or two points per pound, the Office of Price Administration announced last night.

The only meat to show an increase will be ready-to-eat ham, which will go up one point. Consumers were warned by OPA, however, that the civilian supply of beef during the month may show a decreas eof about 5 per cent due to continued heavy military buying.

Margarine will advance to the six-point class, going up two places. Country and "process" butter also will rise two points. Consumer use of margarine must be kept at present levels, OPA said, since as much is now being manufactured as the supply of vegetable oil will permit.

Shortening will go up one point a pound, as will also both salad and cooking oils.

Reflecting the desire of the Food Distribution Administration to curtail the "disproportionate" amount of milk and cream going into the manufacture of creamed cheeses, the following varieties will advance two points in value: Cream, cream spread, creamed cottage and Neufchatel.

Offsetting the prospective beef supply decline, an increase of more than 15 per cent in civilian supplies of pork is anticipated for November, due mainly to the peak production period. Lamb and veal supplies have been running above estimates, OPA said, and "this is expected to continue" during next month.

In answer to repeated queries concerning 16-point butter, OPA said: "A reduction in the point value of butter at the present time would not increase supplies, but would have the effect of depriving many persons of their share of the limited supply."

Clothing Prices Lead Advance, Says Secretary Perkins

After declining for three straight months, the cost-of-living index shot up four-tenths of a per cent from August 15 to September 15 with prices of retail clothing leading the break through the stabilization dam, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins reported yesterday.

Food prices rose one-tenth of a per cent to help bring the index 5 per cent above the level of September last year and 22½ per cent above the base date for the "Little Steel" formula date of January 1941.

Growing shortages of important cost-of-living items in clothing and housefurnishings lines were noted in the Bureau of Labor Statistics report, which said continued unavailability of lowered priced clothing resulted in substantial advances during the month.

Women's Wear Goes Up

"Increases were most marked for women's wear, with some of the new fall lines of coats up by as much as 60 per cent in several cities," Secretary Perkins said, and an "acute shortage of children's shoes" was noted.

The dollar haircut of World War I has again made its appearance in some cities, the Secretary said, with 75 cents for a haircut the usual charge in many cities, in comparison to 50 cents or less in prewar days.

Rises in food costs were due principally to higher prices for fish and eggs. Vegetable prices went down 2 per cent as "seasonal declines continued in most parts of the country for potatoes, sweet potatoes, onions, apples and spinach." Prices for lettuce, green beans and carrots advanced sharply, as did orange prices.

Many Food Shortages

Reports of food shortages throughout the country were most widespread for oranges, butter, chickens, cornmeal, apples and spinach.

Rents were slightly higher in 15 out of 34 cities in the index. Reports of acute housing shortage and lack of desirable dwellings "continued from practically all cities and additional charges for facilities and services formerly included in the rent were common."

The index now stands at 123.7 per cent of the average from 1935-39. After its rise was checked in May, it declined 1.5 per cent during the mid-summer months. OPA has promised to run its level back to that of September, 1942—or 5 per cent.

Ceilings Ordered

Price ceilings have been placed on 13 fresh vegetables since the period covered in this index, foretelling price decreases that may not be reflected in the index before November.

In addition, a transportation subsidy has been instituted to bring the price of apples to a lower national level, and the War Food Administration this week announced a subsidy payment of 4½ cents a pound to manufacturers of peanut butter to enable the retail price of the food to be rolled back from the July level of 33.1 cents a pound to about 26.5 cents.

Unless Congress kills the subsidy plan, OPA officials have declared, ways of controlling food costs are now in sight. Doing something about the disappearance of low-priced lines of furnishings and clothing, and bringing the cost of haircuts under control, present new problems of maybe equal difficulty, they admitted yesterday.

Meat, Dairy Product, Egg Prices Up Here

Although the overall food price index for Washington from August 15 to September 15 showed no change, the retail cost of meat went up one-half of a per cent, dairy products one-tenth of a per cent, and eggs six and six-tenths per cent.

Fruit and vegetable prices declined two per cent while sugars, sweets and beverages went down two-tenths of a per cent.

Retail food costs here are now 47.2 per cent above the level of August, 1939, and 8.1 per cent above September, 1942.

Carriers, Rail Unions Combine In Support of Wage Increase

Both carriers and nonoperating railroad unions yesterday joined in asking a special emergency board to advise the President to put the 8 cents an hour wage agreement signed last August into effect, but for different reasons.

Donald C. Richberg, attorney for 1,097,000 nonoperating workers, flatly challenged the legal authority of the Government to block execution of the agreement and added that Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson violated the Railway Labor Act when he set aside an earlier award of an 8 cents an hour wage increase.

Richberg also challenged the authority of the special emergency board hearing his plea, declaring that it was appointed outside the Railway Labor Act, and refused to argue the merits of the wage dispute before it.

Jacob Aronson, vice president of the New York Central Railroad, speaking for the carriers, suggested that the 8 cents an hour boost was merited to compensate for the wage disparity created by the failure to pay railroad workers premium rates for more than 40 hours work a week, while manufacturing workers receive considerable overtime.

Aronson's move was shrewdly calculated to destroy another union wage demand—temporarily being held in abeyance—a demand for extension of the overtime provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act to railroad workers.

Transportation Director Joseph B. Eastman told the board that the railroads suffered from severe manpower problems, partly a result of a drift of rail workers to higher-paying munitions jobs. He predicted, however, that the unions would not strike, even though strike ballots returnable November 25 are already being distributed.

Moving with unprecedented speed, the board adjourned after the one-day hearing to prepare its report to the President.

The case before the board is that of 15 nonoperating unions—the boilermakers, machinists and other railroad employes not engaged in operating trains—who for more than a year have sought 20 cents an hour wage increase.

Richberg argued to the board that the agreement with the railroads for an 8-cent increase "is a valid and binding contract which is legally etnforceable regardless of any action or nonaction of approval or disapproval by any governmental authority."

Asked why the railroads had not put the increase into effect, Richberg said he assumed they believed the Government's approval was necessary.

"You haven't even asked us to put the contract into effect," Aronson broke in. "You know perfectly wel we need the approval of the stabilization director."

Richberg said two courses were open to the unions, a strike vote and a court appeal and that they could use either or both

Richberg would not discuss the purpose of the strike ballot and did not say directly whether the unions would or would not appeal to the courts.

Croce, Badoglio, Sforza to Confer

Permanent Rights to U.S. Bases Abroad Demanded by Russell

Acquisition of permanent title or rights to military bases in New Caledonia in the Pacific, Iceland in the North Atlantic and Dakar in the South Atlantic to guard against any future attack on this hemisphere was proposed yesterday in the Senate by Senator Richard B. Russell (Democrat), of Georgia.

Russell, leader of the five globe-girdling Senators on their recent tour of world battle fronts, urged also: Permanent United States control of off-shore naval and military bases leased for 99 years from the British, and American postwar rights in air bases and air facilities constructed with United States funds all over the world.

The Georgia Senator, who repeated for the record practically all of what he said at the Senate recent secret session, charging published accounts were garbled, denied there was anything imperialistic about his proposals.

"Call it what you will," said the Senator, "it is a realistic step to prevent another penetration of Americans, who will undoubtedly be paying for the present war, from being compelled to pay again in blood and treasure in taking these islands back from enemies who may obtain them if we follow the policy of take-and-abandon after this war is over."

Russell's speech was an appeal for abandonment by this Government of "the old type of kid-glove diplomacy," and assumption of the "realistic" attitude he said might be assumed "when great peoples are fighting for their very lives." He said he had a healthy respect, "bordering on envy" for British administration abroad, but American representation was "weak" in spots, foreign civilian administration divided, and there was no evidence of any definite American policy abroad extending beyond six months after the war.

"Our lack of a postwar policy and stronger representation abroad is in some key positions is likely to cost us dearly in the postwar period," he told the Senate. "All agencies having to do with any place in the war effort abroad should be coordinated."

Chairman Tom Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee told newsmen he heartily concurred in Russell's proposals that the United States permanently acquire bases needed for United States defense. "I believe we must demand and secure them, and so informed representatives of the British Commonwealths who attended the conference in Ottawa," said Connally.

Like Russell, Connally said he was a believer in "realistic, two-fisted diplomacy—too much politeness is a screen for deceit." The Foreign Relations chairman also indorsed Russell's statement that future peace must depend on an understanding between the United States and its allies on "a basis of equality and frank and fair dealings."

Russell told the Senate that if the matters touched on in his report "cannot be publicly discussed and fairly adjusted in time of war, it does not augur well for the harmonious relations the American people so earnestly desire in their pastwar relations."

Beat Heiress Wife to Death, Cadet Confesses in New York

Lonergan inquired where the baby was and was told:

"He's in bed. Don't go in."

"Well, I want to go in," Lonergan insisted.

"No, don't go in," his wife asserted. "You'll disturb him. Come back later and see him."

"I can't," the husband answered. "I have a luncheon date with a girl." (He lunched later with Jeanne Murphy, an actress).

Mrs. Lonergan asked the cadet to have lunch with her, instead.

"I can't," said her husband. "This is a previous date."

His wife remarked:

"I'm amazed. I can't control my men."

Lonergan had his hand on his overseas cap, which was on a dresser, and was about to leave, when his wife said:

"You're not going to see the baby again."

Anger got the better of him, the story continued, and he picked up a candlestick near the bed and struck her. It broke and he seized its mate. Mrs. Lonergan rose from the bed, though stunned, and seized him, scratching his face. He belabored her with the second candlestick and left her lying on the bed.

From there, he went to the apartment of John Harjes, a friend, removed his blood-spattered uniform, donned one of Harjes' suits and had breakfast. After eating, he wrapped the uniform in paper, boarded a bus to the East River, and hurled the package about 20 feet into the water.

Hogan's statement that Lonergan had signed a confession came shortly after the cadet was confronted with his alibi—which turned out to be a former soldier.

Proclaiming his innocence through four days of almost constant questioning, both here and in Toronto, Canada, Lonergan had insisted he was with an American soldier named Murray Worcester in a friend's New York apartment at about the time his wife was battered and strangled across her bed.

Then Maurice "Murray" Worcester, a Bridgeport, Conn., war worker, honorably discharged from the Army several months ago and father of three children, was ushered into Lonergan's presence at the district attorney's office.

"Do you know this man—have you ever seen him before?" Assistant District Attorney Jacob Grumet asked Lonergan.

"No," the tall, blond suspect replied.

When Worcester left the room, Lonergan was told:

"The man you never saw is Maurice Worcester."

The cadet then admitted, Hogan said, that the Worcester of his story was a figment of the imagination.

Mrs. Lonergan's body was discovered Sunday night by Marine Capt. Peter Elser, former Harvard University football player, who told police he had called at her triplex apartment to keep a dinner engagement.

Tracing her movements of the previous evening, police found that she had danced at the Stork Club with Mario Gabelline, who reported that he had escorted her back to her apartment at about 6:15 a. m. and that he knew nothing further. Gabelline was held as a material witness.

In the meantime, police learned that Longergan had gone night-clubbing Saturday night with Miss Murphy until about 3 a. m., and that he had met her again for lunch about 1 p. m. on Sunday.

The investigation centered on his whereabouts in the intervening hours.

Print Admitted At Oakes Trial

the surface of a bedscreen which witnesses have said stood in the bedroom of the millionaire gold miner at the time of the slaying.

Thus he set a precedent for British courts, attorneys saying it is the first time a jurist has ruled in the empire that a print lifted onto Scotch tape or adhesive rubber is good evidence.

Cross-examining Barker, Higgs motioned to the figured screen which stood near the bench and asked about pencil marks that ringed an area.

"I cannot definitely say," Barker replied, "that the right print came from the part marked on the panel with the blue pencil.

"But I can say that it came from the top of the panel."

He added that he and Frank Conway, New York police fingerprint expert, examined the screen again a week ago, "and found we are unable to say with certainty this is where the print came from."

Barker said he drew a black pencil mark around the area August 1, and initialed it with the date of July 9—the day after Sir Harry's body was discovered by Harold G. Christie, a house guest at his estate.

"Then until August 1 there was nothing on that screen to indicate where the print came from?" Higgs demanded.

"Nothing but my memory."

"Yet on the third day of August in magistrate's court you swore on oath you marked that area on the screen with a pencil, and it is now within the area marked with a blue pencil and initialed and dated 8-3-43?"

"I did."

"You marked this area in blue in magistrate's court and said this is where the print came from?"

"I did."

"Why?"

"I am not sure now."

Higgs suggested Leonarde Keeler, defense investigation expert, had demonstrated that the print could not have been found in the marked area.

"I didn't know that," the officer replied.

Attacking Barker's qualifications, Higgs asked:

"After five months as a clerk in the Miami Identification Bureau, you were made superintendent?"

"That is correct."

"Is it customary to appoint a man with so little experience as superintendent?"

"No, sir."

"Do you consider yourself a fingerprint expert?"

"I think I am."

Higgs brought out that one lift showed a serrated edge, indicating the print was raised with Scotch tape.

"How do you spell serrated?" asked the justice, chin on hand.

Barker was asked why the print was not preserved in the screen.

"I had only a small fingerprint kit, and lifting would expedite."

He agreed that the fingerprint camera would have been desirable, but that he did not know the type of case when he was summoned from Miami by the Duke of Windsor, Governor of the Bahamas.

Higgs wandered from one subject to another, obviously seeking an opening.

"Did you exclude the possibility of accomplices?" the attorney asked the American.

"I did not exclude, or did I advance the theory that the attacker had accomplices," said Barker.

The officer testified that Christie twice had been examined, without results, for burned hairs. Yesterday he told of finding singed and curled hairs on the hands and arms of de Marigny, and added that he believed anyone in the room at the time of the slaying would have telltale burns.

"Did you find a single legible print of Harold Christie?" asked Barker

"I found none."

"You found none of Sir Harry?"

"No, I found none."

Austin Backs Ball-Burton Plan

leaders insist the amendment will not poll over 20 votes when it goes to a showdown, possibly late next week, but the "B-2 H-2'ers" were more confident than ever.

Some of the amendment backers believe their constant hammering at alleged "vagueness and inadequacy" of the compromise resolution would wring last minute leadership concessions. Others said they will have served their purpose if they write "interpretations" of the broadly stated compromise into the Senate record, and place the issues squarely before the country before the next election.

As the Senate concluded its third day of postwar debate, Chairman Tom Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committtee, acting floor leader, made an unsuccessful effort to limit debate.

Connally posed a unanimous consent agreement that the Senate limit speeches of each Senator after Monday to fifteen minutes on the bill or amendments. There were two objections, including one by Senator John A. Danaher (Democrat) of Connecticut, who said it would take longer than that to discuss his amendment supplying dictionary meanings for the resolution's terms. Senator Carl Hatch (Democrat) of New Mexico, a floor manager of the "B-2 H-2" group, suggested a quorum call and Connally withdrew his suggestion.

"I didn't think it would be agreed to, anyway," said Connally.

Senator Harold H. Burton (Republican) of Ohio yesterday took the floor for the second day in behalf of strengthening amendments, concluding a 56-page prepared speech in which he urged the Senate it had "an inescapable duty" to make the postwar resolution so clear that it will be of value to the President in negotiating the final peace.

Connally interrupted the Burton speech to remark that "The President is going to write the treaty."

The Foreign Relations chairman charged the "B-2 H-2" bloc with trying to control the terms of the treaty.

"Are you so afraid of the President that you think you must tell him exactly where to put the commas and periods?" asked the Texan.

Postwar Debate Halts Father Draft Issue

The postwar policy debate in the Senate yesterday delayed final congressional action on the father-draft issue.

Chairman May (Democrat) of Kentucky of the House Military Committee said a scheduled get-together of House and Senate conferees to adjust differences between bills on this question passed by the two chambers had been postponed until next week.

Rising Winds Endanger Ship Grounded in Gale

Belmar, N. J., Oct. 28 (AP). — Freshening winds which had reached a 25-mile-an-hour velocity aroused fear today, the Navy said, over the fate of the 7821-ton freighter F. J. Luckenbach, grounded here.

All of the 45-man crew was on board except a mess cook and a signal man in the armed guard contingent. Salvage operations started yesterday, but the freighter still was grounded about 100 feet from the beach.

The ship was one of four driven aground within 20 miles of the entrance to New York Harbor during a gale Tuesday night and Wednesday. Two pulled off without serious damage.

Victors Must Pool Control—Hoover

Chinese Hit Japs Near Burma Line

Chungking, Oct. 28 (AP).—Chinese troops aided by American airmen launched a counter-offensive Tuesday in some sectors of the Salween River front near the Burma border in Yunnan province, inflicting heavy casualties on the Japanese, and taking prisoners, it was announced today.

Liberator bombers attacked the advance Japanese base of Tengchung, in western Yunnan, while others dumped 55 tons of bombs on the enemy's freight yards at Haiphong, French Indo-China, scoring "many direct hits on rollingstock, warehouses, and the yards themselves," said a communique from Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters.

Mitchell bombers, striking enemy shipping off Hainan Island in the south China Sea, sank a 300-foot transport and two 200-foot tankers, one of which exploded, and left a freighter listing.

(A communique issued by the 10th U. S. Air Force in New Delhi, India, giving new details of Tuesday's Liberator attack on Rangoon, in lower Burma, said a 350-foot enemy freighter was hit several times and left on fire, three large fires were started near the central railroad station, and seven Japanese fighters shot down, five probably destroyed, and one damaged.

(One American plane was lost, and the bulletin said its crewmen were "machine-gunned by Japanese fighters after their parachutes had opened.)

Van Oyen in Australia

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Oct. 28 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. L. H. Van Oyen arrived today from the United States to assume command of the Netherlands East Indies Army.

Former President Issues New Plea For People's Peace

Kansas City, Oct. 28 (AP).—Herbert Hoover, "impressed with a certain lack of reality" in current peace discussions, proposed tonight that leading victorious powers pool their control and "a people's peace be written for a people's war."

A world-wide institution or authority to maintain the peace should be the last phase, he said.

He opposed common citizenship, currency and military alliance with Britain as both unnecessary and dangerous, but instead called for collaboration among the United Nations.

"I am one who believes that collaboration and cooperation between Britain and the United States is the first necessity for peace. But collaboration does not require amalgamation."

The former President's speech was for delivery before a meeting of the combined civic clubs of Kansas City and broadcast over a national radio network.

Calls for New Approach

For 5000 years the world has failed to make a permanent peace, he said, and "with the birth of total war the problems of peace have been infinitely multiplied. I am convinced we must abandon old formulae of peace-making and adopt a new approach to this gigantic problem."

For common ground in national thinking, he said, "we should discard all proposals of military alliances as an instrument of peace." Never has a military alliance produced peace, but many of them have produced wars, he said.

Legal ties between Britain and United States have been proposed, he said, but he asked if such would not arouse the fears of other nations against an English-speaking mastery over the other 90 per cent of the world's population. Also, he asked, wouldn't "such a marriage involve us in all of the problems of the British Empire" and conversely that empire be "plagued with all of the problems of the United States," leading to "many frictions and ultimately to bitter divorce?"

Deplores Nationalism

Hoover saw as the greatest danger to peace the intense nationalism generated by the war, and said evidences of nationalism already were obvious in proclamations by United Nations. "Mr. Stalin has not hesitated" to speak of territorial expansion over previously independent peoples, Hoover said, and Churchill "has stated categorically that the British Empire will not be liquidated . . ." Chiang Kai-shek "states China will restore ancient boundaries with all foreign squatters evicted" and Holland says she will recover her colonies.

In proposing a Transition Period, Hoover said it would be one of considerable time, in which the victorious nations would collaborate in control and should, at once, when firing ceases, "impose without argument certain urgent necessities of disarming the enemy and certain measures for restarting the political and economic life of the world."

"We must make peace before we preserve it." Such a world-wide institution, or authority, as he suggested "should be the last phase of a peace, not the first."

German Spies Meet Death

IN SYRIA—This photo of the execution of two German spies by Free French in Aleppo, Syria, was made by Sergt. George Aarons, staff photographer of Yank, the Army weekly. Spy at right slumps to the ground as bullets from the firing squad enter his body. Another at left hangs upright to his stake, the top of which has been sheared off by bullets. The execution took place after the Germans were convicted in a military trial of planning to blow up reservoirs and to poison Allied soldiers

Boettiger in Italian Fray

With the Fifth Army in Italy, Oct. 27 (Delayed) (AP).—Capt. John Boettiger, publisher of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer and son-in-law of President Roosevelt, has been serving as a liaison officer on this front since landing with the first American troops at Salerno.

Boettiger was the only AMG officer to cross the beach with combat teams on the day of the original landing. He went ashore charged with the job of organizing transport for the Allied Military Government so that it might start its administrative work without delay.

Boettiger has refused to talk about his experiences, but his story has become widely known here.

His party ran into powerful resistance and it was impossible for him to do the job assigned to him, but instead of returning to his ship he went ashore.

German artillery worked up and down the beach and there were bursts from machine-gun nests as well as bombing and strafing.

Boettiger thumbed a ride in a jeep and in a thousand-yard drive he and the driver had to jump to cover five times because of bombs and shells.

It was several days before the situation permitted him to go about rounding up vehicles and during this time he spent nights in the open and had another close call when Germans launched a fierce counterattack in his sector.

Hitler Called Foe Of Civilization

London, Oct. 28 (AP).—The present war is "Hitler's revolt against civilization" rather than a mere struggle for territory, Maj. Gen. John C. Lee, commanding officer of the United States Army Services of Supply, European theater, today told representatives of the United States, British and Canadian forces in the opening session of a three-day course in international affairs.

"It is vital that we know our enemy," he said in urging a close study of German mentality. "Our soldiers want to know why—why are we fighting? Why does the Nazi react as he does? What of the future?"

Author Spends Hour With Sedition Jury

By Joseph Paull

John Roy Carlson, author of "Undercover," best selling book about an expose of native fascism, was observed yesterday going into the District Court room where a Federal grand jury is conducting an investigation of seditious activity in this country.

Carlson spent more than an hour in the grand jury room. Impaneled Tuesday the grand jury is to probe into a select group of sedition cases prepared by the Justice Department.

New Evidence Expected

Previously, two grand juries had indicted 33 persons on charges of conspiring to undermine the morale of the armed forces, but prosecutors said in court that new indictments would be sought of some of the defendants and that new evidence would be presented, perhaps concerning others.

"Undercover" is, according to Carlson, a first-hand account of his undercover investigation into native Fascism and more than 30 groups he claims to be subversive. Carlson, who said he spent four years searching through usually small but blatant groups, describes a vast quantity of literature coming from a subversive press directed at undermining the Nation. Some of their activity was, he claims, inspired by Germany.

Others Still at Large

The indictments which were returned and part of which were quashed, described just such activity as this and names several persons now in prison after convictions on seditious charges, but others are still active in writing and speaking to large audiences.

Several of the defendans, among whom there are William Dudley Pelley, Ralph Townsend and George Sylvester Viereck, all in prison, had attacked the impanelling of the grand jury as illegal.

Let Italians Starve, German General Says

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 28 (AP).—German Maj. Gen. Richard Heidrich, commander of the First Nazi Parachute Division, says that, so far as the Germans are concerned, "the Italians will starve this winter," a British officer who recently escaped from enemy custody related today.

The officer said he was entertained by Heidrich at dinner while he was a prisoner and that the German general made the statement in apologizing for the poor fare.

Probe of PAW Foreign Operations Group Asked

Representative Voorhis (Democrat) of California yesterday called for a congressional inquiry into activities of the Foreign Operations Committee recently established by the Office of Petroleum Administration for War.

The Californian told the House that establishment of this committee, which he said was dominated by major oil companies, might lay the groundwork for "complete cartelization of the oil industry of America under governmental sanction."

HAS CONSTIPATION "GOT YOU DOWN"?

Looking for Relief—Without Pills, Harsh Purgatives?

Lasting relief! Without griping unpleasantness! That's the happy experience thousands have found by regularly eating gentle-acting KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN!

Why can ALL-BRAN give so many people such amazing results? Scientists say it's because ALL-BRAN really "gets at" one big cause of common constipation—lack of enough cellulosic factors in the diet! KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is naturally rich in these elements which help the intestinal flora to properly lighten, and fluff up colonic wastes, for easy, natural elimination! ALL-BRAN is not a "purgative," does not "sweep you out"! It's a gentle-acting, "regulating" food.

If this is your trouble eat ALL-BRAN regularly. Drink plenty of water! See if you don't cheer its welcome relief! And don't forget — KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is highly nutritious. Each ounce serving contains more iron than 2 eggs, more phosphorus than a glass of milk! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Baird to Direct Payroll Savings, War Finance Plan

Bruce Baird has accepted chairmanship of the Banking and Financial Section of the D. C. War Finance Committee Payroll Savings Division, Robert C. McCann, head of the division, announced yesterday.

Baird, who is second vice president of the D. C. Bankers' Association, commenting on his selection, said: "The banking and financial group is keenly aware of the importance of stimulating the sale of war bonds through payroll savings in order to insure our Government a steady flow of funds with which to prosecute the war, and its response will continue to show a wholehearted support."

Madrid, Oct. 28 (AP).—A neutral informant who visited the Russian Front less than a fortnight ago said today that Germany's motor fuel shortages already were felt there.

German planes, he added, no longer are allowed to taxi to starting points, but must be pushed; tanks no longer rumble along highways to the battlefield, but must await rail transport to save fuel.

Witness Tells Of Mysteries At Brewster

ed that the Navy, by not fulfilling its contract obligations to the company and "arbitrarily withholding" payments of millions of dollars, had forced the company to borrow from New York banks, with interest of one million dollars a year on loans totaling 55 million dollars. Responsibility was placed by him at the door of Undersecretary James V. Forrestal and Assistant Secretary for Air Artemus Gates.

Excessive Salary Paid

He also charged that Lieut. Comd. James E. Mooney, former vice president of General Motors Export Corp. in charge of the company's international business, had demanded the company take on a friend and former associate of his as financial vice president of Brewster at a salary of $45,000 a year. The stockholders agreed, Zelcer said, although the then incumbent received only $15,000 a year. To questions of Chairman Drewry (Democrat) of Virginia Zelcer said the money for such a salary came out of stockholders' pockets, not taxpayers, since the cost plus contract forbid the payment of a salary exceeding $25,000.

Zelcer also charged that Mooney demanded the discharge of the Brewster counsel, Mark Eisner, in favor of the New York firm of Cole and Grimes, asserting that Mooney gave as a reason the fact that Cole and Grimes called Forrestal and Gates by their first names and could secure payment of the contract arrears in 48 hours. Stockholders' refusal to concede this was followed within two days, Zelcer charged, by seizure of the plant by the Navy. Eisner is likely to be called by the committee in the near future, The Post learned.

Sale Violations Denied

Although the statement presented by Zelcer contained indignant denials that he or the Miranda brothers had ever sold munitions to Japan or Germany in violations of the Neutrality Act, that denial was challenged by Grant reading from an official Government report.

Grant pressed the witness about alleged arrangements to send guns to Japan prior to Pearl Harbor, but after export licenses were being denied. Grant asked if the guns were not to be shipped to various foreign ports, winding up in Siam, whence they would go to Japan, with the name of the consignee hidden from United States officials.

"Sheer drivel," the witness retorted. "I deny every intimation and dirty allegation in this report."

Grant also asked about shipments to Japan through Mexico and asked about telegrams the report said were exchanged between the Miranda brothers to the effect that the President of Mexico was friendly to China and would forbid such shipments were he aware of them. Grant asked if it was not a fact the shipments were then added to a shipment for one of the Latin American companies and then taken off at the other end. Zelcer flatly denied the charge.

Assumed Various Names

Figuring in the report, Grant said, was one Thomas Krock, described by the report as an "adventurer retained in Washington from the summer of 1937 to the Fall of 1939 as a sort of listening post for the Miranda brothers and Zelcer." Krock, the report said, assumed various names such as General T. A. Ashy-Poley, Von Krachow and Wickerode. Grant read from a letter which he said was addressed to Krock, signed by A. J. Miranda and dated October 16.

The letter advised Krock not to let the military attaches "play him for a fish," reminded him that the Miranda brothers were in official correspondence with other governments.

"My brother and I have travelled the whole world over looking into the subject (of armaments)) and we have agents, I daresay, in every country in the world," the letter said.

Miranda, according to the letter, advised Krock that if agents of foreign governments did not know what they wanted, "a copy of our general catalogue" should be given them to make a selection.

Shipments to Japan

After the hearing Grant revealed that the Paris representative of the American Armament Corp., Capt. Paul Koster, was a former associate of Sir Basil Zarahoff, mysterious international munitions dealer.

Zelcer was also asked about shipments from the Seversky Aircraft Corp., with which he was then connected, of tons of aluminum plates to Japan at a time when such shipments were forbidden because of shortage of supply. Letters were alleged to have been exchanged, according to the report, saying the Aluminum Corp. must not know the destination of the exports. Zelcer denied all knowledge of such a transaction.

He was asked about elaborate presents the report described as having been given to representatives of Okura & Co., a Japanese exporting house.

He denied knowledge of such gifts but said they might have been presented since the contract with Japan was worth about two million dollars.

Persistently Grant questioned the witness about a $65,000 fund raised by Brewster and other aeronautical companies allegedly with a view to having something done about a tax provision to have half the advances on foreign contracts made part of the company capital so it would not be subject to the excess profits tax. Zelcer admitted Brewster contributed to the fund which was handled by a New York firm and by W. D. Jamieson as Washington representative. He asserted that the fund was to "inquire" into the tax laws.

Grant asserted that $30,000 of this fund went to Frank J. Comfort, then Democratic National Committeeman of Iowa, $10,000 to the Washington attorney and $8750 to the New York firm.

Legislative references showed that such a provision was added to the Second Revenue Act of 1940. An amendment achieving this end was introduced by former Senator Herring (Democrat) of Iowa, then a member of the Senate Finance Committee, and passed.

General Coal Strike, Mine Seizure Loom

explained its decision to the President in detail and then requested him to put into effect the compliance program worked out last August to meet this precise situation.

An appeal to the miners to return to work was regarded as a likely presidential step, to be followed by an order returning struck coal mines to Government hands.

This step would immediately invoke Connally-Smith Act criminal penalties against striking a Government-held plant, and permit the Government, under the compliance program, to deny the United Mine Workers the dues checkoff and other union benefits until compliance is secured.

During the day, Lewis received strong support from the American Federation of Labor members of the War Labor Board, who issued a dissenting opinion in the Illinois case stating:

"This decision of the majority adds another to the list of decisions of this board which have been determined not on the basis of merit but rather by the attitude of the individuals and government agencies who dominate the actions of the public members of the board."

Significantly, CIO members of the board did not join in this opinion, but remained silent.

The AFL members said, "it is our considered judgment" that the miners should be paid $8.50 a day under the Illinois agreement as submitted, rather than the $8.12½ a day recommended by the board majority.

Lewis expressed his views on the WLB decision in the following telegram:

"In order to allay confusion indicated by many inquiries I advise as follows: In rejecting the negotiated Illinois agreement and recommending the substitution of its own formula, the War Labor Board is asking the mine workers of the Nation to accept a reduction in their basic hourly rate.

"The existing basic hourly rate is $1 per hour for 7 hours work or $7 per day.

"The War Labor Board proposes a rate of $8.12½ for a work day of 8½ hours or an hourly rate of 95½ cents per hour. Acceptance of this plan would impose a wage reduction on the mine workers of the Nation amounting to 4½ cents per hour."

The WLB promptly disputed Lewis' analysis. A spokesman said: "The difficulty with Mr. Lewis' statement is with his mathematics. He leaves out travel time as working time when he calculates the present rate of $1 an hour and he includes it as working time when he calculates what he calls the board's rate of 95½ cents.

"If he included the 45 minutes for travel time as working time in most calculations, he would have told his district presidents that the miners' present basic hourly rate is 90 cents an hour and what he calls the board's rate is 95½ cents an hour. The increase is due to overtime for the longer day approved by the board.

"He also fails to point out that the board proposed to pay the miners for travel time after 40 hours a week in accordance with the Fair Labor Standards Act. Acceptance of the board's proposal would bring the average miner's wage in Illinois up to approximately $60 a week."

War Fund Drive Is Extended

upon Washington residents for sacrificial giving.

"How many," he asked, "have consciously relinquished something that is of importance to them to give to the fund? How great is the degree of your sacrifice?"

He again reminded workers of the contribution made by the children of Barney Neighborhood House, who in appreciation for benefits received from the fund, turned in $10 in nickles and pennies. That Jennings said is sacrificial giving since it constitutes giving up a trip to the movies. He also told workers of a Negro cafeteria worker in the Pentagon Building who gave $50 because she knew how important was the USO to her soldier husband.

A general meeting of all divisions will be held today to report totals and to receive additional instructions and two meetings are planned for Tuesday and Thursday of next week. Guest speaker today will be Fireman First Class George T. Wendelken of the Sea Bee's, known as "Freckles" to movie goers. Wendelken served at Guadalcanal, was wounded in both legs and was left 15 days in a fox hole awaiting evacuation.

Totals reported last night were as follows: Advanced Gifts, $437,867, 79.6 per cent; Business and Finance, $877,673, 65 per cent; Metropolitan, $89,524, 29.8 per cent; Government, $1,714,128, 71.4 per cent; Arlington, $6613, 13.6 per cent; Montgomery, $18,473, 21 per cent; Prince Georges, $6577, 21.8 per cent.

Nazis Using 'Silver Fire' to Combat Raids

1943, Allied plane losses over Europe have averaged less than 5 per cent per raid.

The Army statement also revealed that the enemy was utilizing the rocket principle in antiaircraft fire against our bombers. This, it was said, provides "a means for projecting a very powerful shell to extremely high altitudes."

Discussing the rocket guns used on fighters, the War Department said they had been seen on Messerschmitt 109s and 110s and Junker 88s. The rocket cylinders are attached under the wings, in addition to the normal armament of cannon and machine guns. Present Nazi tactics, it was said, "is for German planes to stay outside the fire range of the bombers and lob rockets at the formation."

Press reports have said that the enemy planes attack in layers from a range of 2000 yards. Each craft appears to have four guns and the projectile leaves a trail of smoke for the first 200 yards and then gains momentum. The planes so armed are said to be much slower than fighters with normal equipment.

The War Department statement on Nazi weapons declared that so far, we have had no report of the enemy using radio-controlled glide bombs against planes, though they were first employed against Allied ships in the Salerno landing.

"These (bombs)" said the Army, "actually are gliders remotely-controlled as to direction and have impact fuses as do other bombs. Some have been reported with rocket propulsion. . . . Direction of all (or glide) is, however, changeable by means of radio controlled control surfaces."

In his discussion of Allied plane losses over Europe, Stimson noted that our Eighth Air Force lost 60 bombers in the recent Schweinfurt raid and that the RAF had lost 48 bombers October 22 in a heavy attack on Kassel, Germany.

"Such losses as these," the Secretary said, "raise the natural question as to whether we can afford such heavy losses, but, as a matter of fact, they are counterbalanced by very light losses in other attacks.

"For example, a few days ago 501 American planes attacked airfields in northern France inflicting heavy damage without the loss of a single American plane."

In announcing that the average Allied loss per raid was less than 5 per cent of those taking part, the War Secretary made it plain he was talking of both bombers and fighters. Allied fighter losses have been unusually low in recent action over Europe.

Observers noted that the figure given was considerably less than the so-called rule of thumb for air losses. This is that losses of more than 10 per cent make the raid unprofitable—a standard, however, which does not take into account the damage done, or the enemy plane losses.

Sales Tax Plan Is Sidetracked

arguments that a retail levy would fall heaviest on the lowest income groups and to block in advance the threat that a sales tax would be met promptly by organized labor demands for general wage increases.

His plan called for offsetting the weight of the sales tax on the average food budget by issuing to every individual $10 worth of sales tax stamps, similar to a ration book, with which to pay the sales levy on the first $100 of purchases.

Robertson said this would give a $400 exemption to the family of four, sufficient, he declared, to cover their average food budget.

The warning of wage increase demands was to be forestalled by a proviso prohibiting any agency of the Government from taking the wartime sales tax into consideration in computing farm parity, any cost of living index, or in dealing with wage demands.

He called for adding the 10 per cent levy automatically to existing OPA retail price ceilings, and specified that the levy would not apply to goods already subjected to a higher excise tax. Goods purchased for production would have been exempt.

WPB Promises All-Rubber Girdles in 1944

By Walter Wood

All-rubber girdles are going to be on the market next year.

Increasing supplies of synthetic rubber made it possible yesterday for the War Production Board to stretch a point in favor of American womanhood and lift all restrictions on the use of elastic fabrics in the manufacture of that critically needed garment as well as corsets, brassieres and some other things.

Although the first all-rubber garments will be available early in 1944, WPB officials cautioned that it would be some time after that before full-scale production is attained. Considerable "experimentation and testing" remains to be done, it was said.

Resistance to heat and tensile strength (that means stretch, girls) must be considered along with the durability and laundering qualities of a girdle, or corset, or brassiere and some other things.

Tested by Woman at WPB

However, you can take it from one of the women at WPB that they've already developed "quite a satisfactory" girdle. She has been the WPB's girdle tester, without portfolio, for several weeks. And, off the record, she has given it the works.

WPB's action completes the pattern for production of elastic-type items of feminine attire with synthetic rubber thread and fabric. In effect, the move eliminates all restrictions on the amount of elastic used in an individual garment, it was said.

It will take time, officials said, for the production cycle—from fabrication of the elastic thread to completion of the end product.

But, take heart, girls, they're going to be those desirable "two-way stretch" models.

LaGuardia Asks Lifting of Taxes On Margarine

By the Associated Press

Appealing to Congress to lift Federal taxes from margarine, Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York said yesteday wartime emergencies demand a new appoach to food problems, and the Nation's postwar progress will depend on the extent to which natural production is allowed to proceed.

He appeared before the House Agriculture Committee in support of a bill proposed by Chairman Fulmer (Democrat) of South Carolina to repeal the margarine levies. New York City and other areas are short of butter and milk, he said, adding:

"There is nothing that worries me more as Mayor of New York than the supply and cost of food. Ceiling prices are not the cost at this time anywhere — including Washington."

More Paternalism

One might reasonably have imagined that the Senate had disposed forever of the issue of deferring fathers. It wrestled mightily over the proposals advanced by Senator Wheeler and Representative Kilday, listened to the urgent opposition of military commanders, and concluded that the drafting of fathers could not be avoided if we are to build our armed forces to the desired stature. But now the House has brought the whole issue up again by amending the bill finally passed in the upper chamber and decreeing that all available single men and childless married men be inducted prior to the calling of fathers.

What the House has declared, in effect, is that paternity should take precedence over occupation in determining draft deferment. It has aggravated the difficulties inherent in the Kilday proposal by abandoning the system of State quotas for induction and creating instead a nation-wide manpower pool. Since the reserve of single and childless men is constantly being augmented by youths reaching the age of 18, it is hard to see how fathers could ever be inducted under this system. Moreover, by making occupation subordinate to paternity, the House amendment would end War Manpower Commissioner Paul McNutt's use of the Selective Service law as a spear with which to goad men into essential jobs. This could be considered salutary only if some other influence, such as a national service act, were provided to fill manpower needs in war industries.

Some of the other amendments passed by the House have merit—particularly the provision for preinduction physical examinations of draft registrants. But it is hard to see how the eleventh-hour shuffling of Selective Service induction procedure can result in anything but confusion for draft registrants and additional red tape for local draft boards. Chairman May of the House Military Affairs Committee was quoted as estimating that if the House amendment is accepted by the Senate, it will postpone the induction of fathers by 30 to 60 days. We wonder if so modest a delay can be worth all the tumult and shouting it has occasioned.

Taft's Progress

That Senator Taft of Ohio has taken off the blinkers which he used to wear when he viewed foreign affairs is an item of note. He is one of the most sincere as well as hard-working men in the Senate. In these circumstances there was something passing strange when he sometimes appeared in the company of the Bourbons of Congress. However, he has now crossed his Rubicon. He feels that the Connally resolution should be supplemented by a declaration in favor of the use of the existing machinery of the League of Nations as the framework for world organization. Senator Taft, evidently, is too honest a man to subscribe to a device which means all things to all men, and leave it at that.

No welcome is likely to be heartier than that of the spirit of his father, William Howard Taft. Taft was one of the sponsors of the League to Enforce Peace, which was started in the early days of the last war. The league had a notable membership of the leading Republicans of our time. In addition to Taft, there were such men as Lowell, Wickersham, and Root. This league went all the way with the yet unborn Covenant of the League of Nations. It publicly indorsed a project consisting of four fundamental proposals. First, justifiable disputes shall be judged by an international tribunal; secondly, other disputes shall be submitted to a council for recommendation; thirdly, force shall be employed against any state that refuses to submit a dispute, and, fourthly, conferences shall be held from time to time. No group did more to popularize the league idea than the League to Enforce Peace.

But, like Wilson, Taft and his fellows were ahead of their times. A generation later the same struggle has to be repeated. Witness the younger Taft's words on Sunday: "We have got to the point eventually of saying that we are willing to abide by the decision of an international tribunal on which we cannot have a majority vote in designating as an aggressor and joining in stripping him of his tools of aggression." Here is an echo from the past which the fury of this second war makes a truism. Men whose minds are as advanced as the facts of the universe realize that the nation-state living unto itself cannot assure the freedom from fear which must be the basis of all freedom.

If no place nowadays is more than 48 hours away, surely we must reevalue the notion of sovereignty. Absolute, it can only lead to more fratricidal conflict, just as the insistence upon it after the last war led to this conflict. Emery Reves, in his book, A Democratic Manifesto, says our necessity nowadays is for "a separation of sovereignty." Sovereignty, in other words, should be established for all national matters, while international sovereignty, through world law, is reserved for all international matters. Only by recognizing international sovereignty can national sovereignty in the modern world be secured. That Senator Taft has come to his present position is a testimony to the new realities which a man of his intellectual integrity could not fail to appreciate.

Coal Decision

We are on the verge of another coal crisis—the fourth to be precipitated by John L. Lewis in the course of this crucial war year. Mr. Lewis has indicated in a telegram to local leaders of his union that he disapproves of the terms which the War Labor Board has set forth as an acceptable basis for settlement of the coal industry's wage problem. The Lewis interpretation of those terms is a transparent and mischievous distortion of their real meaning. It can be considered nothing less than a calculated attempt to incite insurrection.

The formula on which the War Labor Board based its recommendation for a wage agreement in the coal industry is complex and difficult for laymen to evaluate. But clearly it does not entail, as Mr. Lewis contends, a cut in the basic hourly rate of coal wages. Public and employer members of the board agreed that they could not ratify the contract which Mr. Lewis had negotiated with the Illinois coal operators, on the ground that it violated the stabilization program. This being so, it is well that they chose to delineate the kind of contract which they would be willing to ratify. The coal miners now know, for the first time, what they can obtain by yielding to the Government's authority.

Although the settlement outlined as acceptable by the WLB falls short of John Lewis' demands and of the terms he worked out in the Illinois agreement, it would confer real and tangible benefits upon the coal miners. It would increase their earnings, on an average, by $10 a week, affording the average miner a weekly income of $60. This is less than workers receive in certain other industries. Still, it should enable miners to meet increased living costs and provide a decent standard of living for their families.

From the point of view of the general public, the proposed settlement has other virtues. It would increase the weekly earnings of miners, without any inflationary boost in their basic rate of pay, by lengthening their work week to 51 hours. This would mean a greater output of coal, now urgently needed for war industries and civilian consumers. Also, it would dispose of the contentious issue of portal-to-portal pay by revising the basis on which wages are computed in the coal industry. It would, in other words, bring the coal industry into conformity with the Fair Labor Standards Act—an altogether desirable development.

John Lewis and the coal miners now have a concrete proposition to accept or to reject. It is greatly to be hoped, of course, that Mr. Lewis will enter into contracts of the sort recommended by the WLB with all the mine operators' associations and that the miners will get back to their jobs without any further interruptions. But Lewis' bombast and the downright distortion with which he has portrayed the situation to his union followers may make this impossible. It is doubtful that he can quickly trample out the fires of discontent which he recklessly ignited among the coal miners from the very inception of the controversy even if he should wish to do so. The strikes now in progress despite his back-to-work appeals are clearly no tribute to his leadership.

Yesterday the WLB was compelled once more to refer the coal-strike problem to President Roosevelt. It is certain at this juncture, as it has been certain from the beginning, that the board's authority must be upheld. There must not now be any by-passing of this agency in order to appease John Lewis. That the settlement proposed by the board is open to debate is obvious from the fact that 5 of its 12 members dissented. Nevertheless, a majority approved. That majority is qualified, in this situation at least, to speak for the Government of the United States. The Government must now see to it that coal is produced—and produced on the terms it has laid down.

Immortal Name

In the great ledger in which some day history will write down the respective contributions which the various members of the United Nations made to the defense of civilization against the barbarians of the twentieth century, a special page will have to be devoted to Greece. For when on October 28, 1941, that nation was treacherously invaded by the armed might of Mussolini's Italy the Greeks, though outnumbered by 10 to 1, refused to submit. True to their finest traditions, they stood their ground, fought back, and had thoroughly worsted the Italian enemy when Hitler intervened. Even then the Greeks fought on with dauntless courage and tremendous fortitude, an example and an inspiration to the civilized world which, alas, could at the time do little to help them. But Greek resistance was anything but in vain. By delaying Hitler's attack on Russia, Greek resistance may very well have played a decisive role in the war.

Since its occupation Greece and its heroic people have suffered bitterly. Despite Allied shipments of food that have somehow managed to reach Greece, hunger stalks the land, disease is rampant. But the fight against the conquerors goes on, and the Greeks can warm their spirits if not their bodies with the flame of hope that is fed by Allied victories in Russia, the Mediterranean and elsewhere. The day of liberation looms ahead, and when that day dawns, Greece, which has deserved so much of mankind, will again emerge to take her honored place among the free nations of the earth.

Sales Tax

Last January President Roosevelt stated that a general sales tax might be necessary for a time in view of the then existing financial and economic situation. Since then changes in the financial and economic situation have been of a nature to make the case for general sales taxation more and more compelling. For meantime there has been a continued expansion of consumer income and a concurrent shrinkage in volume of goods available for consumer consumption.

In presenting the Treasury's new tax proposals to the Ways and Means Committee early this month, Secretary Morgenthau stressed the immense amount of excess spending money in the hands of the people. This sum is measured by the gap between an estimated 152 billion dollars of income payments to individuals during 1944 and the estimated 89 billion dollars of goods and services that will be available for purchase. Even after allowing for personal taxes and war-bond sales to individuals, Mr. Morgenthau concluded that excess funds available for spending would still be "far in excess" of the limited supply of goods available and would constitute a growing inflationary threat. Under these conditions a general sales tax would appear to be the most effective method of putting the brakes on inflationary spending of surplus dollars. Nevertheless, the Treasury opposition to such taxes has been unshaken, the President has remained significantly silent, and yesterday the Ways and Means Committee rejected a sales tax proposal.

The Treasury's reasons for opposing a general sales tax as set forth by its spokesmen are singularly unconvincing. It professes to be fearful that such taxes would, by raising prices, bring demands for higher wages and thus invite inflation. It further emphasizes the fact that general sales taxes are regressive—that is, they bear more heavily upon low-income groups than upon persons in the upper-income brackets. Both these claims have validity, but they are far from conclusive. As The Post has repeatedly pointed out, any tax program that effectively taxes working-class groups would probably result in heavier pressure to increase wages as an offset. This argument, if carried to its logical conclusion, would preclude any sort of adequate taxation of the great mass of wage earners.

The rise in prices caused by sales taxes is in no sense inflationary, since the additions to prices in such case are really tax payments collected from the final consumer by the seller and paid over by one means or another to the Government. Inflation, on the other hand, is caused by price increases growing out of the bidding up of prices by consumers as money income expands, without a corresponding increase in supplies of consumable goods. Such price increases elude control, bring no revenue into the Treasury and force the Government to pay out much larger sums for necessary goods and services.

The Treasury's claim that general sales taxes bear with undue weight upon the low-income classes fails to make allowance for the inescapable fact that income has to be taxed where found. And it so happens that, as the Treasury admits, four-fifths of the Nation's income goes to people earning less than $5000 per year. According to Secretary Morgenthau, this group presents the greatest potential danger from the inflationary standpoint, excepting those people earning a bare subsistence wage. That being the case, it would appear to be in the interest of the masses quite as much as the wealthier classes to reduce the volume of spendable income going to the lower-income groups.

Since the Ways and Means Committee has rejected most of the Treasury's proposals for raising new revenue from increased levies on individual and corporate incomes, the sales tax appears, indeed, to be the only feasible alternative form of levy capable of producing substantial amounts of revenue and reducing the budget deficit that is the original source of inflationary increases in spending power. Unless the committee reconsiders its adverse vote of yesterday, there appears to be little chance that it will devise new tax measures capable of exorcising the danger of inflationary price developments. In view of his January utterances, the President is under an obligation to explain why he has failed to follow up the suggestions he then made.

THE APPLE-PICKERS

Let us return: the best of all seasons awaits—the autumn.
Let us climb to the fields again that the hill spreads out,
Curved with its tall and yellow flares of the goldenrod,
And its dancing sea of asters; it is a ripe time for picking—Days like apples and nuts from the topmost branches of a waning year,
Hours that are seasoned with the warming and cooling of hillsides.

The apple trees await us—the ladders for our climbing feet,
The assignment of a season with the rich fruit
in our hands.
Let us grow rich with them . . . Let us know what the tree knows
That looks with steady eyes upon the frost-rimmed field,
The changing line of its brothers—the long and confident line, Braced for what may come. Look to the background of the sumac
Burned red with the racing weather—and the dark oaktrees.
Let no fall be forgotten: let us endure with our trees.

Connally Resolution

By Mark Sullivan

Prospects For Amendment

ABOUT THE SENATE resolution on postwar world organization to preserve peace, the expection continues to be what it has been. This is: that proposed amendments will be rejected, that the resolution will be passed—by a bipartisan vote and by an overwhelming majority.

What opposition there is comes mainly from two sources, both relatively small. An extremely small number of Senators, and a section of public opinion which probably is correspondingly small, thinks there should be no resolution whatever. A larger, yet still relatively small, number of Senators, probably not over a sixth or a seventh of the whole, thinks the resolution should be stronger, more concrete. The basic fact about the position of the latter group is that they do not oppose the resolution, they approve it—they merely think it should go further.

The difference between the resolution as it stands and what is wished by the group who want it more concrete, is somewhat like the difference between the preamble of a constitution and details of the constitution itself. The present resolution amounts to assent to a preamble. By another figure of speech, the difference is between a resolution of intention to erect a building and a partial blueprint of the building. And a common judgment is that which Mr. Wendell L. Willkie stressed in his speech in St. Louis two weeks ago—that the time is too early for a blueprint.

WHAT WE WILL HAVE, after the Senate passes the pending resolution, is a declaration by that body that it favors erecting the building. Subsequently there will be a blueprint. The blueprint will emerge out of conferences, such as the one now being held at Moscow by Secretary of State Hull, Foreign Secretary Eden of Britain and Foreign Commissar Molotov of Russia; and out of later and more definitive conferences to be held, it is expected, by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.

The blueprint, when made, will be submitted to the Senate for ratification. Some of the debate going on now is debate which properly belongs in the subsequent discussion of the blueprint. Depending on what the blueprint is, some debate over some details may be contentious. To avoid contentious debate at this time is one of the reasons the present resolution is confined to a broad declaration of assent to the erection of a building.

Yet if the Senate resolution confines itself to a declaration of intention, and avoids details of the blueprint, nevertheless the resolution has the effect of putting a limitation on the blueprint. One limitation is in the word "sovereign." This means that in the proposed structure, the world organization of nations, the United States, as well as other nations, will retain sovereignty.

What constitutes sovereignty, or a partial surrender of sovereignty, is already a subject of word-splitting. But in the refinements of definition, hardly anyone denies that the United States or any other nation can, without reducing its sovereignty, enter into an agreement limited to the prevention of aggression and preservation of peace. From time immemorial nations have entered into such treaties. They have entered into treaties of non-aggression as between themselves, and into mutual treaties for resisting aggression by third nations. And no one has supposed that by entering into such an agreement a nation reduced its sovereignty. Neither would a nation reduce its sovereignty by entering into such an agreement with all the nations of the world or a large number of them.

THERE IS, in the Senate resolution, another limitation on the blueprints of the proposed world organization. It lies in the statement of purpose. The purpose of the proposed world organization of nations, as declared in the Senate resolution is: "To prevent aggression and to preserve the peace of the world."

By declaring this purpose specifically, the Senate resolution in effect excludes other purposes. What is thus excluded is in effect the various proposals for a so-called super-government. The Senate resolution in effect excludes the notion of a federation of nations, comparable to the federation of 48 States which composes the United States; and the accompanying international parliament, comparable to the Congress of the United States. If such an international parliament and super-government were set up, it would have purposes and functions additional to the preservation of peace. Even if the additional purposes and functions were not specified, the super-government would in time take them on—just as, in the United States, the Federal Government has taken over functions which the States supposed they had reserved to themselves.

American Optimism

By Paul Schubert

Effect On The War

OUR HIGH COMMAND appears to have decided that the country is overoptimistic. People expect too much, too soon, at least as far as Germany is concerned. With slightly heavy-handed lack of subtlety, various very important leaders have undertaken to debunk these expectations. Congress has been given off-the-record information calculated to leave that body in a mood of sober realism. General Eisenhower, speaking from Algiers, has warned that "it will be a long, long way to final victory, over a rough, bitter road."

The citizen in the street, being handed the slap on the wrist, directly or indirectly, is invariably puzzled.

Only a fortnight or so ago, an Air Corps notable, sounding off in the British Isles, issued optimistic prophecies about the date on which Germany would be rendered helpless by bombing—spring of '44—which couldn't help having their effect on the man in the street.

Certain very striking events on the Russian Front, where the major portion of the German Wehrmacht is reputedly deployed, have also come to the citizen's attention. He remembers that this is total war, that Russian victories are bad news in Berlin, that in another month of October, 25 years ago, bad news panicked the Germans even though their armies were still plenty strong and theoretically capable of extended resistance.

IT IS QUITE obvious to the citizen that the fighting in Italy is very tough. He is fully aware that the Germans have an excellent army, having had that army's merits and performances publicized into his skull at great length for five years and more. When he sees that army hold us up, as at Salerno, he is fully prepared to be handed a setback—it would not have surprised the citizen to see the Allied invaders bounced back out of the Italian peninsula.

It will, in fact, surprise the citizen if the invaders go ahead, in frontal assault, and crack what has been publicized as a very heavy German defensive position somewhere in the north of Italy—generally and loosely called the "line of the Po." As the man in the street dopes it out, we have gone into Italy (1) to get air bases; (2) to knock the Italians out of the war; (3) to occupy Rome and "liberate" the Pope; (4) to tie up all the German troops we can while we get ready to spring a Sunday, or at least a Saturday, punch somewhere else.

And though the fighting in Italy is tough, the citizen can't help remembering that the fighting in Tunisia was tough, too—it included a couple of hefty reverses for the Americans involved; on the German side there were several troop formations of great experience and renown, and the Germans had a general generally considered to be an ace.

Yet in the end the Germans in Tunisia folded with surprising but gratifying collapsibility.

The citizen in the street has been through quite a little of this war against Germany. He has had experience with several of its aspects apart from the purely military picture.

THERE'S BEEN the submarine warfare. That was a kick in the teeth, indeed. U-boats off Atlantic City. Torpedoings within sight of the coast. Bold, efficient enemy . . . weak, baffled America——

The citizen wasn't sure whether he ever did expect the submarines to be licked.

He was very proud and gratified to find out that they could be, and were licked.

And while he realizes that they may come back again . . . he now expects them to be licked again.

If this is optimism, it is the optimism of experience.

The citizen has seen Britain survive the blitz. He has seen Russia survive two colossal German offensives.

He saw France and a dozen lesser countries go down. But he has the feeling that France was bluffed out of it. He has the feeling that fighting will stop the German.

He has the feeling that the Germans can't take it when the chips are down and the going is very rough. He has the feeling that if the Russians and the British can make the going that rough for the Germans, so can we.

This optimism is the optimism Americans take to any fight. We are built that way. We give this optimism to our sport, to our business, to our politics, to our wars.

When the man in the street is told by one part of our war leadership that we are overoptimistic, while another part is preaching get-victory-quick, the citizen begins to feel it's time for another all-around summary that he can trust . . . and it's pathetic that the only person who hands out those summaries in satisfying form is Mr. Winston Churchill.

Baltic Sea

Ernest Lindley in his very interesting column "Policing the World" on Monday, October 25, states that after the victory over Germany "Britain, the United States, Russia—and smaller nations—could assign forces to police Germany under a central United Nations command," but that "naval forces cannot police Germany, either internally or externally." In the same article, however, Mr. Lindley declares that "Russian policing of the Baltic . . . would fit readily into the American-British policing system."

If, as Mr. Lindley admits, naval forces cannot police Germany "either internally or externally," then against whom will Russia police the Baltic Sea, which is the common domain of all the adjacent Baltic nations, i. e., Denmark, Sweden, Finland, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania and Poland? Latvia and Estonia alone have a sea coast on the Baltic of some 700 miles. Finland and Sweden have the longest coast line, whereas Poland and Lithuania have only narrow exits to the Baltic. Soviet Russia has the port of Leningrad, well protected by the fortress of Kronstadt and with an eastern outlet to the Atlantic via the Baltic-White Sea Canal. The sole outlet of Finland, the Baltic states and Poland to the Atlantic Ocean, however, are the Danish Straits and the Kiel Canal, the latter held by Germany. After the First World War the Kiel Canal was proclaimed to be of international importance and open to all nations. Germany eventually defied this ruling and closed the Baltic Sea. After this war it would undoubtedly be of vital importance for the states adjacent to the Baltic Sea, including Soviet Russia, to secure free passage through the Kiel Canal and the Danish Straits.

To our understanding the freedom of the Baltic Sea would be of great importance also for other European powers owing to the fact that the states on the Baltic Sea not only import industrial goods, but also export timber, pulp, paper, flax and, primarily, agricultural products, such as butter, bacon, eggs, hams, seeds, fish products, etc. In view of the above it only stands to reason that these countries should share in sustaining this maritime freedom as otherwise the Baltic Sea would be transformed into a Russian lake, with ill consequences resulting therefrom to the smaller states on the Baltic.

There is sufficient proof that such collective cooperation between the states adjacent to the Baltic Sea already existed before the outbreak of this war, for example, in the form of the convention relating to the nonfortification and neutralization of the Aland Islands, and the convention defining the status of the port of Klaipeda (Memel). These conventions were of an international nature, the Aland convention having been signed by Great Britain, France, Italy, Germany, Denmark, Estonia, Latvia, Finland, Poland and Sweden. Russia had assumed the same obligations regarding the Aland Islands already in 1856. In addition to these purely political conventions, also geodetic and anti-alcohol contraband conventions were signed.

These precedents could be followed in settling the status of the Baltic Sea after this war, without giving unnecessary preponderance to one state, especially as the greatest menace to the freedom of the Baltic—Germany would be eliminated.

Peace Plans

I read Mr. Karl F. Herrfeld's letter to you in your issue of the 16th. I am amazed that there are still people who believe that Germany is only "ill from nazism" and that once this "bacteria" is "eliminated" the patient will recover.

Nazism, as has been shown in many articles and books, is only an outgrowth of Prussian militarism, whose policy for centuries has been expansion without regard to the means by which such expansion could be accomplished. After the Junkers and their henchmen had lost the war in 1918, they naturally had to keep quiet for a while, but they were fortunate enough to find in Hitler a man from the masses who could spread their gospel and revive militarism.

If the Allies do not put in controls of the type Mr. Lippmann suggests, the patient, after elimination of the Nazi "bacteria," will readily become the victim of a much more deeply entrenched disease, that of Prussian militarism, and World War III will be in full preparation within a short while.

I do not think that Mr. Lippmann wants "to weaken Germany economically," but only demands certain controls. Considering the accounts various German governments and German big business have given of themselves in the 20 years between the two World Wars, the necessity of strict supervision seems to be clearly proven.

Danish Jews

By Paul Winkler

Germany's Pogrom

GERMANY'S ruthless pogrom against the Danish Jews provides an instance of the subtlety of the methods by which the Nazis try to achieve their aims.

Nazi anti-Semitism was not fostered simply for its open and obvious purpose of striking at Jews. It had other indirect objectives. For countries other than Germany it had propaganda value: that is, it encouraged the idea that nazism was directed only against a minority group. It served also to rouse anti-Semitism everywhere, creating divisions in nations potentially or actually hostile to Germany.

In the Reich itself, applied anti-Semitism served several purposes: it created an artificial superiority complex in the minds of all non-Jewish Germans; it permitted an attack on the laws protecting the civil liberties of all citizens by first breaching those laws in the case of a defenseless minority of citizens; it served the incidental purpose of securing for the Nazi Party leaders the assets of the victims.

In Denmark, too, the outburst of anti-Semitism did not arise simply from a desire to stamp out Danish Jews. It was undertaken as a means of securing German objectives in that country.

ALL GERMANY'S efforts have failed to establish a satisfactory Quisling government in Denmark. King Christian, though he was obliged to bow to the occupation of the country, has been an unaccommodating host. It proved impossible to impose an out-and-out Nazi Premier on Denmark, and Erik Scavenius, the closest approach to a Nazi whom the Germans could force on the Danes, was unable or unwilling to go as far as Berlin wanted him to. Danish resistance to the occupation today is stronger than ever.

Germany realizes that her time is growing short, that sooner or later she will have to admit military defeat. If she wishes, as she does, to hold onto some of the spoils of her conquest even after her surrender, she must secure them now as firmly as possible. In the case of Denmark, that means she needs a collaborationist government, which, like the government of Vichy, will turn over Danish economy to her, and link Danish industries into German-dominated cartels with an appearance of legality which will make it difficult after the peace to revise those arrangements.

Her problem was to find some new means of bringing pressure to bear on Denmark. The method adopted was the attack on Denmark's Jews.

THERE WERE NOT Jews in Denmark—6000 Danes plus 2000 refugees from Norway. Many of them were prominent in art and literature. The Danes had always protected their Jewish compatriots, and the Germans therefore conceived the idea of blackmailing the Danes into collaboration by threatening to extend anti-Semitic measures to Denmark if the Danes failed to give way.

On September 9 Dr. Werner Best, German civil governor of Denmark, called the heads of 18 governmental departments together and communicated to them an ultimatum from Hitler stating that if a collaborationist government were not immediately established in Denmark she would be subjected to the same regime as other occupied countries, beginning with application of anti-Semitic measures. The 18 department heads immediately announced they would resign. Dr. Best said that if they did so they would be executed. Therefore they remained at their posts but continued to refuse collaboration. The German threat was then put into execution.

Gestapo agents seized birth, death and marriage registers to track down the Jews of Denmark. Three thousand Gestapo officers, aided by a large number of SS men who had helped in the liquidation of Norwegian Jews, made day and night searches of Jewish homes. Men and women 70 and 80 years old were dragged from homes for the aged and carried away in Gestapo cars. Members of the Danish Free Corps (composed of the rare Danish Nazis, plus Germans living in Denmark) aided in this work. The arrested Jews were told to wear warm clothing and take seven days' food. They were put on deportation vessels and carried away, reportedly to Poland and its lethal chambers.

The Danes who had not given way at the threat did not yield, either, at its execution. But the whole population organized to fight the pogrom. An underground railway to Sweden was organized, over which 3000 to 3500 Jews escaped, or approximately half of Denmark's Jews. The Danish underground, though less well organized than the resistance groups of Norway, Holland and France, succeeded in such coups as breaking open the doors of a prison and letting 10 Jews escape, and in killing the driver and guard of a Gestapo car in order to spirit its occupants into Sweden.

The thousands who escaped have been received hospitably by the Swedes, who found work for those able to do it, while those who were not were sheltered on large estates in southern Sweden. In Swedish governmental offices, the determination is tightening to cooperate in no way with a nation which employs such ruthless and inhumane methods in the pursuance of its aims.

Allies In Italy

By Ernest Lindley

Relations With Badoglio

AS A PARTIAL GUIDE to future developments, it may be helpful to list the principal agencies now concerned with the government of those portions of Italy which are under Allied control:

LINDLEY

(1) The Allied military commission which maintains liaison between Badoglio and General Eisenhower. This commission enforces the armistice terms and at the same time guides the Badoglio government in the performance of its duties as a cobelligerent.

(2) The Mediterranean Commission, composed of one representative each of the Soviet Union, Great Britain, the French National Committee of Liberation, and the United States. This is a diplomatic or political group organized at the suggestion of Moscow, which wishes to have it invested with real authority. The United States and Britain, however, have insisted that its members should confine themselves to observing and reporting to their respective governments.

(3) The Allied Military Government (AMG) for administering liberated territory behind the battlefronts. To the utmost extent AMG utilizes the existing Italian machinery of local government, after replacing officials known as convinced and active Fascists.

(4) The Allied field commanders who control everything near the fighting fronts.

(5) The Badoglio government.

At present AMG administers Sicily and all of the peninsula which has been liberated except the compartment, or department, of Apulia. Apulia extends along the Adriatic coast from the heel part way up the calf of the boot, and contains the provinces of Foggia, Bari, Otranto, Taranto and Brindisi. According to official sources in Washington, the Badoglio government administers Apulia, which is about one-fifth of the area so far liberated and about one-twentieth of the peninsula. Also, apparently, it has direct control over the island of Sardinia.

This is not a fixed division of authority. Leopold Piccardi, a member of the Badoglio cabinet, has been working in Naples with AMG, and Crown Prince Umberto has had a popular welcome there. Presumably, if the Badoglio government performs satisfactorily, it will be permitted to take over gradually a larger part of the Italian administrative burden.

THE BADOGLIO government, however, is a small-sized affair. The fall of Mussolini and the Fascist hierarchy carried away the top of the political apparatus which had run Italy for 21 years. Badoglio contrived a makeshift cabinet, composed chiefly of professional civil servants, men of technical competence not too closely identified with Fascist politics. As a stop-gap this cabinet might have sufficed. But when the Germans took Rome, only three of its members managed to escape with the King and Badoglio: the ministers of navy, of aeronautics and of industry, commerce and labor.

The bulk of the lesser officials and clerks and their records, essential to effective administration, remained in the capital. Rome, moreover, was the hub of Italy's transport and communications system.

So Badoglio lacks the administrators, the clerks, the communications, and the records and other equipment essential to effective internal administration. What is probably even more important at this stage, he lacks a council or cabinet representative of the various Italian political factions. Twice in recent weeks he has promised to take into his ministry representatives of the Liberal, Christian-Social, Socialist, Communist, and Action parties. Some, like Count Sforza, Fascism's most distinguished and influential exile, are willing to collaborate with Badoglio in the liberation of Italy, but are unwilling to take any appointment under the King. The liberal radical centers of Italy, from which new blood for the cabinet should be drawn, are in the industrial north, sealed off from Badoglio by the German lines.

When Badoglio took power, he granted a political amnesty. Anti-Fascist leaders came out of prison, exile, and the underground. At the same time, he outlawed political activities, ordering all to rally behind the King and against the Germans. The order was observed, the ban on political activity was not. Even Badoglio winked at it. To put down a general strike, he publicly cited an appeal for work and support of him issued by the anti-Fascist parties he had outlawed. (At the time, it was thought the strike was inspired by anti-Fascists; later evidence indicates it probably was prompted by die-hard Fascists.)

Badoglio now construed that appeal as a formal pledge of collaboration and the basis for his projected coalition government. But some of the anti-Fascist leaders have not been heard from since the armistice. Some are believed to have been killed by the Fascists or by Germans. Others may have fled to Switzerland or gone underground again.

EXTERNAL SIGNS indicate a division of the left over collaboration. Even before Mussolini's fall the Italian Communists called for and claimed to have organized a united anti-Fascist front. The Italian Socialists, however, have denounced this as a snare. The Soviet government approved the armistice terms and joined in accepting Italy's cobelligerency. But it has evinced disfavor of AMG. There has been no clearcut Communist reaction yet to Badoglio's recent interview putting himself strongly on record against Communism for Italy.

As the Allied armies push their way up the peninsula the situation may be clarified. Badoglio's prestige ought to be greater when he can again govern from Rome. By one means or another the leftist parties will decide whether to associate themselves formally with him. The conference of foreign ministers at Moscow may have a bearing on his future.

Statue of Liberty 'Lit Up' on Birthday

New York, Oct. 28 (INS).—There was a party for a prominent lady in New York today and, frankly, the lady got a bit lit up.

The lady in the case is the Statue of Liberty, dedicated just fifty-seven years ago.

Her torch has been blacked out for almost two years, and today's "glow" was just temporary—just for the birthday celebration.

Pent-up Demand Is Greatest for Auto Tires, Stockings, Refrigerators, Washing Machines

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 28.—Topping the list of products which American families say they need very much right now and cannot obtain are automobile tires and tubes, stockings, either silk or nylon, refrigerators, automobiles, washing machines and electric irons.

In the struggle to provide the armed forces with vital materials, the civilian population has had to get along as best it could without many articles formerly available.

But the time has come now when the Government is beginning to see the need to supply some of the wants of the people at home.

Some idea of the extent of these needs has been gained by the institute, which, through its Nation-wide fact-finding machinery, put the following question to a representative cross-section of the American people:

"Aside from food, what things that you need very much right now for your home or family would you buy if you could get them?"

The products mentioned by the persons interviewed represent those uppermost in their minds at the time of the interview. Many items of lesser importance would come to light in a more careful inventory.

The list of needs, based on estimates from institute findings, will be helpful not only for those planning civilian production, but also for those who are planning for America's post-war needs.

Here is a list of items which people say they need, with a rough approximation of the number of families that would like to buy them:

TIRES AND TUBES: 2,700,000.

STOCKINGS (silk or nylon): 2,300,000.

REFRIGERATORS (electric or gas): 2,100,000. About 400,000 more need parts or repairs.

AUTOMOBILES: 2,000,000. About 200,000 more need parts or repairs.

WASHING MACHINES: 2,000,000. About 300,000 more need parts or repairs.

ELECTRIC IRONS: 2,000,000. About 300,000 need parts or repairs.

SHOES: 1,900,000.

"BOBBY" PINS, HAIRPINS: 1,900,000.

STOVES (coal, gas or electric): 1,600,000. About 200,000 more need stove parts or repairs.

KITCHEN UTENSILS (aluminum pans, pressure cookers, tea kettles, coffee pots, etc.): 1,400,000.

ELASTIC ARTICLES (garters, girdles, suspenders, etc.): 1,300,000.

RADIOS: 1,100,000. About 500,000 more need parts or repairs, tubes especially.

Other items, needed by an estimated 900,000 or less for each item, include safety pins, straight pins, electrical appliances (sockets, switches, extension cord, etc.), vacuum cleaners, furnaces or heaters (coal, oil, gas or electric), alarm clocks, plumbing, scouring pad, fencing, wash tubs, tools, etc.

Truman Unit Demands Survey Of War Plants to Release Labor

By the Associated Press

The Senate's Truman Committee, told of Manpower Commission plans to lop 10,000 men off the hiring goals of one Texas airplane plant, called yesterday for a broad survey to turn up similar chances elsewhere.

The survey was projected after Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt testified on the case of the North American Aviation plant at Dallas, Texas.

McNutt told the committee he would remove the designation of Dallas as a "critical labor area" on the basis of a recommendation from Charles E. Wilson, War Production Board executive vice chairman, that a reduction of force at the North American Aviation plant is advisable.

Truman Asks Survey

Chairman Truman (Democrat) of Missouri remarked that Wilson "an able production expert," should be asked to make personal studies of 71 other "critical labor areas" with a view to "efficient utilization of employes."

The Dallas plant, said Truman, is one "of a thousand that need to be investigated" in airplane, shipping and other industries. He said Dallas was designated a "critical area" solely because the North American plant said it would need "many thousands of additional employes."

On the other side of the aircraft-manpower picture, James F. Byrnes, the War Mobilization Director, said yesterday that Selective Service will defer from the draft "all necessary workers in West Coast airplane plants, including their production subcontractors."

Byrnes Aids West Coast

The West Coast aircraft industry has reported trouble in meeting production schedules because of lack of manpower. Byrnes' statement added:

"I hope that workers in these plants will settle down, stay on the job and produce to the limit. No weapon being produced today is more important than aircraft and every possible increase in output is important."

As for the Dallas situation, McNutt told the committee the job of seeing that labor is "utilized efficiently" and that requests from war plants for additional employes are reasonable were functions of "Army and Navy procurement officials."

He said his own job was simply to meet requests.

"The effect of this investigation," Senator Wallgren (Democrat), Washington, asserted, "is that 10,000 workers will be available for other war industries in the Dallas area and the Government will ultimately save $500,000 a week in salaries at the avfation plant."

"Think what could be saved by a resurvey of the entire country," remarked Senator Ferguson (Republican), Michigan.

Working Hour Law Violation Laid To U. S. Cafeterias

A complaint was filed yesterday in Municipal Court charging that the Welfare Recreation Association of Public Buildings, Inc., violated the eight-hour work day act in the employment of 65 women clerks.

The case, filed by the District Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board, states that women in restaurants, cafeterias and factories here cannot work more than eight hours a day, and that clerical employes in such places are subject to the law.

Capt. F. W. Hoover, general manager of the welfare association, agreed with the board to designate issues in question and submit them to the court, which is to rule on the matter next month. Hoover's office contends that clerical employes are not subject to the eight-hour law.

2 Government Girls Give Blood 9th Time

Nancy Pilcher and Emma Cage of 2115 Pennsylvania ave. nw., employes of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, each donated her ninth pint of blood to the plasma bank of the Red Cross yesterday. Both have been regular donors since Pearl Harbor and are members of the Gallon Club.

The two young women were among 25 employes of the bureau who gave their blood at the donor center, 51 Louisiana ave. nw. The total donations made by men and women from this one agency now number 1001. For 40 weeks, beginning last January 20, employes of the bureau have been assembling at the center each week.

Dubose Quits Shipyard For Active Duty

Philadelphia, Oct. 28 (AP).—Rear Admiral William G. Dubose, chairman of the executive committee and director of the Cramp Shipbuilding Co., has been recalled for active duty and has resigned from Cramp's, it was announced today by Joseph P. Ripley, chairman of the company.

Admiral Dubose has been with the company since the yard was reopened in October, 1940, and has served both as president and chairman of the executive committee.

Strike Halts Chrysler Overseas Shipments

Detroit, Oct. 28 (AP).—A strike of 115 Negro employes on one of two export boxing assembly lines at the Dodge truck plant after a Negro woman was discharged this morning halted all overseas shipping operations at the plant, a Chrysler Corp. spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the strikers forced some 450 workers on two export lines to quit their jobs, surrounding white workers and shouting, "everyone go home."

"PISTOL PACKIN'" PEDIGREE. Mayfair's Dick Abbott, one of the town's few maestros who'll have no truck with "Pistol Packin' Mamma," says, "The dang thing is not only a full steal from Wendell Hall's 'It Ain't Gonna Rain No Mo' of prohibition days, but Hall swiped it from a confection called 'Whang Away, My Lulu' that was much favored in the less select sections of New Orleans about the time Al Jolson was born" . . . Don't say we don't give you high class information.

Willie Leono's Rumba Band with Singer Anita Rabal will arrive at the Copocabana on Monday. This is the same Leono Band formerly featured at the Trocadero in New York.

"CAUCASIAN REVUE" will open at the Balalaika on Monday. It'll be a series of bright flashes of Russian life in the Caucasus with Venesko's violin and the Balalaika Orchestra of Gregory Titoff providing the Slavic musical fire. First presentation of the show will be held at the Stage Door Canteen on Sunday night.

ELAINE MOORE, the lovely eyeful singing at the King Cole Room.

FRESH AND PRETTY FACES. Lynn Allison of the Capitol Theater also will be a part of the Olmsted Club show come Monday . . . Bette Blue, formerly of Bunny Berigan's Band and Restaurant "400" is the new singer with Washie Bratcher's Band at the Washington Hotel . . . The charming new violinist at the Old New Orleans is Barbara Williams.

Tomorrow's prize event is the Neptune Room's presentation of Leslie and Lee Miller, Continental piano-organ duo, plus those American piano and harmonica cut-ups, Harris and Allen.

EXCITING VISITORS. Lieut. Bob Rodenburg, former husband of Anne Kiess of the Stork Club, was two-soming with Singer Caro Paige in the Mayflower Lounge the other afternoon . . . Bob Calvert, former columnist with the Baltimore Evening Post and just out of the Army, was appraising Rocco Terrone's clever afternoon broadcast at Treasure Island. There also we saw Norah Welles, red-haired star of the Lamplighters' Club.

GLORIFYING THE LOBSTER. It's always been our contention that the Troika chef has a touch with lobsters that outclasses anything hereabouts. But the Ruby Foo chefs have lobster tricks up their oriental sleeves, too. As witness their subtly flavored lobster, Chinese style. Order it with the shells removed if you're in an indolent mood.

Dances Slated For Halloween

Dances for personnel of the armed forces have a prominent place on the Halloween entertainment calendar. At most, civilians will be among the guests, but at one, that of the USO 1911 H st. nw., no person in "civies" will be on the dance floor.

Many entertainments are scheduled. Some were held last night, and others will be held tonight and tomorrow night.

Among those to be held tonight is the dance at the Thomson Recreation Center, 12th and L sts. nw., for servicemen in the District and nearby camps. It is sponsored by the D. C. Recreation Department's Woman's Battalion. Music will be provided by the Navy Yard School of Music Dance Orchestra.

Other events include a dance tonight at Wave Headquarters "," 18th and G sts. nw. Tomorrow night the USO Club, 1736 G st. nw. have a dance.

A dance for service men and women will be held at the USO Club, 1911 H st. nw., tomorrow night. A feature will be old-fashioned square dances. Miss Barbara Feiker, 2137 Bancroft pl., will call the moves.

Upper classmen of Dunbarton College will entertain freshmen at a Halloween party at the college tonight.

The Filipino Executive Council will celebrate Halloween with a dance at the Hotel 2400, 16th st. and Kalorama rd. nw. tomorrow night. Arrangements are being made by Osmundo Reynante, director of the social and literary department of the council.

The Texas Society of Washington will have a party tomorrow in the Grand Ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel. Among the guests will be Senator Connally, Sam Rayburn, Speaker of the House; Marvin Jones, War Food Administrator, and Representative Hatton Sumners.

Edward Sotto of Annandale, Va., will be the guest of honor tonight at the Halloween party of the Aacomis Club in the old Land Office Building, 8th and E sts. nw. He will give a chalk talk, including cartoons of notables.

Store Stocks Here Average 14% Lower

By S. Oliver Goodman

The Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday that stocks of goods on hand in Washington department stores at the end of September were 14 per cent less than at the same time last year. Inventories of all Fifth Reserve District stores averaged 5 per cent lower at the same time.

Outstanding orders of local stores to replenish stocks were reported 130 per cent heavier at the end of the month, while the entire Fifth District averaged 127 per cent heavier orders.

Continued improvement in collections was noted in September. Washingtonians paid 61 per cent of charge accounts due on September 1 during the month, against 55 per cent payment in the same month last year.

As reported previously, local store sales in September were 9 per cent larger than in the corresponding month last year. The Reserve district as a whole showed a 12 per cent increase in the same month.

Sales for the first nine months this year were 7 per cent heavier here and 14 per cent improved in the Fifth District.

Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

Margin Rules Tightened

The New York Stock Exchange yesterday tightened restrictions governing trading in securities before they are issued by advising members to require, wherever possible, that 40 per cent margin be provided by purchasers of "when-issued" securities, the same as required for ordinary transactions.

Heretofore members have accepted unmargined orders for such securities because payment ordinarily would not be required until certificates are ready for delivery.

Myce Named to Board

Peter Q. Nyce, Washington attorney, has been elected a director of the Independent Petroleum Association of America. Ralph Zook of Bradford, Pa., was elected president of the association at a meeting in Fort Worth, Tex., this week.

Reliable Stores Net Gains

Reliable Store Corp., which operates retail furniture outlets in Washington, yesterday reported net income of $249,119 for the three months ended September 30. This compares with $7638 loss for the corresponding quarter last year.

Consolidated net sales for the quarter amounted to $2,725,626, against $2,542,561 last year.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Leo Durocher calls his new contract as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers "the best contract I've ever had in baseball," which is sort of strange inasmuch as Durocher was in no position to bargain for a whopping contract.

POVICH

Only a few weeks before, Durocher had been publicly taken down a peg by General Manager Branch Rickey who fired him as manager of the Dodgers. Rickey indicated that he might talk terms with Durocher as a bench manager instead of a playing manager, but meanwhile the Lip was very much out of a job. He couldn't talk from the vantage point of a guy in great demand when he was being rehired by Rickey.

Tom Meany of PM suggests however, that Durocher can rightfully feel that the contract he finally signed was "the best contract I've ever had in baseball." Seemingly Durocher needed that contract more than any other one he had ever signed, without regard to the salary terms. He made no bones about wanting, badly, and for his part it could be the best one.

There are no signs that Rickey is any less astute a baseball man for signing Durocher again. Rickey was rapidly being confronted with a situation in Brooklyn. The town's best days were those of the pre-Rickey era. The customers began to date the Dodgers decline from the time that Rickey took over.

Rickey, by signing Durocher, preserved some of that pre-Rickey atmosphere in Brooklyn. Already he had traded off Dolph Camilli and Ducky Medwick, fond Brooklyn landmarks, and the customers were beginning to resent the Rickey influence. With Durocher around, at least some of the old ties are saved.

The midsummer revolution which for a time threatened Durocher's job apparently was outweighed in Rickey's mind by the manner in which the Lip took over thereafter, and made a tolerably good finish with the Dodgers. Rickey may not have admired Durocher as a substantial man of the community, like himself, but he admired the way the Lip ran the ball team from 3 to 5 o'clock.

Durocher was on trial, incidentally, from the start of the season. When he was rehired as manager last spring after being rejected by the Army, the Lip promised Rickey that he would stop the card-playing and horse-betting among the ball players. Race track bookies would be kept out of the dressing rooms, and a 15-cnt limit would be the extent of the players' poker games. Apparently Durocher made good on those promises.

Nothing ever goes off completely smoothly in Brooklyn, however, and the rehiring of Durocher was not without its incident. When the Lip was interviewed by baseball writers as to his relations with the players, he said "I like all of the players except one," thereby setting off a frenzy to discover who was The Player Durocher Doesn't Like."

The Lip admitted he was called down by Rickey for making that statement, and agrees he shouldn't have said it. However, the first player Durocher trades away from the Dodgers will probably be labeled as The Guy Durocher Doesn't Like. He could join a long list, incidentally, of Guys Who Don't Like Durocher.

On his own ball club, Durocher isn't the world's sweetest character, according to many of his players and former players. It is pretty significant that when Durocher suspended Buck Newsom last summer, the Lip's other players took sides, chose between Durocher and Newsom, and refused to take the field for the next game until Branch Rickey interceded.

Whereas the respect for Durocher as a swell guy isn't unanimous among his ball players, there never has been any loud squawk about the way the Lip runs his ball team when the game commences. He didn't permit last summer's rebellion to affect his baseball judgment and the Dodgers did very well for the rest of the season with Durocher calling the plays. The control of the club which he had lost earlier in the season, he regained.

Rickey has fired many managers on less excuse than Durocher offered him. He fired pennant-winning managers at St. Louis, who had been mixed up in no such items as player revolutions. It is some kind of a tribute to the Lip that Rickey only made a pretense of firing him and then reengaged him for 1944. Maybe he's a good manager.

Penn vs. Army Gives O'Dell Chance to Further Rib Brother

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Oct. 28 (AP).—Bob Odell, who as a blocking quarterback for Penn this year has called his own signal only 11 times in five games—and has gained 178 yards—gets another chance Saturday to upset his brother, Yale Coach Howie.

The red and blue captain-designate for the Army game, who donned the uniform of a Navy preflight preparatory school student today, has been on the winning side of their brotherly feud when Penn thumped Yale twice in the past two years.

He can be on the winning side again if Penn upsets Army, since Howie, after watching Yale lose to Penn, 41-7 and to Army 39-7, voiced the opinion that Army would win when the two unbeaten teams meet in Franklin Field before an expected crowd of 70,000.

Gave Up Tailback Post

Despite his average of 16 yards each time he has carried the ball, Bob has not been the offensive star he was last year as Penn's tailback and top ground gainer, with 428 yards in 33 chances. He voluntarily gave up the tailback post when Coach George Munger decided he needed someone to clear the way for Joe Kane, the East's leading scorer; Joe Michaels and the rest of Penn's hard running backs.

Bob's 185 pounds are packed solidly in a 5-foot-11 frame, ideally suited for blocking. Several times he has been able to remove one tackler, then get in front of the ball carrier again to block another. His signal calling has been recognized as expert, and as a defensive safety man he hasn't missed a tackle in two years, his coach reports.

With all these jobs, Odell remains a dangerous runner. Against Princeton he ran 80 yards for a touchdown from punt formation. Against Lakehurst Naval he ran back a punt 65 yards for another score.

Crossed Up Opposition

In the Dartmouth game, Penn's toughest foe to date, he dropped back in punt formation deep in his own territory, remarking to a teammate, "this will look pretty silly if it doesn't work." Then he ran 68 yards before he was driven out of bounds.

Should he change from blocker to ball carrier Saturday it would not be without precedent on Franklin Field. Many Penn followers still shudder when they remember the day a great blocker named Marty Brill came here with a Rockne-coached Notre Dame team—and ran and passed Penn to one of its worst defeats.

Nick Latsios In Semifinal At Turner's

Nick Latsios, former Alexandrian now with the Army Air Force at Bolling Field, who has a record of 13 straight professional ring victories, will meet Tommy Mollis, a tough Baltimore welterweight in the six round semi-final of Promoter Joe Turner's Monday night fight card at Turner's Arena. Clent Conway, Newark soldier, and Perk Daniels, Chicago heavyweight, will meet in the 10-round feature bout.

Daniels, under the managership of Chris Dundee, holds a victory over Conway scored last winter. He has also whipped Curtis Sheppard. Daniels is due to arrive today and will drill at Turner's this afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Another six-rounder pairs off another pair of heavyweights with Dan Biggers of Baltimore meeting Walter Hafer, a local product.

Lou Little Ill, Ordered to Bed

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—Lou Little, who has been coaching the Columbia football team this fall although not fully recovered from a mid-summer throat operation, has been ordered to bed by his doctor. Sam Cordovano, line coach of the Lions, will be in charge when the club plays Cornell Saturday at Ithaca.

Little, unable to speak above a whisper since the operation, also is suffering from a sinus condition and a heavy cold.

Army, Irish Liked Over Penn, Navy

By Caswell Adams

New York, Oct. 28 (INS).—The two big football games this weekend concern four of the 16 undefeated and untied teams in th eland this scrambled season—Army and Pennsylvania, and Notre Dame and Navy.

This is the beginning of a round-robin among the four, because next week the Army and Notre Dame will tangle while Navy is unravelling Penn, and late next month the Army and the Navy will meet in silly secrecy at West Point.

Bertelli's Farewell

But this Saturday, out in Cleveland's mammoth Municipal Stadium, Notre Dame will act as host to unwhipped Navy. The naval and Marine moguls say that this will be the last game for Angelo Bertelli, Notre Dame's backfield genius. They say he will be shipped out of South Bend before the Army game. Which means that Angelo will play plenty against the Midshipmen and that he will go all out the minutes he's in there. Which means that Notre Dame will beat the Navy, about 20 to 3.

Down at Franklin Field in Philadelphia unbeaten Penn, which had a hard time getting by Dartmouth, will tackle the Army, which last week allowed a touchdown to woeful Yale. There will be more than 70,000 persons in the gigantic stadium to see this, and the guess here is that Glenn Davis and Minor and that wonderful Army line will stifle Penn's Kane and Odell about 20 to 9. The World Series of football, fittingly in this war year, will be between Army and Notre Dame, who always pack the place anyway.

L. S. U. Battles T. C. U.

There are other games in the country which will attract attention, such as Louisiana State against Texas Christian University Saturday night. Both have succumbed to Texas A. and M., which will bludgeon Arkansas. Cornell ought to bounce right back after the Colgate surprise and stiffen weak Columbia at Ithaca without drawing a deep breath and the same holds for Southern California, conqueror of College of the Pacific on a disputed pass, over California.

The complete list of predictions:

EAST
Cornell over Columbia.
Colgate over Holy Cross.
Bucknell over Muhlenberg.
Army over Pennsylvania.
Penn State over West Virginia.
Pittsburgh over Carnegie Tech.
Brown over Princeton.
Rochester over Case.
Dartmouth over Yale.
Lehigh over Rutgers.

WEST
Michigan over Illinois.
Notre Dame over Navy.
Northwestern over Minnesota.
Indiana over Ohio State.
Purdue over Wisconsin.
Great Lakes over Western Michigan.
Iowa Pre-Flight over Fort Riley.
Marquette over Denver.
Nebraska over Missouri.

SOUTH
Camp Lejeune over Camp Davis.
Clemson over Wake Forest.
Duke over Georgia Tech.
Texas Christian over Louisiana State.
North Carolina over North Carolina State.
Tulane over Georgia Pre-Flight.
Virginia over V. M. I.

SOUTHWEST
Texas A. and M. over Arkansas.
North Texas Aggies over Blackland Air.
Texas Tech over Rice.
Texas over Southern Methodist.
Southwestern over Tulsa.

FAR WEST
U. S. C. over California.
St. Mary's Pre-Flight over March Field.
U. C. L. A. over San Diego Naval.
Alameda Coast Guard over Nevada.

Dr. Spears Takes Grid Squad of 25 To Greenville

College Park, Md., Oct. 28 (AP).—The University of Maryland football team of College Park today for Greenville, S. C., where the Old Liners will play the Greenville Army Air Base team Saturday.

About 25 players were in the party, headed by Coach Dr. Clarence E. Spears.

Work this week was confined primarily to indoor signal drills because of the bad weather, the last workout coming at 9:30 o'clock this morning.

Dr. Spears shifted his offensive formation again, returning to the single wing back-slanced formation used earlier in the season. New plays were given the Liners.

Maryland was expected to throw the same startin line-up against the Greenville team as faced Penn State last week. This line-up has Doory and Daly at ends; Zetts and Cooper at tackles; Karangelen and Teslovich at guards; Gurson at center; Makar at quarterback; Tushak and Ryan at the halves, and Pirronello at fullback.

Game Canceled

New River, N. C., Oct. 28 (AP).—Capt. Arthur Nelson, recreation officer, announced today that the football game scheduled to be played here November 6 between the Camp Lejeune Marines and the Norfolk (Va.) Fleet Marines had been canceled at the request of Norfolk.

Navy Takes 44 Players To Cleveland

Annapolis, Oct. 28 (AP).—Navy's football squad left late this afternoon for Cleveland where the Middies will meet an undefeated Notre Dame team on Saturday afternoon.

Among the 44 members of the Tar squad making the trip were backs Jim Pettit and Bob Jenkins, reported by Capt. John E. Whelchel, head football coach, yesterday as unable to make the trip because of injuries suffered in the Duke game.

He said he did not know whether he would use either one of the boys or not, because he did not want to aggravate their injuries.

Pettit had an injured leg, while Jenkins was recovering from a back injury.

Compares Scores

While the general public may be wondering what's going to happen when Navy and Notre Dame—two of the Nation's few undefeated football teams—clash at Cleveland, Whelchel apparently is spending his time in figuring out ways to upset the vaunted Irish.

He declined any comment when asked to make some prediction on the game's outcome, but by way of indicating how he sized up Navy's chances he did say:

"Notre Dame beat Georgia Tech 55 to 13, Navy beat the Engineers 28 to 14. That's about how we stack up with the Irishmen."

But "Billick" Whelchel is noted more for the way in which he talks about what he "doesn't" have than for what he actually has in the way of football material.

Irish Lead, 13 to 3

So the absence of optimism in his conversations may indicate this—that he has some tricks in his cap that he's been saving for this game.

As the Midshipmen's regiment gathered with the team in front of Bancroft Hall late this afternoon for a pep rally before the Middies set out for Washington where they will leave for Cleveland, Whelchel released the list of players making the trip.

Ends—Channell, Hansen, Anania, Giorgis, Johnston, Bramlett, Guy, Strong. Tackles—Sprinkle, Schwartz, Staubitz, Sevier, Gillooly, Whitmire, Coppedge, Dietzen. Guards—Brown, Brightman, Gillchrist, Steves, Chase, Gilliam, Radick, Shepard. Centers—J. Martin, Baker, Wilhelm, Barnes. Backs—B. Martin, Barron, Gay, Johnson, Nelson, Dwyer, Duden, Lawrence, Hume, Sullivan, Finos, Walton, Hamberg, Crawley, Jenkins, Pettit.

Culler, Swift Sent To Milwaukee Club

Milwaukee, Oct. 28 (AP).—President Bill Veeck, of the Milwaukee Brewers, announced today that he obtained Dick Culler, an infielder, and Bill Swift, a pitcher, from the Chicago White Sox.

The men, who will report next spring, are part payment for Grey Clarke, Milwaukee Brewer third baseman, who was sold to the White Sox recently, Veeck said. Both played with St. Paul before going to the White Sox last year.

Gibson, Redskin End, Shifted to Backfield

Lack of a capable substitute for Ray Hare, Redskins' blocking back who has had little rest in exhibition and league games this year, has prompted a shift of Joe Gibson, the big fellow purchased from the Brooklyn Dodgers as an end, to the blocking back position.

Gibson, idle for three weeks with a lingering leg injury, a form of charley horse, carries 210-pounds on his 6-foot-3 frame and had four years experience at Tulsa University in the backfield, carrying the ball when not in a blocking role.

The Cleveland Rams converted Gibson to an end last year and he came here from the Dodgers when the 'Skins were signing ends on an average of one a day. He went to Brooklyn out of the grab bag when Cleveland folded for a year.

Played Against C. U.

Gibson played in the backfield against Coach Dutch Bergman's Catholic University teams and his work as a back was highly recommended to Dutch by George Vik, Bergman's former assistant at C. U, and later coach at Tulsa. Vik is now in the FBI.

To date Hare's only relief at the quarterback spot for the 'Skins has been Coye Dunn, who played only one year of varsity football with Southern California and was with the Los Angeles Bulldogs after leaving college.

Gibson wil relieve Hare Sunday against the Brooklyn Dodgers, according to present plans. Hare played 60 minutes last week and although he can take it a blocking back likes to count on a little relief in a tough ball game.

The Redskin roster has again reached the maximum player limit of 28 with the signing of Georgetown University's outstanding guard, Angelo Paternoster. A naval student in the G. U. Dental School, Paternoster has received permission to play pro football, as the late evening practices and Sunday games do not interfere with his schedule.

Will Play Against Dodgers

One of the finest linemen in the Hoyas' recent grid history, Paternoster has been working out with the team unofficially for two weeks. He will make the trip to Brooklyn and will probably play in his first pro game.

Bergman worked the squad in the Griffith Stadium mud yesterday under the lights, which were required a few minutes after the team reported for its 5:15 practice session. Meanwhile New York papers report the Dodgers have been looking at passes, a la Baugh, in long daily workouts as Coach Pete Cawthon shoots for the first Dodger triumph in six games.

Angott and Ruffin To Meet Nov. 29

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—Sammy Angott, lightweight boxing champion in the eyes of the National Boxing Association, today was matched for a 10-round nontitle bout with Bobby Ruffin of New York in Madison Square Garden, November 29. Both fighters agreed to come in at 137 pounds, 2 pounds above the lightweight limit.

Hart-Dorazio Winner May Get Thompson

By Al Costello

"Turkey" Thompson, sensational Negro knockout artist from Los Angeles, will shortly exhibit his wares in Washington, Promoter Goldie Ahearn announced yesterday, possibly against the winner of next Friday night's Gus Dorazio-Al Hart 12-round return meeting at Uline Arena.

In announcing he had secured the services of the hard punching Thompson, Ahearn also let it be known he also had signed Lee O. Murray, Norwich, Conn., Negro, for a bout here, possibly late next month or early in December.

Ahearn originally intended for the winner of the first Dorazio-Hart fight to meet Jimmy Bivins, Cleveland slugger. The victor, Dorazio, was matched with the Clevelander for October 15, but Gus came down with a bad case of the grippe and the Lew Hanbury-Danny Petro bout was substituted.

Bivins Out

Since, a combination of circumstances has prevented Ahearn from putting in Bivins. Reclassified into 1-A, Bivins is loathe to leave home for any length of time. Furthermore, Bivins doesn't want to fight any more this year. He has made so much money another couple of thousand dollars would place him in a higher income tax bracket and he would, actually, lose money on the deal.

Where Ahearn will stage a bout after November 19, he did not say. As things stand now, Mike Uline, owner of the arena where Goldie presents his shows, has informed Ahearn he must either promote on Monday nights or get out. The Boxing Commission, which has assigned Monday nights to Joe Turner, apparently is not going to permit Ahearn any Monday dates. It is safe to assume Goldie has something up his sleeve other than his arm. Could be an ace. But he isn't talking and continues to plan future boxing shows, apparently unruffled at the Uline edict.

Dorazio Here Monday

Dorazio will arrive here Monday to pick up training at Ahearn's Gym, 419 9th st. nw. He will go through daily drills for the curious each afternoon. Hart, at whose insistence the match was made over the 12-round route instead of the 10 they fought last time, will drill at Ahearn's emporium every other night at 7 o'clock. His Army War College duties will not permit him to leave the post oftener than that but he plans to train on the post with his sparmate, Otis Harris. The big, 227-pound Negro worked last night and will go at it again tomorrow night.

Hart reports himself in the finest shape of his career and is supremely confident of whipping Dorazio this time. He points out the fact he was coming along fast in the last three rounds of their previous scrap and believes he would have put Gus away had the fight gone another couple of rounds.

Irish Work Out Two Hours in Drill for Navy

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 28 (AP).—Notre Dame's undefeated and untied football team went through another two-hour drill today in preparation for the game with Navy at Cleveland Saturday.

Leahy announced he would take 37 men to Cleveland for the tilt with the Middies, who also are unbeaten and untied.

Injuries Hit Hoosiers

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 28 (AP).—Injuries struck Indiana University's football camp today and the Hoosiers lost Ed Scheinbein, regular back, and Paul Davis, reserve back and guard. Scheinbein, a junior, was ordered by his doctors to give up play because of an injured knee. Davis suffered a broken collar bone and will be out for the remainder of the season.

36 PLAYERS NAMED

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 28 (AP).—Coach Elmer Burnham of Purdue named a squad of 36 players tonight to go to Madison for Saturday's football game with Wisconsin, the last for nine members of the Boilermaker squad. The nine, all of whom have been called for duty with the Marines, include Tony Butkovich, Alex Agase and John Genis from the first string.

BADGERS' LINE-UP JUGGLED

Madison, Wis., Oct. 28 (AP).—Coach Harry Stuhldreher counted three new faces on his Wisconsin first string today as he watched the Badgers go through their last heavy drill for Saturday's game with unbeaten Purdue. Bill May took over at quarterback for the varsity, with Dick Prins and Jester Zych on the right side of the line.

Dance Team, Mrs. Ames Trail in Mud

By Walter Haight

Pimlico, Md., Oct. 28.—Royal Prince, a "family horse" owned by Mrs. H. J. Mohr and trained by her son, George, sprang a major upset this afternoon by winning the thirty-first running of the $10,000 added Eastern Shore Handicap. Performing over the same muddy Hilltop track where his sire, Dauber, splashed to his 1938 Preakness victory, Royal Prince finished the 6 furlongs four lengths ahead of his closest opposition.

A crowd of 10,000 saw the chestnut colt close in front of two members of the Longchamps Farms entry, Dance Team and Mrs. Ames. Royal Prince returned a $48.90 mutuel to his scattered backers and was clocked in 1:14 3-5 in the handicap transferred here from Havre de Grace.

Gilbert on Winner

Royal Prince was well handled by the veteran Johnny Gilbert and was in the first flight from the break. Gilbert allowed him to settle into best stride before sending him to the front of E. K. Bryson's Director J. E. approaching the stretch. Once in front, Gilbert kept Royal Prince to a drive. Dance Team was well placed throughout but was no match for the winner while Mrs. Ames came from far back to close full of run.

The victory was a turf feather in the cap of Trainer George Mohr who polished up on his trade around the smaller tracks, particularly Charles Town. This was Royal Prince's fourth victory of the year and his thirteenth outing. His earnings, with $10,850 added today, now total $16,375 for the year.

Ten In Field

The rain and soaked track served to bring eight scratches and left a field of ten to compete for the important money.

Royal Prince's triumph was one of the few for longshots today. Favorites won the first four events.

Alsab is here and Trainer Sarge Swenke had planned to start him in an overnight handicap Saturday but it looks as if track conditions will be too bad . . . Calumet Farm is the leading money-winning stable of the year, with Greentree in second position . . . Mrs. H. P. Bonner, a Texas sportswoman who got into the racing game last year, has plenty of horses now . . . She will take 25 to Tropical Park for the opening December 15 . . . Challamore has been assigned top weight for the $5000 added Heiser Handicap. Jockey Danny Scocca weighed more today than since he started to race—110 pounds . . . Eddie Brennan will be racing secretary at Marlboro . . . Canto Gallo, racing in claiming ranks here, is a half-brother of Alsab and sold for $7500 as a yearling . . . Sergt. Goldie Mitchell, former jockey agent, is furloughing here . . . Lally Collyer, the horse-identifier and clocker, will be missing at Charles Town's December meeting . . . He is devoting all his time to the turf publication, Collyer's Eye . . . Willie Jones, who owns Rouge Dragon, has challenged H. E. Talbott, owner of Brother Jones, to a match steeplechase race . . . However, local officials are not interested . . . John Brennan, who left the tracks to enter the Army, is back and sporting an African campaign ribbon.

Ex-Post Sports Writer Finds Redskin Rooter in Jungle

(The following story was written by Sergt. Bill Burnett, former Washington Post sports writer, now a Marine Corps Combat Correspondent.)

Guadalcanal (Delayed).—The Washington Redskins have the strangest rooters, in the most outlandish places!

The cheering section at this jungle outpost of the U. S. Marines, is a native of Idaho who has never been in the Nation's capital. He thinks the District of Columbia's professional football team is wonderful, though he isn't sure of the names of five men in the 1943 squad.

Corpl. Chet Johnson, USMC of 1033 Mountain ave., Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, became interested in the Redskins because as he says, "they were smart enough to sign plenty of Gonzaga University alumni." His admiration has continued despite the fact the news he gets of them now is months old.

Corporal Johnson was a guard on the same Gonzaga teams which boasted the Hare brothers, Ray and Cece, in the backfield. He hoped to follow them to the Redskins after his last year at Gonzaga but decided to enlist in December, 1941.

"I had already talked to Coach Ray Flaherty—he's another Gonzaga man, you know—and had the promise of a chance to play, but the war ruined that. Maybe I can still make it after the war."

Besides Flaherty, now an officer in the Navy, and the Hare brothers, Corporal Johnson points with considerable pride to two other former Gonzagans who have performed with the Redskin backfield—Max Krause and Ed Justice. The last two left school before he entered, but Tony Canadeo, halfback of the Green Bay Packers, also played with Corporal Johnson.

The training career of "Doc" Mauro, Redskin conditioner, at Gonzaga recalls one of the school's favorite stories to Corporal Johnson.

"Mauro is supposed to have promised the team, in a rash moment, that he would walk home from the game if it beat Washington State one year. It won, all right, and the guys held Mauro to his threat. To had to walk the whole 40 miles from Pullman, Wash., to Spokane."

Schoolboy Grid Teams Face Busy Weekend

3 Interhigh Contests on Schedule

There's going to be a heap of football played on Washington area gridirons today and tomorrow, with three of the highlights those of interhigh competition.

Wilson High, still in the championship running, faces an unpredictable Eastern eleven on the Northeast school's field at 4 p. m. and Tech faces another cellar-dweller, Anacostia, at the same play full time for Anacostia, there

In the Ramblers, Wilson may find something unexpected—even as did Western, for the Red Raiders, tied with Roosevelt for second place in the league, bowed before the Ramblers earlier in the season for their only defeat.

Much Passing Expected

Tech's Trainers uplifted somewhat by their victory over Eastern last week, will meet a team which plays much their brand of football. With Flea Flaherty expected to play full time for Anacastia, there should be passes aplenty floating over the Anacostia Flats and into the flat.

The league-leading Coolidge Colts will be facing their toughest opposition of the season this afternoon when they journey to Ballston to take on those bruising Washington-Lee Generals, which has defeated every District team they've met so far. And Bullis Prep of Silver Spring has an across-the-river game under the Alexandria lights tonight with George Washington High. Bullis has lost only to Washington-Lee in an early season game and seems in fair shape to take this one.

Central High, battered and beaten, will be making a mighty effort to atone tonight when the Vikings engage the traditional rival St. John's eleven in a night game at Griffith Stadium.

The real fur-flying tussle of the high school series should be the game between second-place-tied Western and Roosevelt at Central Stadium at 3 p. m. tomorrow, however, for one of the teams will come out of it minus that second-place toehold.

Jayvee Game Scheduled

There'll be an extra added attraction at the spot game this week, too, for the gates of the stadium will open at 1 p. m. for the junior varsity game between Central and Eastern. Dallas Shirley, director of physical education for senior high schools, said the jayvee games preceding the spot events, are experimental so far and will be continued in the Saturday spots if interest warrants.

Members of jayvee teams are footballers who have not played in any period of a regular game and have not reached their senior year in high school.

Gonzaga High will meet Mount Vernon High at Western Stadium at 3:30 p. m. today and St. Albans move to Baltimore for a game with Friends School there.

On Saturday, Alexandria Episcopal will play host to Randolph Macon Academy and National Training School will meet Devitt at Woodrow Wilson.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PROCLA, $4.30, $3.30, $2.70; GALLANT MOWLEE, $9.60, $5.30; COBEGGO, $3.40.
PROCLA, steadied while in close quarters at first turn, went to contention boldly on backstretch, disposed of GALLANT MOWLEE to take command and was in hand at end. GALLANT MOWLEE shook off GRANNY CAKE to take lead, set good pace, but was tiring under pressure at end. COBEGGO raced evenly to midstretch and then faltered.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $2500. For 3-year-old fillies. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:12. Off at 2:12. Winner, Platania Farm's b. f. (3), by Bureo King—Bridal Gown. Trained by W. C. Kennedy. Value to winner, $1,650; second, $500; third, $250; fourth, $100. Time, 1:47⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BABY DARLING, $6.60, $3.50, $2.20; NELLIE L., $2.30, $2.10; NELLIE MOWLEE, $2.60.
BABY DARLING was rated for half while within striking distance, came to inside while improving position, disposed of NELLIE MOWLEE and held on under punishment. NELLIE L. missed footing leaving gate, came wide when placed to drive and finished on outside. NELLIE MOWLEE raced CREAM into defeat to take lead, set good pace, bore in entering stretch and was tiring at end.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $10,000 added; the Eastern Shore Handicap. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:43½. Off at 2:44. Winner, Mrs. H. J. Mohr's ch. c. †Longchamps Farms entry.
Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROYAL PRINCE, $48.90, $12.10, $7.90; DANCE TEAM (entry), $3.40, $3.50; MRS. AMES (entry), $3.80.
ROYAL PRINCE, off in first flight, went to front boldly approaching stretch and drew out while kept to pressure to end. DANCE TEAM was closest to place early, dropped back and then came willingly at close. MRS. AMES lacked early speed, responded when shaken up and closed willingly. ALORTER saved ground and closed gamely. DIRECTOR J. E., first away, set pace early and then faltered.

SEVENTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1500. For 2-year-old fillies. Start good. Won handily; place easily. Went to post at 3:13. Off at 3:13. Winner, Greentree Stable's b. f. (2), by Sir Gallahad III—Kestrel. Trained by J. M. Gaver. Value to winner, $1000; second, $300; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 1:15⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BIRD HAWK, $7.30, $3.90, $2.70; BELL SONG, $4.60, $3.10; ALLY BAL, $3.00.
BIRD HAWK, under steadying restraint while closest to pace of ALLY BAL, took command when placed to drive and drew out to win with speed in reserve. BELL SONG was well placed from start and closed gamely, but was no match for winner. ALLY BAL took lead in opening furlong, but weakened badly in stretch run.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1200; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:42½. Off at 3:42½. Winner, Mrs. H. S. Miller's b. c. Washington Club Members Consider Watered Fairways

The matter of watered fairways at Washington Golf and Country Club, a postwar project, has been left squarely up to the membership in a letter from the golf committee.

It has been proposed to assess each member $1 per month starting January, 1944. Members have been asked to reply by card vote to the proposal.

A hilly layout and thus one of the fastest-drying in this section, Washington is usually a dry and hard course during the summer months. The golf committee admits this in its letter and explains the course would be one of the finest in the Nation with watered fairways, according to expert opinion.

An adequate watering system would cost between $25,000 and $30,000. Chevy Chase and Columbia are the only courses with watered fairways in the Washington area.

'Y' Holds Variety Sports Card Tonight

A variety program featuring boxing, jiujitsu, tumbling, fencing and basketball will be held at the Twelfth St. YMCA gymnasium tonight starting at 8 o'clock.

Four boxing bouts between members of the YMCA team and St. Vincent de Paul boxers will open the program. A jiujitsu demonstration, under direction of Lieut. Buck Smith, will be held and the YMCA tumbling team will exhibit. A basketball game between two selected teams will round out the program. At the half of the game a demonstration in fencing will be held.

7500 of Fair Sex Populate Girl Town

Washington has its Girl Town and a trip to it is one of the most interesting and unusual in this sightseers' paradise. Girl Town is the sprawling girl dormitories in West Potomac Park and across the Potomac on Arlington Farms. In these residence halls now live 7500 girls and the number eventually will be around 9000. Girl Town is really a town within a city. Arlington Farms, for example, has its own hospital where the girls can stay without charge; it'll soon have a movie, it has a cafeteria, school, dress shop, beauty shop, postoffice, and recreational facilities. It'll soon have a newspaper. And above all, Girl Town is attractive and a pleasant place to live.

KLUTTZ

The residents of Girl Town have given it various names, such as "Hairpin Town," "No Man's Land," "Twenty-eight Acres of Girls" and "Bow Ribbon Village." Living in the town are girls from every State in the Union, the Canal Zone, Alaska and several other outlying possessions. A majority of the girls who live in Girl Town work for either the Army or the Navy. A girl in any agency that has a priority classification from one to four, inclusive; who earns a base salary of $1800 or less, and who has come here since July 1, 1941, can be considered for a room that ranges in price from $16.50 to $24.50 a month. It's a bit of irony that the girls who work for Public Buildings Administration—the builders and operators of the town—can't live in it because PBA has a Grade 5 priority rating.

More than 750 girls at Arlington Farms have taken a personality grooming course which is given free along with the cosmetics. The course is regularly given at a $45 fee. Shorthand and typing courses will be given as soon as teachers can be hired. Spanish and other courses are being given with full college credit by National University. Twelve bowling alleys were opened this week. An all-girl orchestra is being formed. Works Projects Administration came in handy in furnishing the dorms. Fifty sewing machines were taken from WPA's supply and they're now being used by the girls to make old clothes and do over old ones. The pictures and other decorations are WPA art.

The girls have their problems, too. Men is the No. 1 puzzle. A survey showed that the girls prefer dancing, swimming and stenography in that order. In this man-short city the girls have found it difficult to get dates. Dances are held Saturday nights to which military men are invited. However, it seems that the girls who live in the dormitory at Suitland, Md., where they work for the Navy and Census, have an abundance of men, an average of two to each girl at the dances. Transportation has been something of a problem but now PBA is trying to get the Capital Transit Co. to pick up girls from Arlington Farms on their return trips from the Pentagon. The girls, if they rode CTC buses, could get a transfer to a streetcar without cost. Now they must pay a second fare. The cost of meals in the cafeteria is somewhat higher than prices charged in Government cafeterias despite the fact that Welfare and Recreation operates it.

Gentry Wales is a Government employe to watch. He had the courage to make a suggestion that brought about the abolition of his own job and the jobs of several of his associates. That takes courage. Wales was employed in a Grade 4 job in War Department's Bureau of Ordnance. A Grade 4 opening wasn't available after Wales had brought about the abolition of his own job and he was put in a Grade 3 job temporarily, but at no decrease in salary. However, he was promised the first Grade 4 opening, and on Monday he'll go back to a 4 and a splendid chance for a promotion. Wales was given a $100 award for his valuable suggestion.

The House Civil Service Committee will hold a meeting soon on several bills to pay Federal workers a night differential of 15 per cent. Representative Randolph of West Virginia has introduced several bills on the subject. The Civil Service Commission reported it would oppose a bill which would give night workers at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing a 15 per cent raise. However, it implied in diplomatic language that it was sympathetic to another Randolph bill that would pay all night workers a differential. The commission pointed out that the Postoffice Department and Government Printing Office now paid its night workers a differential while other agencies are denied the privilege. Meantime, the Budget Bureau has been asked to report on the bill and it's gathering figures to estimate the possible cost.

Thanksgiving can't be a holiday for all Federal workers unless the President rescinds his executive order suspending all holidays except Christmas for the duration. However, Thanksgiving will be a holiday for employes in the postal service. The Comptroller General has ruled that the President has no authority to suspend its holidays. Postal employes who work on Thanksgiving must be giver compensatory time off or be paid for it. How about some uniformity on that one, too? . .

Sen. Overton Flatly Against Vote for D. C.

By Anne Hagner

Senator Overton (Democrat) of Louisiana yesterday asserted flatly that "I will not vote for any bill that bestows suffrage on the residents of the District."

He was referring to two home-rule measures introduced on the Senate floor recently—a bill by Senator McCarran (Democrat) of Nevada granting Washingtonians the right to vote for a 7-man Board of Commissioners who would appoint a city manager, and a resolution by Senator Holman (Republican) of Oregon setting up election machinery by which District citizens could choose their own form of government.

As a member of the Senate District Subcommittee appointed by Chairman McCarran to hold hearings on both measures beginning November 30, Overton's comments on District home rule are expected to provide the impetus for considerable discussion among local civic organizations.

Refers to Constitution

His statement to reporters added: "I feel that Congress should follow the mandate of the Constitution which gives it exclusive legislative authority over the site set aside for our Nation's Capital."

If the District ever achieves a municipal government having self-rule, he continued, "it is not improbable that the Federal payment toward expenses of the Capital would be withdrawn.

"Since Congress now has exclusive legislative authority over the District," Overton said, "it carries a responsibility for sharing in the costs of the National Capital.

"The election of commissioners would not improve municipal administration. The men who are appointed to that post are just as good—if not better—than we would get if they were elected."

Restaurant Bill

Converning the District restaurant grading bill, for which he is chairman of a special subcommittee, Overton revealed that he had received a letter from Watson B. Miller, acting administrator of the Federal Security Administration, objecting to a provision in the bill for Public Health Service inspection of eating establishments in Federal buildings.

Miller's contention, the Senator said, was that there was sufficient inspection by the District Health Department, on the invitation of Government authorities, at the present time. Overton pointed out that the proviso was included to eliminate possible clashes of authority.

Kutz Queried On Conditions At School

By Adele Bernstein

Charges of "injustices" against District Engineer Commissioner C. W. Kutz were made yesterday in connection with the flooded playground and other conditions at the Patterson Elementary School, Chesapeake st. and Nichols ave. sw., by the Washington Highland Citizens' Committee.

The school, a temporary, one-story structure, has been the cause of complaints since it opened last year. Parents of the 900 pupils crowded in three shifts into the eight-room building which was planned for no more than 320 students, have repeatedly charged the Board of Commissioners with "neglect of duty" and demanded action to remedy what they term an "intolerable situation."

The water which covered approximately 50 feet of the playground Wednesday, following heavy rains, touched off the latest blast, directed at Commissioner Kutz.

Adopted last night by the citizens' committee representing 572 parents and homeowners in the area, the statement demanded answers to these questions:

1. We want to know why you, as Engineer Commissioner of the District, permittted the Patterson Elementary School to be built without rainspouts or underground sewers to drain off accumulations of rain water?

2. Why all unnecessary buildings on the property bought by the taxpayers for the school site have not been removed, so that it may be used by the citizens for whom it was purchased?

3. "... Why, in view of the fact the Congress has made available all money necessary for this purpose through the Lanham Act, the grounds have not been surfaced and graded?"

Another question raised concerned the expenditure of "$880 of District money to benefit a private citizen who lives in the house that occupies a part of the school site."

Commissioner Kutz said last night that in the matter of drain pipes and sewers the school plans were pared down by the War Production Board.

Concerning demands to pave the school grounds, the Commissioner referred to plans to move the school from its present location away from the Bolling Field area, and possible danger from plane take-offs.

"We don't propose to take any action until the Army decides whether we can stay," he said.

Men in Majority

Pedestrians Lead Traffic Death Toll

By Jean Reiff

The average victim of a traffic accident here is a pedestrian, male, white, and over 50, who has met death or been injured because of his own negligence.

Proof of this is shown by statistics on file in the Accident Investigation Unit of the Police Department. Of the 69 traffic deaths in Washington this year, 49 have been pedestrians, 50 have been men, 51 have been white persons and more than half have been 50 years of age or older. A verdict of accidental death has been returned by the coroner's jury in 44 of the fatalities, indicating pedestrians and not operators of the striking vehicles were at fault.

Only four drivers of the vehicles which figured in the accidents were charged with manslaughter and only 16 were accused of negligent homicide.

The number of traffic accidents each week runs between 125 and 150. Pedestrians are involved in at least 30 of these and in most cases, two thirds of the 30 occur because of a pedestrian violation of the law. Such violations include walking against a red light, running to and from a street car zone, crossing the street without looking both ways and darting out from behind parked cars.

Since the beginning of this year, 110 persons have been seriously injured in traffic accidents and have been near death. Many of these have spent months in a hospital or have been crippled for life.

Despite the large number of taxicabs on the streets here, only three pedestrians have been fatally injured by cabs this year. Twenty of the fatalities were hit by street cars and 14 of them by privately owned autos. One person was killed when struck by a bicycle.

Correction

The Post yesterday said a parking lot on Municipal Center Grounds at 6th and C st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. had been rented to Grand Plaza Parking Area, Inc., for an annual fee of $561, taking effect November 1. The area is being rented at a monthly fee of $561, but the lease will be in effect for one year, beginning November 1.

Restaurant Stays Open as Owner Fights OPA Penalty

The Stables will remain in operation while Mrs. Jean Richards, owner of the restaurant, fights an OPA penalty barring the purchase of meats, butter and cheese until her ration account has been balanced.

The OPA yesterday had under consideration Mrs. Richards request for ration point loans. The Stables is located at 2622 E st. nw.

Several other food dealers are scheduled to appear in the Municipal Court Building, where the OPA is holding administrative hearings into alleged ration irregularities.

Man Sentenced In 'Rent' Swindle

John H. Anderson, 57, Negro, of 65 K st. sw., was sentenced by Judge George D. Neilson in Municipal Court yesterday to six months' imprisonment on one charge and to pay a $200 fine or serve six more months on another charge of false pretenses in "renting" apartments over which he had no control. According to Assistant United States Attorney John B. Diamond, several persons have complained to his office about similar deals made by Anderson.

Taxi Licenses Hard to Get, Veterans Say

returning to Washington are finding it hard to go back to former jobs if they were taxicab drivers before induction, it was revealed yesterday at an informal meeting of representatives of the taxicab industry called by the Public Utilities Commission.

Chairman James H. Flanagan called the meeting to discuss complaints from citizens that taxi stands and call boxes were not being used by taxi drivers, and should be eliminated. He said that for the present each complaint would be considered on its own merits.

The problem of the veterans arises from ODT restrictions of licenses in the District to 5239 for the duration, it was said. All of these are in use now.

Edwin E. Glenn of the United Cab Drivers (CIO) said he thought all men back from the war should be allowed to get licenses even if it meant putting a few more cabs on the streets, but Clewell Sykes and William M. Tobin of ODT said more cabs could not be allowed.

Flanagan said PUC held back a limited number of licenses for veterans when the ODT order went in effect, September 1942. As they are transferable, they are being sold at high premiums outside the PUC office, in some cases at profits of hundreds of dollars, he said.

He said PUC will give preference to veterans when lapses and surrenders make further licenses available. Meanwhile, John H. Royer of Combined Cabs Service said his organization had been able to accommodate all of its former drivers back from war fronts with rental cabs, as well as drivers from companies not having a rental service. Personal licenses are required of drivers only when they own the cab.

How many former cab drivers are coming back to Washington as veterans could not be ascertained as many negotiate for licenses with other drivers.

Part time taxi driving was called essential by most of those assembled in view of the manpower shortage, but Lieut. Joseph Harrington of the hack inspector's office decried spurious use of cabs by many such drivers, evidence of which he says is on file in his office.

Justice Weighs Arguments In Pepco Case

The District Court suit by which the Government seeks a 2 million dollar yearly reduction in electric rates charged consumers of the Potomac Electric Power Co. was taken under advisement yesterday by Justice Jennings Bailey.

The trial, which took three days, was concluded after C. R. Bowen, representing PEPCO, charged that even the $300,000 rate reduction ordered last year by the Public Utilities Commission was too large for effective operation of the company and that the 2 million dollar proposed decrease was not warranted.

"It appears," Bowen said, "that regulatory bodies have felt that the war should not be used for shifting the burden of taxation from one group (consumers) to another group (stockholders)."

The PUC maintains that its order was handed down only after a full hearing of the issues involved, but this is denied by the Government. Plaintiffs in the suit are the Office of Price Administration, the Office of Economic Stabilization, the Procurement Division of the Treasury Department and the Federal Works Administration.

In attacking legality of the PUC order Bowen said that the 1.5 per cent reduction ordered last April effective back to March, 1943, was based on "the erroneous exclusion" of a portion of the company's income tax liability and a miscomputation of $1,429,644.06 from the company's rate bases.

D. C. Policeman Seeks Injunction To Stay Demotion

Justice F. Dickinson Letts took under advisement yesterday a suit of Detective Sergeant Robert J. Maghan, who seeks to prevent Police Superintendent Edward J. Kelly and District Commissioner John Russell Young from demoting him to a private on the police force.

Police announced the demotion Tuesday, basing it on the ground that Maghan, along with another officer, were guilty of "conduct unbecoming officers."

Maghan, through his attorney, James J. Laughlin, seeks to enjoin authorities from carrying this out on November 1. He claims he was given no hearing and denied his right to due process of law.

Assistant Corporation Counsels Chester Gray and Lee Dante told Justice Letts that since Maghan was appointed a private under civil service, Maghan could be reassigned to private without hearing of any kind.

Botanical Society Will Elect Tuesday

J. R. Magness, 5 Valley View ave., Takoma Park, Md., has been nominated to succeed L. E. Yocum as president of the Botanical Society of Washington. The election will be held Tuesday night at the Cosmos Club.

Others nominated are: E. H. Walker, vice president; Annie May Karrer, recording secretary; Mary G. VanMeter, corresponding secretary; G. A. Greathouse, treasurer; R. K. Beattie and F. V. Rand, counselors. These also are uncontested.

Postlude

Navy Band Plays Excellently Before a Capacity Audience

By Ray C. B. Brown

Lieut. James M. Thurmond conducts the United States Navy School of Music Concert Band and Chorus on Thursday night in Constitution Hall. Soloist: Jesse J. Tyron, violinist. Program: Passacaglia and Fugue in C minor (Bach), "Onward, Ye Peoples" (Sibelius), 'Symphonie Espagnole" (Lelo), 'Huntingtower" (Respigni), "Fire and Ice" (Cowell), "The Siesta" (Cain), "American Salute" (Gould), "The Song Is You" (Kern), "Homage to the U. S. Navy" (Cailliet).

Late comers were turned away last evening from the doors of Constitution Hall which was filled to capacity for the second annual fall concert of the United States Navy School of Music Band and Chorus, under the direction of Lieut. James M. Thurmond. With 109 men in the band and 86 in the chorus, the aggregation was considerably larger than the one heard last year, and it acquitted itself excellently in a program that was primarily symphonic in character. With the exception of 14 instructors in key positions in the band, the musicians were all students, many of whom will be graduated in November and assigned to ships and shore stations.

The thoroughness of the training was exemplified in the opening number, Bach's Passacaglia and Fugue, transcribed for band by Leon Ford Brown, an instructor in harmony and theory at the school. Orchestral patrons are familiar with this composition in transcriptions by either Respighi, Stokowski or Stock, but this band version differs from them all in the massiveness of sonorities. Another work that was heard from a new perspective was the overture to "Die Meistersinger" which had a splendid clangor without the strings.

Despite the extreme contrast between the tone of a solo violin and the heavy colors of the band, Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole" sounded pleasantly with Jesse J. Hryon as soloist in the first, fourth and fifth movements. Tryon was expert in phrasing and in fleetness, and Lieutenant Thurmond did wonders in keeping the accompaniment light and clear in the lyric passages.

A work which had its premiere in Washington in April of 1932 at a concert of the American Bandmasters' Association and has probably not been heard here since was Ottorino Respighi's ballad, "Huntingtower." Cast in narrative style, this piece is dramatically effective, while its sombre tone would indicate that Respighi's impressions of Scotland were with his knowledge of tragic episodes in its history.

Henry Cowell was present to hear the first performance of his "Fire and Ice," a setting of a poem by Robert Frost written for and dedicated to the Navy School of Music. Beautifully scored for chorus and band, with an admirable proportion between voices and instruments, the work reflects in its theme, and particularly in its harmonic plangencies, Frost's mingled characteristics of austerity and humor.

The sturdy chorus also was heard in Sibelius' "Onward, Ye Peoples," Noble Cain's "The Siesta," the first performance of Lucien Caillet's fantasia on "Anchors Aweigh" and other marine songs, and an arrangement by George Thaddeus Jones of Jerome Kern's "The Song Is You."

'Baby Broker' Bill Urged By Bushfield

Senator Bushfield (Republican) of South Dakota, a member of the Senate District Committee, yesterday declared that he will request Chairman McCarran to speed action on the District's so-called "baby broker" bill as soon as the Nevada Senator returns to the Capital from a Western trip around November 15.

The bill, which was pigeon-holed in the Senate just before the recess last summer, would make mandatory the licensing of all child-placing persons and agencies. It has already received a favorable House vote.

Specific Examples of Need

Meanwhile, Mrs. Lina B. Trevvett, in charge of adoptions for the Board of Public Welfare revealed three cases from her records indicating the need for the bill. She said one baby broker here obtained $2000 for arranging one adoption.

In a second case, a child of extremely low-grade mentality was pawned off to a wealthy New York family which immediately began making plans to send the child to Vassar. In the third, a child was taken from its mother two hours after birth.

Mrs. Trevvett said that, in her opinion, the lack of legislation licensing baby brokers is a distinct weakness in efforts to see that children unwanted by their mothers are put in suitable homes.

Results of Mistakes

Judge Fay Bentley of Juvenile Court, said that baby brokers, generally untrained, are prone to make serious mistakes. She said that hasty judgment in taking unwanted children from mothers "makes for fear and pain, and often a warped life of the mother thereaftter."

District records reveal that while hundreds of families now have applications on file for the adoption of children, there are only six suitable children to supply the demand out of 2000 foundling children in institutions here.

Yellow Cab Head Killed in Maryland

Edmund C. Barwell, 43, president of the Yellow Cab Co., 1801 New York ave. ne., was killed yesterday in an automobile accident near his home on Route 6, near Ironsides, Charles County, Md.

State police said his car was in collision with a gasoline truck driven by Earl Yates, 18, of Waldorf, Md., and that death was instantaneous.

Mr. Barwell's body was removed to a Waldorf funeral establishment.

Experts Urge Registration Of Bicycles

A bill providing for the registration and inspection of bicycles in the District, yesterday met with the unqualified approval of traffic authorities in a hearing before a House District Traffic Subcommittee, headed by Representative D'Alesandro (Democrat) of Maryland.

Washington I. Cleveland, representing the American Automobile Association, suggested an amendment to the bill providing that violation of its regulations could be punished by dentention of the bicycle, which he declared would be more fitting in cases involving children.

D'Alesandro agreed that withholding the bicycle for a short period would "hurt the child a lot more than it would if his dad had to pay $300," the present maximum fine.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer told D'Alesandro that he is in favor of the bill because registration would be valuable in tracing stolen bicycles, and because compliance with traffic laws would be valuable for young people who some day will operate automobiles.

Mrs. George A. Thorpe, chairman of the women's safety committee of the AAA, stated that similar legislation exists in 300 cities and towns in two-thirds of the States in the Nation. There are at present about 35,000 bicycles in the District, she estimated.

Cleveland also pointed out that there were 245 accidents and five fatalities involving bikes in 1942, and that he felt enactment of the bill would make bicyclists "more aware of their responsibility as the operators of vehicles."

To Speed Job Approvals

A plan to speed approval in District government offices of applications for jobs in District institutions was announced yesterday by Commissioner Guy L. Mason.

Under the plan, when the head of an institution finds an employe qualified to fill a vacancy, he will make a duplicate of the application and send one copy to his department head and one to the Secretary of the District Board of Commissioners. Both will be sent by messenger.

Action will be taken by the Commissioners if immediate protest is not made by the department head, according to Commissioner Mason.

As much as two weeks' time will be saved by this procedure, it was said.

Dogs Bite Seven More In D. C. Area

Seven more persons in the Washington area were reported yesterday to have been bitten by dogs, as police were ordered not to pick up stray dogs, but to notify the poundmaster, who would handle the animals.

Those who reported they had been bitten were: Muriel Kennedy, 4, of 327 13th st. se.; Mrs. Mary McKelvey, 74, of 1645 U st. se.; Pvt. George Caravas, 28, of Fort Belvoir, Va.; Zane Kelley, 40, of 7131 Baltimore blvd., College Park, Md.; James White, Negro, 10, of 1221 1st st. nw.; James Carter, Negro, 12, of 2974 Elvans rd. se., and Ada R. Faison, Negro, 25, of 5023 Tilden st. nw.

The Kennedy child was bitten by the dog of a friend while playing in the living room of her home. She was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Mrs. McKelvey was bitten on the right hand by her own pet and received treatment from a private physician.

Bitten by Police Dog

Private Caravas was treated at the Fort Belvoir dispensary for a wound received when he was bitten Wednesday by a brown police dog at Horton's Warehouse, 620 C st. sw. Kelley reported to police that he was bitten on his face by his own pet while riding in his car. He received treatment at Casualty Hospital.

James Carter was treated at Providence Hospital for a dog bite on his left leg and James White was treated at Sibley Hospital for a bite on his right ankle which he received Wednesday. Ada Faison was bitten on her right hand when she attempted to oust a stray dog from the basement of her residence.

Police Lack Facilities

The order to the police that they not handle stray dogs, stated that "because of the fact that neither police officers, police cars, or station houses are equipped or prepared to handle dogs."

Meanwhile Dr. G. H. Riley, Maryland State director of public health, in Baltimore yesterday warned that an "epidemic of rabies that has reached alarming proportions in Washington is now spreading into nearby Maryland counties and that police are taking every precaution to prevent the spread of the disease to Baltimore."

Dr. James G. Cummings, chief of the bureau of preventable diseases, said yesterday that a dog may be infected by rabies and pass on the disease fully a day before the common symptoms become evident. He asked that any person suspecting his dog of acting the least bit peculiarly, notify the proper authorities immediately.

Gallinger Probe Being Scrutinized By U. S. Attorney

United States Attorney Edward M. Curran yesterday began scrutiny of the Senate District Subcommittee investigation of charges of maladministration and irregularities at Gallinger Hospital as he prepared to make a report on whether to present the case to the grand jury.

Curran and his assistants also had before them a six-week investigation conducted by his investigative staff headed by Lieut. Joseph Shimon.

Curran said that if it should prove in the public interest he would give the entire case to a grand jury to let them make their findings. It also was possible that misdemeanor charges might be presented in court.

City News In Brief

$4000 Damages Awarded

A District Court jury awarded $4000 damages yesterday to Frank W. Tompkins, 4441 MacArthur boulevard nw., against the Capital Transit Co. It is the largest verdict to be awarded by a jury of the court this term.

Tompkins, now in the Navy, was a chauffeur for Postmaster Generals James A. Farley and Frank C. Walker, was injured when a car he was driving was struck by a streetcar. He was represented by Attorneys Michael S. Keogh and J. Robert Carey. Presiding at the trial was Justice T. Alan Goldsborough.

Narcotics Conviction

Chin Wo Lee, alias Yeong Yee, 46, whose address was given at 519 H st. nw., was convicted by a District Court jury yesterday on five charges of violating Federal narcotics laws. Lee, charged with illegal possession and sale of 224 grains of heroin, faces a possible maximum penalty of 50 years in jail.

Leroy W. Morrison, agent in charge Washington field office, Federal Bureau of Narcotics, testified that when Lee was arrested on August 22, he was about to sell a quantity of drugs to an informer and tried to destroy it.

Fugitive Sent to Jail

Frank Wallace alias Lewis M. Henry, 26, of no fixed address, was found guilty yesterday in Municipal Court of carrying a concealed weapon, reckless driving and no driving permit. He was sentenced to serve a year in jail and pay a $300 fine or serve nine more months.

According to Assistant U. S. Attorney John B. Diamond, who prosecuted the case with his aide, John O'Leary, Wallace escaped from a Georgia prison camp.

Victory Sidelights

Real Estate Group Assails Surprise Raid Alerts

Protesting surprise blackouts, the Building Owners and Managers Association yesterday called on Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District director of civilian defense, to take up the matter with the Army, particularly as regards 5:30 a. m. tests.

The association, which represents 50 office buildings and 10,000 apartment units, said the surprise tests worked undue hardships on managements since green help often made unintentional violations.

Stating that office and apartments buildings are 25 per cent to 30 per cent undermanned, and help is shifting, the secretary of the association, Rufus S. Lusk, said civilian defense set-ups have disintegrated, and that he failed to see the necessity for further unannounced tests.

He said people will think the real thing just another test, if the practice is continued.

Captain Whitehurst said the protest would be referred to the regional office of civilian defense, of which Commissioner John Russell Young is director.

He also said that the Army regulates the type of blackout to be held and continues to stage surprise blackouts, and that his office has nothing to do with the decision.

Teen-Age Dance Tonight

The first of a series of Friday night dances for teen-age boys and girls, sponsored by the D. C. Recreation Association will be held tonight from 8:15 to 10:45 at Langley Junior High School, 1st and T sts., ne., with music furnished by the Tree B's string ensemble.

Other activities offered by the association at Langley include adult classes in grammar, sewing, and dancing, given each Tuesday at 7 p. m.

E Flags at Small Plants

Army and Navy E flags flying over hundreds of smaller plants in the United States show the value of these organizations in working for victory with the assistance of Smaller War Plants Corp., Carl Bolte, director of the industrial services division of the corporation said yesterday.

He spoke before the Junior Board of Commerce at the Annapolis Hotel.

Pointing out that the corporation had been established as a mandate by the people through an Act of Congress, and not by an executive order, he said that the mandate and the record of the small plants, many of which employ less than 15 men, were true examples of democracy at work.

Training Film Shown

Dr. Hiram A. Jones, director of physical fitness for New York State, presented his film, "Can You Take It?" before the students of Mount Vernon Seminary yesterday. The film shows pre-inductee training, but Dr. Jones said that similar training soon would be used for young women throughout the Nation.

Mergner $40 Clerk

5 Children of Accused Slayer Left $590,000 by Grandfather

The reason that Fred C. Mergner, charged with the street-corner slaying of Mrs. Charlotte Robinson, 30, was able to live in comparative luxury on $40 a week was explained yesterday when District Court records revealed that his children in 1937 were bequeathed a $590,000 trust fund.

The money was left to the children by John Meinberg, wealthy bakery owner and father of Mergner's wife, Agnes, who died in 1930 after an abortion. She had five children.

Named guardian of the estate after Mrs. Mergner died was the National Bank of Washington. There was no indication that the funds were spent unwisely. Mergner's house at 3328 University ave. nw., was purchased for $31,000 out of the trust fund. Mergner is a shipping clerk in a bakery.

Meanwhile United States Attorney Edward M. Curran assigned his two chief assistants to prosecute the case. They are John W. Fihelly and Charles B. Murray, who yesterday began inspecting police evidence in the shooting of the German-born secretary on Monday.

The two prosecutors today are to appear at the coroner's inquest to question Mergner, should he choose to take the stand.

Mergner is to be arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage next Tuesday. His hearing was postponed earlier this week when Turnage decided Mergner was not in condition to participate.

At the inquest, Federal Bureau of Investigation chemists are expected to testify as to the chemical tests of bloodstains found on Mergner's clothing and car.

First witness at the inquest will be Mrs. Robert Lucas, 631 A st. ne., who said she saw Mergner removing Mrs. Robinson from his car

Mergner, according to police, confessed the crime but later claimed innocense.

Woman Sees Nothing Narrow-Minded About Being Openly Opposed to Drink; Says: "If Drink Were Not Wrong, We Would Have No Laws to Govern It"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: In Monday's issue, you published a letter from a woman who asked whether her disapproval of a woman who drinks to excess and associates with loose companions stamps her as a "narrow minded" person. Your reply, stated in no uncertain terms, was "Yes." There are many persons,—aside from ministers and other religious,—who feel that excessive drinking, especially by women and in public places, is not only in execrable taste; but positively wrong. Almost all doctors advise that drinking tends to blunt one's moral sense and relax restraint. Women seem particularly inclined to say and do things when under the influence of liquor which they are heartily ashamed of afterward—if they are decent.

Any social worker, especially those who work with young delinquents, can furnish all-too-many instances of sordid experiences leading to sex offenses and other crimes, which had their beginning in the first drink. If for no other reason than to furnish a decent example to children and youth, it would seem that grown-ups, and especially women,—who have the chief responsibility of rearing children,—should try to avoid public drinking, particularly to excess. No right minded person would think of condoning the bad manners of a glutton or a bully or one whose lack of self-control made him a nuisance. Such a person would be quickly banned from the dining table or drawing-room of any hostess of good social status. Nor would such action stamp her as "narrow minded." She would take this step merely to protect her guests from being annoyed or embarrassed.

If a group of persons are discussing politics, and one person declares himself to be Republican or Democrat, as opposed to the rest of the group, is he then "narrow minded," because he does not think as the others do? If he is asked his opinion and states it, is he stamped as a bigot and a meddler in others' affairs because he feels that certain phases of the opposite party should be changed, or done away with? How, then, can you state so definitely that M. B. is a narrow-minded busybody? She had merely voiced her ideas on the proper use of liquor, and her friend (whose views did not coincide) called her "narrow minded." Is it narrow minded to be openly opposed to drink? Are all persons who "interfere" with wrongdoing,—such as policemen, social workers, clergymen, etc., —narrow-minded? If drinking were not wrong, we would have no laws governing the use of liquor. I wonder what your answer would have been if M. B. had been a man? P. C.

To Damn All Drinkers Is to Voice Prejudice

DEAR P. C.: You mean well, but you are so much on the defensive, apropos of what constitutes narrow-mindedness that your discourse misses fire. To begin, I said nothing to M. B. that was intended as defense of unbridled drinking;—and nothing that could be so construed, by the intelligent reader. She, on the other hand, bluntly said: "I say it is cheapening yourself to go to drinking establishments where you just sit and drink; or maybe go out on the floor to dance and return to your table to order more drinks—.". This is a definite expression of blind prejudice, based on social inexperience, in that it categorically damns as unrespectable all persons who patronize so-called cocktail lounges and night clubs, —when the well known fact is that a great many adults of the highest degree of respectability and social usefulness do sometimes patronize such places; even as they likewise extend and accept the home hospitality of privately given cocktail parties. This is a latter-day social trend which I, personally, had no part in shaping and one distinctly apart from my way of life; so I have no reason to defend it. I simply know it exists; and I also know quite a few citizens of sterling character who casually incorporate such divertissement in their social calendar.

ON THE POINT of meddling and busybodyism: You make a painful mistake in likening policemen, social workers, clergymen, etc.,—who are publicly intrusted with specific vocational responsibilities to safeguard, succor and enlighten their fellowmen,—to the fanatic finger-pointers and gossip-mongers who gratuitously undertake to play private detective, judge, jury and missionary reformer in their friends' lives, for neurotic reasons not known to themselves; but quite clearly apparent to the psychologically trained observer. There is equal lack of logic in your supposition that a group debate of political philosophies,—which, after all, is public business,—can be likened in any respect whatsoever to an impudent assault, freely broadcast, on a "friend's" character frailties or muddled mismanagement of his private life.

Christ Served Wine, New Testament Tells

AS TO whether it is narrow-minded to be openly opposed to drink,—Let me meet that question by saying: All intelligent persons of responsible mind justifiably deplore intemperance in any form; but drink (if I get your meaning) and intemperance are not necessarily synonymous. Ordinarily, one who takes your tone toward "drink" complacently feels he is expressing "the Christian view." Yet, a study of Christ's life in the New Testament reveals that He held no brief against "drink." At the wedding feast, He changed water into wine, that all the guests might "drink." And during the Last Supper, He distributed wine with bread to His 12 apostles. This would imply that there is no "wrong" in "drink," — only "wrong" in men's extreme attitudes toward it: of fanatic intolerance, on the one hand, and inordinate indulgence, on the other hand. (If M. B. had been a man, I probably would have said he was behaving like a meddlesome old woman!) M. H.

Solid Comfort

By Ruth Gregory

If you're a woman with an eye to beauty and comfort within your own four walls, here's a lounging pajama set that will provide both.

It's made of cotton-quilted rayon crepe, light as eiderdown for all its warm padding. The three-quarter coat makes a fine robe of itself when worn without the quilted slacks. It comes in a bright red, the coat sporting a navy lining, or in navy with a red lining.

Maybe this falls under the head of self-pampering, but if you can afford it there's always a ready stock of rationalization—you'll be nicely insulated against winter drafts.

It's about $25 and comes in misses sizes. An exquisite gift, if you can casually drop the hint in the proper ear.

For further information, please call NAtional 4200, extension 324, between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m.

To Heighten Lamp

A squatty table lamp is stingy with its light. To make it taller and so obtain a wider circle of light, Miss Myrtle Fahsbender, director of home lighting for Westinghouse, suggests placing lamp on a small stand 2 or 3 inches high. The stand can be made of wood and stained to match the table on which it is used or painted to harmonize with the lamp. Adding to the height of a lamp often turns a merely decorative lamp into a useful reading lamp.

Rank Galore Attends Newspaper Luncheon

By Genevieve Reynolds

There was enough rank at the American Newspaper Women's Club luncheon yesterday at the Mayflower to confuse any protocol expert. Yet the problem was solved and all headaches were avoided by dispensing with rank except for Mrs. Roosevelt, fellow club member and honor guest. Seats were shuffled in a hat, and guests as well as members found their places according to the numbers drawn.

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

So you could find Lady Bajpai, wife of the Indian Agent General, about the middle of the side of the long horseshoe table. Next to her was the wife of the Chilean Ambassador, Senora de Michels. Scattered at other places, some near the foot and others near the head, were Mme. Bianchi, wife of the Portuguese Minister; Senora de Blanco, wife of the Ambassador from Uruguay; Senora de Castillo Najera, wife of the Mexican Ambassador; Senora de Munilla, wife of the Cuban Military Attache.

As a matter of fact, the Latin-American diplomatic contingent and military missions were well represented. From Brazil came Mme. Lima, wife of the Brazilian Military Attache; Senora de Dolores Monteiro. Peru was represented by Senorita Julia McLean Vinas. Also from Cuba came Senorita Silvia Brull. From Bolivia came Senora de Lozado.

Club Changed Name

It was last year that the Newspaper Women's Club of Washington changed its name to that of the American Newspaper Women's Club. Since then you can find some members of the Latin-American group at each meeting and tea practically each time the members gather. Many have become members of the club. Significantly, the club has become in spirit as well as in name American.

Approximately 300 guests attended the luncheon to hear Mrs. Roosevelt tell of her trip to the Pacific war areas. Emphasizing the fact that the boys on the battlefields will have mental as well as physical scars, Mrs. Roosevelt said that it is going to take a lot of imagination, discipline and patience on the part of American women to understand and help the returning soldier.

One indelible scar that the Yanks will carry all their lives —you can't trust everybody. They have learned through bitter experience that the Japs can't be trusted, according to the First Lady.

As for jealousies among the Australian, New Zealand soldiers, you've heard all sorts if rumors. About the only jealousy that exists is about the girl situation. Seems the Yanks make hay while the New Zealanders and Australian soldiers are away. In other words, the Yanks' smooth line gets the girls. However, the First Lady made it clear that all jealousies were transient, and vanished on the battlefield.

Miss Alice Everaman, president of the club, presided.

Seen among the guests in addition to those mentioned were Mrs. Dolly Gann, president of the D. C. League of Republican Women, who sat near Mrs. Roosevelt; Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, and Mrs. Standley, wife of Admiral Standley.

Amendment Backed

Seeking support for the clarifying amendment proposed by Senator Claude Pepper (Democrat) of Florida to the Connally postwar policy resolution, the Voteless District League of Women Voters held a series of meetings this week on the subject.

The league's executive board issued a statement that "without this clarifying amendment the Connally resolution is open to dangerous misinterpretation and misuse."

The amendment which is now before the Senate would make an international "organization" take the place of an international "authority," the league points out. The United States would be a nuclear part of this organization, to which other nations would be admitted. It would have the power to deal with international disputes and acts of aggression as well as to use military force in suppresssing such acts.

Miss Jacobs Is Bride of Army Officer

In the Cleveland Park Congregational Church last night at 8 o'clock Miss Dorothy Sayre Jacobs became the bride of Capt. Lyle M. Spencer.

The bride is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Richard Clark Jacobs of this city, and Captain Spencer is the son of Dr. M. Lyle Spencer and the late Mrs. Charles S. Boyd of Syracuse, N. Y.

Officiating at the ceremony was the Rev. Ernest A. Yarrow. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of cream satin designed with lace bodice and circular train. Her full-length veil of illusion was held with a coronet of heirloom rose point lace and she carried a bouquet of gladioli and orchids.

The maid of honor was Miss Anne O'Daniel, wearing a gold velveteen with matching juliet cap and carrying a bouquet of red chrysanthemums. Miss Barbara Walling of Barrington, R. I., and Miss Virginia Hegeman of Somerville, N. J., the bridesmaids, wore leaf-green velveteen with matching caps and carried multi - colored chrysanthemums. Maj. Charles Dollard served as best man, and ushering were Capt. Clyde Coombs, Capt. F. Douglas Williams, Carl Hovland, John Yale and Davis S. Rumsey.

Following the ceremony a reception took place at the Kennedy-Warren. After their return from a wedding trip, the couple will make their home at the Valley Vista Apartments.

The bride is a graduate of Wellesley, and Captain Spencer attended Dartmouth, the University of Washington, and the University of Chicago. He is now on duty with the special service division of the War Department.

About Washington . . .

THOSE MODERN Arabian Knights will be back in town today for a visit of several days. But this time, they won't be staying at Blair House. Their American sojourn as Government guests ended officially when they finished their recent visit at Hot Springs, Va. Since leaving Washington, they have been on a trip to the West Coast, with brief stopovers in the Middle West.

His Royal Highness Amir Faisal

Preceding Their Royal Highnesses back to Washington was the Saudi Arabian Minister to London, Shikh Hafiz Wahbu, who turned up at that gala late afternoon party on Wednesday when Minister of Iran and Mme. Shayesteh entertained.

"How wonderful—the Sheiks of Araby are back again!" gushed a Capital matron, brimming with enthusiasm about it all. The Saudi Arabian Minister, burnoosed and beaming, had just arrived at the reception . . . and before he had time to take a deep breath the lady in question had coasted over to shake his hand and ask questions. No, Their Royal Highnesses had not yet returned, he politely informed her. They would be back on Friday, after "a most wonderful trip." He left them in San Francisco and boarded a plane for Washington, in order to be here in time to complete plans for their second visit.

His Royal Highness Amir Faisal, Foreign Minister of Saudi Arabia, and His Royal Highness Amir Khalid, and their entourage will occupy six rooms at the Mayflower. Their party includes an interpreter, a secretary and two servants. The princes do not smoke or drink, but they eat almost anything Americans do, except pork. On their calendar for the coming week is the large reception at which they will be hosts at the Mayflower on Tuesday.

During their first visit here, the most eye-opening experience their youthful interpreter had was on a visit to the Gayety Theater. One evening when the princes were at a State dinner, and time hung heavy on his hands, he asked one of the detectives at Blair House to take him to a show. "I know just what you'd like," said the detective . . . and forthwith took him to the burlesque. Evidently, the young Arabian had never seen anything quite like it. As the show went on, and the strip tease got under way, he became more and more embarrassed, tried to avert his eyes, and crouched lower and lower, in an attempt to get out of sight. Presently, he disappeared completely . . . and when his companion finally located him, he was under the seat!

"If you don't mind, I would like to leave," he whispered. And they did . . . much to the detective's disappointment.

AS AN ARMY wife at the Navy Day dinner Wednesday night, I noted that the "Anchors Aweigh" contingent had taken over virtually all the glamour and goldbraid in wartime Washington. With many ranking naval officers on hand, there were enough stripes and decorations in that Mayflower ballroom to sink a couple of Victory ships. I wish the Army would go back into "dress blues" for evening wear; that generals could have something more than inconspicuous stripes and small stars to distinguish them from privates; and that a general could have at least one uniform as ornate as an admiral's.

But proof that the prestige of the Army hasn't suffered from its lack of sartorial adornment was borne out when the only four-star general present, Gen. George Marshall, was introduced by Representative James W. Wadsworth, the toastmaster. Everybody present leaped to his feet, and applause rang to the rafters for a couple of minutes. An Army officer stole the Navy's show--for a few moments, at least.

The event, incidentally, was the most successful function of its kind I've ever attended in Washington. A distinguished company, 700 strong; a head table filled with high-ranking American officers, and diplomats representing all the United Nations; and a lively program that featured Man-of-the-hour Eric Johnston—all combined to make it THE event of the season. It had everything, including ace comedian Walter O'Keefe, and his priceless series of grade-A gags presented from a Connecticut Yankee's point of view.

Only fly in the evening's ointment was the toastmaster's overlooking a brace of foreign diplomats in his long list of introductions . . . and he managed to double back and take them all in, with profuse apology of course, before he had finished.

I must say, however, that his task would have been far less difficult if celebrities at the head table had been seated according to protocol. Introducing an admiral, and then a diplomat, and then repeating the process up one side of the table and down the other created confusion, not only for the celebrities themselves but for the crowd as a whole. Even though it was a Navy party, so long as foreign diplomats were among the honored guests, they should have been presented first . . . and in blue book order at that.

HERE AND THERE: Ahmet Ertegun, son of the Turkish Ambassador and Mme. Ertegun, is suffering from a broken collar bone. A senior at St. John's College, Annapolis, he was injured recently while playing football. "Well, almost every boy breaks his collar bone at least once," someone soothingly told Mme. Ertegun the other day. "Yes," she answered, "but Ahmet has broken his three times; once in Switzerland, twice in this country . . . Frances Parkinson Keyes, who has written 11 books since 1936, plans to spend at least a year and a half on the next one, and it will be written in rural Louisiana. Mrs. Keyes plans to lease her Alexandria home, move to a house not far from New Orleans, and spend most of the next two years there. Meanwhile the novel she completed not long ago, "Also the Hills," is scheduled for publication next month . . . The first Swedish Naval Attache in this country, Commodore Olof Angelin, Mme. Angelin and their two pretty daughters, the Misses Madelaine and Elisabeth Wikstrom-Angelin, are living in the house at 3070 Foxhall rd., which is still owned by the former Swedish Military Attache and Mme. Karl Wessel. The Wessels returned to Stockholm some time ago, and Major Wessel shortly afterward resumed his position with a Swedish ball bearing company.

Purely Personal

The United States Ambassador to Peru, R. Henry Norweb, is spending a few days in New York during his current visit to this country.

Mrs. Alben Barkley, wife of Senator Barkley, has returned to Washington from her home in Kentucky and expects to be here most of the winter.

The First Secretary of the Norwegian Embassy and Mrs. Aage Bryn, who have been at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, have returned to Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Robert Walton of South Bend, Ind., formerly of Takoma Park, Md., arrived yesterday and are at the Raleigh Hotel, accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Oleson of South Bend. Mr. Walton, now managing editor of the South Bend Tribune, was formerly with the Associated Press here. They will be entertained today at a luncheon given by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Coman.

Mrs. Richard Whitney of Boston, Mass., has returned home after a visit to her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Sands, at their home, Fiddler's Green, near Middleburg. Mr. Sands celebrated his birthday at a dinner party during his mother's visit.

Phantom Benefit To Be Held for Episcopal Home

At a meeting of the committee on the Phantom Card Party for the benefit of the Episcopal Church Home of the diocese it was decided to set November 1, All Saints Day, as the final date for subscriptions. Mrs. William Channing Johnson, president of the board of the home, presided.

This appealing and unique home, which changes lonely declining years to bright ones for over 30 men and women, has won the interest and support of many not only from the Episcopal churches of the diocese but from those of other denominations who appreciate the fine spirit and work of the institution.

Among the patronesses for the card party are Mrs. James L. Houghteling, Mrs. Edward B. Meigs, Mrs. H. Rozier Dulaney, jr., Mrs. William Crozier, Mrs. Luther Sheldon, Mrs. William E. McIlvaines Visit Virginia on Leave From Active Duty

Lieut. Robinson McIlvaine, USNR, and Mrs. McIlvaine, have arrived in Virginia this week to spend his leave at Eglinton, the home of Mrs. McIlvaine's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Stevenson, near Middleburg.

Lieut. and Mrs. McIlvaine have been visiting his mother, Mrs. Gilbert McIlvaine, at Downingtown, Pa., for several days, where their young son, Robinson, jr., remained for a visit.

The McIlvaines will go to Miami, Fla. after a week's stay in Middleburg, where he will await orders. He has just returned from the Pacific Area. Mrs. McIlvaine, the former Miss Jane Stevenson, has been living in New York with their son during Lieut. McIlvaine's absence. She had a position on the staff of Fortune Magazine and later was editor of the New Horizon, a Pan American magazine. The McIlvaines lived in Washington for several years.

Lieut. McCray Back At Carolina Camp

Lieut. Robert Janney McCray, jr., who visited in Washington several days with his uncle, Edward Van Devanter, has returned to duty at Fort Fisher, N. C., where he is with the Antiaircraft Artillery Force.

Lieutenant McCray attended the first of the series of five dances at the Sulgrave Club while in Washington, when he and his cousin, Miss Sylvia McNeale, were guests of Mr. Van Devanter. Lieutenant McCray also visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. McCray, at their home, Liberty Hall Farm, near Leesburg.

Blackouts Are Biggest Worry To Britishers

Mrs. Herbert Pott Back From England Finds Confident Spirit Among People

By Marie McNair

"It's not the food problem, nor having to wear your threadbare tweeds. Even the sirens, which wail almost every night, don't annoy the average Britisher. What I think the English people really mind the most is the nightly blackout."

Mrs. Herbert Pott, wife of Rear Admiral Pott, Naval Attache of the British Embassy, has just returned from the British Isles, her first visit home since she came to Washington more than three years ago. She found vast differences, of course, in the London she knew before the war and the bombed and ravaged city it is today, in the British people.

When will the war end? That's something on which the average Englishman won't venture an opinion. But one thing is certain. They all know now that victory is to be theirs. And with that in mind every man and woman is working toward that end, in factories, in the homes, and in the farms.

"London in the autumn with the sun shining through the trees looks very pretty," said Mrs. Pott, "although every street you walk there are bare and vacant spots where buildings once stood. There has been no rebuilding but the city has been cleaned up of all the debris and one doesn't notice the devastation."

Friends Meet Late In Evening

It is only late in the evening that friends are able to meet, for everybody works long hours in the war effort. And then the blackout makes getting about very difficult. There is a certain amount of night life in the British capital, Mrs. Pott found. The theaters open at 6 o'clock so that the audience won't be too late getting home; cafes are running at full tilt and at the Hungaria, one of the popular night clubs, there is good music and dancing.

There are no servants to be had any more, and if one is invited as a guest in a friend's home he is expected to pitch in and do what he can—wash dishes, perhaps, cook, or mind the children.

The famous British tweeds are proving their worth, Mrs. Potts says, and the women are all wearing old clothes and saying nothing about it. "But they are awfully pleased to have something new to wear." Dressmakers are swamped with business, for most women now are buying material and having their clothes made. Seamstresses won't promise anything before three months' time, so that one must plan her wardrobe—such as it is—a season ahead of time.

Food Distribution Is British Problem

Mrs. Pott's home is in Scotland and she spent most of her two months, holiday with her family at home. There were wide acres of farmland to be harvested and everyone was busy. As in this country, the food distribution is a problem in the British Isles. Those with farms are perhaps more fortunate, for they are able to have a bit more butter, maybe an extra egg or two. But chickens are very scarce because the meal to feed them is also. Fruits, too, are a luxury, and if by chance some citrus fruits, sent from American friends, find their way into a household, they are as welcome as Santa Claus.

"I'm very happy to be back here," Mrs. Pott said with a ring of sincerity in her voice. "But I was also glad I could make the trip. You know, I think one worries subconsciously about conditions at home and it's good to go back and catch up on everything."

LaGuardia 'Serves' Press At Interview

By Ida Jean Kain

Well, I've got a real story for you today. His honor, Mayor LaGuardia of New York City, invited the newspaper women's club to lunch with him at his office—and to bring our own sandwiches. We accepted with alacrity, having finagled hard for the invitation. It was the most exciting luncheon I have been to for many a moon. We talked over everything from the price of eggs to the possibility of a blitz.

The coffee was on the city hall and when it arrived we asked whether it was made according to the mayor's recipe. First, he wanted to know, "Is it good?" Then, when we assured him it was excellent, "It's my recipe!"

The mayor says he has been very patient about eggs. He was concerned as to what the grade B kind could be like, with so many bad eggs cropping up in grade A. If these shenanigans are not stopped and women are asked to quit buying eggs for a time, he urges that we all cooperate.

He believes women should go back to the old feminine custom of shopping around. We have gotten away from it because we are under the impression there is but one price. But, the mayor points out, food can still be sold below the ceiling price and by taking advantage of the low prices we can help to keep down inflation—no help to anybody and particularly the farmer.

The mayor's praise of the housewife for her part in the conservation of our food supplies was unstinted. The proof, he declares, is in the garbage can. I asked whether he didn't think a lot of food is being wasted in the eating places and he agreed—not only agreed but appointed me a committee of one to put over a "clean up your plate" campaign. You will have to help me out. Whenever there is something on the menu you don't like, don't let the waiter bring it to you. And if you can't finish all the food that is on your plate, don't order dessert. Waste of food prolongs the war.

I felt it was hitting below the belt but couldn't help asking whether the mayor had lost weight on the rationing. Dammit, no!" was his explosive answer. "I can't lose weight even with food rationed. But Marie watches out for my diet—not for my looks, for my health!"

One of the newspaper girls wanted his opinion about whether women should go back to their homes or stay in industry after the war is over. His answer, "If she can find a good husband, a woman should stay home."

The mayor thinks the term "suicide squad" for German aviators bent on bombing us is a misnomer. "Why, that would be a pleasure flight," was his comment. After bombing New York or Washington to break down morale, or Detroit, which is more conveniently located to devastate industry, the flyers could land and live comfortably as prisoners until the war is over. He believes the most unpredictable and disastrous factor in such a raid is the element of panic.

Memo to Miss Brown

SUBJECT:

Music for the Millions

The music we have in mind is the active, rather than the passive sort. Some of us like our melodies made for us, but most of us can't deny a feeling of pure joy when our not-so-pure vocal efforts resound against the shower curtain—or maybe we get a thrill out of hitting a solid high note with our favorite oboe.

Whether it's singing or instrumentalizing which we love more tenderly, opportunity for expression of either or both is easy to find.

On the down-to-earth, or fun-without-talent level, there's the delights of group singing. Whether our pitch is high or low, our notes sweet or sour, singing at full strength along with a lot of other amateurs is a perfect way to spend an odd evening.

There's some rousing group singing in progress at Service Men's Club No. 1, 306 9th st. nw., on Mondays and every other weekday, as well, between 4 and 7 p. m. This is a mixed affair, so your pseudo soprano can blend without agony with a belligerent baritone or two.

The Salvation Army sponsors a big community sing for such as us at 8th and Market Space (better known as Pennsylvania ave.), on Tuesdays, at 8 p. m.—and may the loudest woman win! The same group also holds a shout session on Sundays at 8.

There's a program called "Sing a Song" (and don't spare the rafters) at the Northeast USO Club, 6th st. and Maryland ave. ne., every Sunday at 9 p. m., which should give you plenty of trilling room. Also on Sundays there's group singing during the candlelight coffee hour (snacks, yet!) from 8 to 10 p. m. at the Masonic Service Center, 13th st. and New York ave. nw.

There's likely to be some informal around-the-piano stuff going on at the YWCA open house (along with buffet supper and miscellaneous games) between 3 and 11 p. m. on Sundays—with more than a few service men to make it all more interesting. Singing in like manner goes on at practically every church and community center "open house," which means there's a song a minute or more in production somewhere in Washington, all the time. Just follow the noise. Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church at 9th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw. is an example of music combined with buffet supper on Sundays at 6 p. m.

If you're a better-than-average community singer (that is, if you know a rudiment or two of harmony or can carry a tune with gusto) join up with the Choral Club of the National Catholic Community Service USO Club (1814 N st. nw.). This club meets on Mondays from 7:30 to 9 p. m. and is turning out some high-class warbling.

In case your talents lie in the direction of horns or woodwinds, investigate the Washington Civic Orchestra. This group meets at Central Center, 13th and Clifton sts. nw., and is made up of men and women war workers. It's under the auspices of the District of Columbia Department of Recreation and you needn't be a professional to join it—just know your notes and love to practice. Call ADams 2050 to find out what places are open, or drop around to the center on Tuesdays at 8 p. m. and talk over your talents with the director in person.

Armour Ideas Make the Most of Meat

Quick, Individual Barbecued Meat Loaves
Cut your baking time in half tonight by making individual barbecued loaves instead of one big meat loaf! It takes only 1½ pounds of ground beef to make 8 of them . . . and everyone gets the cherished crust! Beef chuck is a good juicy cut to use for meat loaves—and you can count on good flavor and high food value if you get Armour's. For the Armour brand is an unfailing sign of choice quality in beef.
Mix ½ cup fine dry bread crumbs with ½ cup Armour's Evaporated Milk and season with 2 tsps. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper. To this add 1½ lbs. ground Armour's branded beef chuck, ½ lb. ground lean pork, 2 tbsps. chopped onion and blend well. Shape into 8 individual meat loaves and place in a shallow pan. Use half of these per portion for 4 loaves.
Over them pour barbecue sauce you make this way: Heat together ½ cup catsup, ½ cup vinegar, 1 tbsp. Worcestershire Sauce, 1 tsp. chili powder and 2 tbsps. chopped onion. Bake 45 min. at 350° F., basting once or twice.

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

Crisp cereals eaten with fruit and milk will insure adequate nutrition for a school child. The cornflakes and milk alone furnish a large percentage of the proteins, vitamins and minerals needed to build strong bones and teeth, healthy skin and sound nerves.

Bananas too furnish valuable minerals and vitamins

"No one at this house goes to school without a substantial breakfast," should be the slogan of every mother. Of course, the idea should be for adults as well as children.

A perfect morning meal does not mean the serving of extraordinary things, but in serving the ordinary things extraordinarily well. Most mothers realize that their children should eat an adequate breakfast. But the hurry and scurry in the morning of getting Mary's pigtails braided and Jimmy's broken shoestring replaced takes a bit of doing.

But a friend of mine with three school-age children told me that she had solved the breakfast problem recently. I think her scheme is well worth passing on to other mothers.

"Breakfast was getting to be a pretty hectic thing. By the time I had the children off to school and everyone else had left for business, my nerves were at a high pitch. So I decided in the interest of the children's health and my nerves, that I would work out a plan where there would be some family cooperation. The planning evolved into a self-service system. But not a grab a bite and run affair," said this mother.

When I asked what she meant by a self service system, she told me it meant that every member of the family has a tray. Each morning she sets the tray with the silver and china needed. Each person proceeds to collect his own breakfast. Fruit and milk and an assortment of ready-to-eat cereals are always placed advantageously. Some days the toaster stands ready to make toast from enriched bread. Several times a week there is a special treat such as muffins or orange biscuits.

"Those hot breads are really the secret of the success of my plan," said the mother. "I promised the children if they would eat an adequate breakfast that I would provide surprises. Also, in the bargain was the stipulation that they were to get up when called the first time, so they would have time for eating their breakfast in orderly fashion.

I obtained some of the breakfast patterns used in this family. Two of them are given here.

BREAKFAST

Half Grapefruit
Oven-popped Rice Cereal
All-bran Cream Scones
Apple Buter Milk

When oranges have again come to the markets, orange juice can be served in place of the grapefruit. The grapefruit in market now are of fine quality. Here is the recipe by which the All-Bran Cream Scones are made:

ALL-BRAN CREAM SCONES

Sift 1¾ cups flour with 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon sugar. Add ½ cup all bran cereal. Cut in ¼ cup butter or margarine with pastry blender. Reserve small portion of egg white from two eggs. Beat the remainder of the two eggs and add to the creamed mixture. Stir until dough is formed. Toss on floured board, knead lightly and roll out to ¾ inch thickness. Cut in triangle shapes; brush with egg white mixed with 1 teaspoon water, sprinkle with sugar and bake in hot oven, 450 degrees for 15 minutes. Yield 12 scones.

Breakfast Menu

Tomato Juice Corn Flakes
Milk Bacon Strips
Orange Biscuits Butter
Cocoa

The ready-to-eat cereals on these menus can be restored to their original crispness if they are placed in the oven for a very few minutes when the oven is first lighted ready for making the breads.

ORANGE BISCUITS

Combine 2 tablespoons butter, ½ cup orange juice, ½ cup sugar and 2 teaspoons grated orange rind. Cook for 2 minutes. Pour into greased muffin tins. Sift together, 2 cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt and 3 teaspoons baking powder. Cut in 3 to 4 tablespoons shortening. Add ¾ cup milk, stir until dough follows fork around the bowl. Knead slightly, roll ¼ inch thickness. Brush with butter or margarine, sprinkle with ¼ cup sugar and ½ teaspoon cinnamon. Roll as for jelly roll. Cut 1-inch slices, place the cut side down, over orange mixture. Bake in hot oven, 450 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes. Makes 16 biscuits.

But the responsibility of furnishing an adequate breakfast does not end the mother's problem of feeding her children. If children are not able to come home to the noon meal, then they must have a well-balanced meal tucked into their lunch kits.

Children, busy at play and work, seldom resting, expend energy to a high degree. They must have power to keep their engines running. It is food which furnishes the fuel to run their body engines. Food, like fuel, really burns in the body and generates heat and power—to go, to play and to work. Summing it all up, it takes energy.

The sandwich is one of the best foods to pack into lunch boxes, both from the standpoint of nutrition and convenience in packing. But sandwiches can get pretty monotonous, so they should be varied as much as possible.

One of the best sandwich breads is made by combining apples and cheese. Apple-Cheese Sandwich Bread is a new kind of nut bread to vary the sandwich service. Not only will children enjoy it, but so will any persons who carry their lunch to business, and mother who eats lunch at home will find it most appealing too. The recipe for this bread follows:

APPLE CHEESE BREAD

Cream together ½ cup shortening and 2-3 cup sugar. Beat 2 eggs, add 1 cup ground unpeeled apples and the juice. Sift together 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon baking soda and ½ teaspoon salt. Add alternately with egg mixture to creamed mixture. Add ½ cup American cheese and ¼ cup chopped nuts. If apples are not juicy, add a small amount of milk. Bake in greased loaf pan in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 1 hour.

Little Slices Of This and That

Delicious Dinty! Corned beef hash rolled in balls, dipped in egg, crumbs, and baked until brown, is fine fall fare served with hot apple sauce.

When you cook kidney beans, do enough extra for this filling casserole: alternate layers of cooked kidney beans, pieces of raw bacon, cooked tomatoes, and sliced onions in a greased casserole. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 to 40 minutes.

Flavor your next can of corn with a few celery seeds and heat in bacon fat.

When you use onion juice to flavor meat dishes, cut an onion in half, skin and all, and squeeze it on an ordinary lemon reamer. Juicy results!

Don't shorten your shortening supply. Instead of greasing the bottom of cake pans, line them with waxed paper.

To make lard go far, measure it carefully, even when the recipe calls for only 1 tablespoon. And use high-quality flour to insure success.

Flatter a platter of crusty, golden corn bread by topping split-open cornbread with ground pork creamed with peas, pimento, cooked carrots and grated onion.

Serve Bean Sprouts

Bean sprouts can be served as a hot vegetable. Try sauteeing them with mushrooms. Quick cooking is in order for the bean-sprouts, about 10 minutes or long enough to remove the raw taste, and just long enough so that the sprouts remain crisp.

Judith Wood, Capt. Watkins Are Married

Miss Judith Goodwyn Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sparrel A. Wood, and Capt. Kennedy Campbell Watkins, USA., son of Mrs. Samuel Evans Watkins and the late Dr. Watkins, were married last evening at the Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation. The Rev. C. Flint Kellogg, rector of the church, and the Rev. Howard Johnson of St. John's Church officiated at the ceremony at 8 o'clock. Sherman Kreusberg was the organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin wtih a deep bertha of old pointe Duchesse lace. Her long veil of illusion was held by a coronet of Duchesse lace and orange blossoms. She wore a strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom, and carried a white prayer book which the bridegroom's mother carried at her wedding.

Miss Lacy Goodwyn Jackson, cousin of the bride, who was maid of honor, wore a turquoise faille taffeta gown and carried gold and lavender chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids, in gowns of Florentine rose faille taffeta, were Miss Regis Louise Boyle and Miss Elizabeth Catherine Morrow. Their bouquets were of lavender and pink chrysanthemums.

Maj. Norman Eustace Towson, USA, of Washington, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man, and the ushers were Maj. Herbert H. Ferguson, Capt. G. Lawrence Kibler, Capt. John B. Olverson, Capt. Franklin W. Stevenson, Capt. Franklin C. Salsbury and Lieut. Richard E. Ray, all USA.

A reception for members of the bridal party and members of the two families was held at the American Association of University Women Clubhouse. After a wedding trip Captain Watkins and his bride will live at 1448 Harvard st.

The bride is a graduate of George Washington University. Captain Watkins was also graduated from George Washington. He is now serving in the legal branch of the Ordnance Department of the United States Army.

College President To Be Honor Guest At Alumnae Tea

Dr. Henry Noble MacCracken, president of Vassar College, will be the honor guest at the tea on Sunday to be held at the home of Mrs. John B. Martin, jr., on Upton st., for members of the Vassar Alumnae classes of 1933 to 1943. The Washington Alumnae has planned the party especially for the younger alumnae whose week day jobs often prevent them from attending other meetings of the group.

All members of classes of the last decade are invited to the tea. Among the hostesses will be Mrs. James Q. Newton, Miss Lois Glover, Miss Carnzu Clark, Mrs. August Nagel and Mrs. David Austen.

Also acting as hostesses will be the executive committee of the Washington Vassar Branch, including officers, and representatives from each decade. They include Mrs. Waldron Faulkner, Mrs. John B. Martin, Miss Eileen Lenk, Mrs. William A. Furman, Mrs. David L. Wing, Miss Helen Zartman, Miss Louise Newell, Mrs. Arthur Whaley, Miss Faustine Dennis, Miss Gertrude Banfield, Mrs. Harris Ward, Mrs. John Washington and Miss Mary Cheney.

Your Baby And Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

I liked this letter from one of my father-readers so much I want to pass it on to all of you.

"After reading your article on sex education," writes Mr. F. S., "I felt I wanted to back it up and say there is sound judgment and good sense in every word you say. Children have a right to sex education. Parents owe it to the children they bear and raise.

"When parents try to evade the questions or put them on the shoulders of the school teachers I say 'No.' I will go further and say that when a girl gets into trouble the blame rests on the parents not on her. Children should be on the right road about sex and helped to become useful citizens by telling them what life is all about, and what is before them.

"I am the one boy in a family of four. We were interested in our bodies and we were taught that they were to be kept clean and healthy and our minds also.

"When my sisters were at the age of maturity no question was too trivial for my mother to answer and many of them in front of me. It does not take courage to answer questions nor is it sinful or shameful as many mothers seem to think. It is due to this frankness that I came to think of every girl as some one's daughter or someone's sister.

"I was on the police force in England and wish all parents could hear the girls in trouble say, 'Why wasn't I told?', it would give them cause to think. I have a son and daughter and they will be told everything. I feel it my duty as a parent."

It is the way in which sex information is imparted which makes is useful, interesting and developing to the individual or merely a shameful secret to uncover and then feel guilty about.

Our leaflet, "Answering the Child's Questions About Babies." Send a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Hadassah Honors Mrs. Lowdermilk

One thousand trees will be the living, growing monument to Mrs. Walter C. Lowdermilk, daughter of a Methodist minister. The trees have been planted in Palestine in her honor by National Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization. Mrs. Lowdermilk, wife of the soil expert who is now adviser to China's Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, spent several years in Palestine. Since returning to this country she has made numerous speeches to Jewish and Christian groups describing Zionist achievements she herself observed in Palestine. Announcement of the tree planting was made at Hadassah's twenty-ninth annual convention being held in New York.

Art Tea in Alexandria to Preview Week's Exhibition

Display in Library Will Be Sponsored by Artists' League

An art tea will be held at the Alexandria Library, 717 Queen st., Alexandria, Sunday afternon, from 3 to 5 o'clock for the special preview of the works of northern Virginia artists for American Art Week. The display, which will be open to the public from Monday, November 1, through November 7, is sponsored by the Artists' Professional League.

Mrs. Harrison Thornton is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements and is being assisted by the head librarian of the Alexandria Library, Mrs. James L. Scott, and a committee including Mrs. Harvey Luce and Mrs. Paul Arlt.

Alexandria artists among the exhibitors include Alice Norton Nager, wife of Lieut. Comdr. Charles J. Nager, USN. A painter of portraits, she has had a number of important commissions and while her husband is on sea duty she is concentrating on her work in her studio on South Fairfax st.

Mrs. George Dougherty, who is known professionally as Bertha Dougherty, comes to Alexandria each winter from Old Lyme, Conn., and has had previous exhibits at the library. Represented in the group of local artists, she is particularly well known for her etchings, and has also made a collection of water color paintings featuring old Alexandria doorways which was given a one-man showing at the library. Mrs. Dougherty is a sister of Mrs. Hinman B. Hurlbut of Alexandria.

Local Artists To Have Place

Two of the best known artists from the Alexandria vicinity who will have prominent places in the coming Art Week display are Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Saugstad of Arcturas on the Potomac. Mrs. Saugstadt whose professional name is Eugenie DeLand Saugstadt, retired last year after more than 30 years as director of the art department at McKinley High School in Washington.

Both she and her husband are included in Who's Who in American Art, and together they have built a river home on the Potomac River which has many charming features of art work. Both are skilled in crafts as well as painting and for more than a year Mrs. Saugstad has been painting patriotic posters for the Government.

Mrs. E. L. Akerley of 411 Queen st., who will be represented, has identified herself with old Alexandrians who wish to preserve the city's antiquities, although she is a comparative newcomer. When expansion of the City Hall offices threatened to close the country market which farmers have held in the inner square on Saturdays since pre-Revolution times, she joined the group of residents which protested to the City Council and succeeded in protecting the market day institution.

She had a similar experience in New Orleans when modern progress threatened to do away with the old French Market in the Vieux Carre French Quarter where the St. Louis Cathedral, Napoleon House and Cabildo are landmarks of Louisiana history. Mrs. Akerley with the group of artists which banded themselves together to oppose destruction of the market, succeeded in the project and one may still have coffee with chicory and buy pecan pralines in the New Orleans market place.

Other Alexandria exhibitors included in the library display are Miss Harriett Westcott Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Westcott Hill, sr., of "The Shadows," 617 South Washington st., who is a fifth generation Alexandrian; Mrs. Laurance M. Thompson, wife of Dr. Thompson, who has frequently included their Colonial home in the Alexandria tours of historic houses. Mr. and Mrs. L. Sigsbee Gilham, codirectors of the Alexandria Society of Art and Craft; Mr. and Mrs. John P. Roche, Charles Coe, Paul Arlt and Miss Frances Holmes.

Soldiers Also To Take Part

Five soldiers from Fort Belvoir, Army Engineer post in Virginia, who are well known artists now doing technical work for the Army, complete the list of northern Virginia artists included in the exhibition. The author of the syndicated strip, "Moments of History," is among them. He is Sergt. Chad Grothkopf, former Chicago Art Institute student.

From Budapest, Hungary, is Sergt. Paul Galdone, who has done murals for the Army and drawings for Yank, the Army newspaper. His work is on exhibit in several New York galleries.

Another serviceman from Europe represented in the Art Week show is Tech. Sergt. Frederico Castellon, a native of Spain and winner of a Guggenheim fellowship. He has exhibited in Paris and Madrid and is represented in collections at the Chicago Art Institute and the Philadelphia and Whitney Museums.

Two corporals in the group from Fort Belvoir are Ralph Harrison of Windsor, Ontario, who studied at the Chicago Art Institute, specializing in illustrations and water colors, and Roger T. Peterson, bird painter, who was formerly education director and staff artist for the National Audubon Society.

Braxton Jones Takes Bride

After November 1, Mr. and Mrs. Braxton Jones will make their home in Washington, where the bridegroom is an attorney with the Department of Justice.

Before their marriage Sunday October 17 in Kingston, N. C., the bride was Miss Helen Bryan Chamberlain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Spencer Chamberlain of that city. Mr. Jones is the son of Mrs. D. M. Jones and the late Mr. Jones of Elizabeth City, N. J.

The bride is a graduate of St. Mary's School in Raleigh, and Mr. Jones received his degree from Duke University, where he was affiliated with Sigma Chi fraternity.

MISS ELIZABETH KELLY, whose father, James F. Kelly of Pittsfield, Mass., announces her engagement to Lieut. John J. Collins, jr., of Cleveland Heights, Ohio. The prospective bridegroom, now in the office of the Judge Advocatee General, was graduated from the University of Notre Dame and from Western Reserve University Law School.

Newlyweds To Make Home At Cape May

Making their home temporarily at Cape May, N. J., are Leroy Wright, USNR, and his bride, the former Miss Mary Lee Harrison.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Bently Harrison of Herndon, Va., and Mr. Wright is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Alvin Wright of Dardanella, Ark. Their marriage took place recently in Camden, N. J. The bride was attired in a frock of pale blue velveteen with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Miss Joan Hillock served as maid of honor and Ralph McCloud was best man.

The bride attended the University of Virginia and has completed her junior year at Randolph Macon College. Mr. Wright received his degree at Arkansas Tech.

Test Shows Reading Puts More Strain on Eyes Than Movies

By Logan Clendening, M.D.

Parents and teachers who deplore the effect of the movies on the eyes of young children, should save their breath. If the children knew enough, they could turn on the teachers and show that it has been proved the movies put less strain on the eyes than reading. If fact, if the movies ever try to develop their possibilities in the field of education, they might almost make reading a lost art. It would certainly be an almost painless method of education.

The question was thoroughly investigated by a committee of the League of Nations in 1930, at a time when, if memory serves, the technical difficulties of projection had not been entirely overcome and the flicker was more pronounced than with present apparatus.

Committee's Conclusions

1. The cinema as such has no deleterious influence on the sight of healthy persons from the standpoint of either eyes or nerves.

2. Neuropathics and persons of weak sight may experience ill effects owing to the phenomenon of intermittence (caused either by the wornout state of the apparatus, or the film, or to the speed with which the films are turned), or to startling changes of light that tire the eyes in following the movements of a jerky and abnormal rhythm.

3. Generally speaking, it would be desirable in the case of children and young people: (a) to have daylight or subdued light screens; (b) to arrange programs so that longer and shorter scenes should be alternated. Save in exceptional instances, programs might include: one theatrical film divided into parts not excessively long; one short cultural or scientific film, and one topical film. This allows for the necessary brain rest produced by variations of impressions.

The committee sent out thousands of questionnaires to children and young people. About 70 per cent of the replies indicated that the eyes did not feel tired or strained after watching a film program. About 25 per cent said they did feel tired, and about 5 per cent said they felt tired sometimes.

Dr. Park Lewis, when vice president of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, stated that watching a film entailed less strain than reading a book for a corresponding period of time.

"Since viewing moving pictures is distant vision, it does not demand so great an ocular effort as near vision. When eyestrain is caused by moving pictures, it is due to one or another preventable condition, such as too prolonged fixing of the attention on a single point, or defective vision, faulty projection, or to improper illumination."

Miss Potzler Weds C. T. Springmann

The wedding of Mrs. Rose Horan Potzler, the daughter of Mrs. Jeremiah Horan and the late Mr. Horan, and Clarence T. Springmann, son of Clarence M. Springmann and the late Mrs. Springmann, took place Wednesday, October 20, at St. Gabriel's Church. The Rev. Lewis A. Springmann of New Haven, Conn., brother of the bridegroom, performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a blue velvet dress and fuchsia hat. Miss Mary A. Neubeck was the bride's only attendant. Corpl. John Springmann, another brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Following the ceremony, a breakfast was given at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. William Westermeyer.

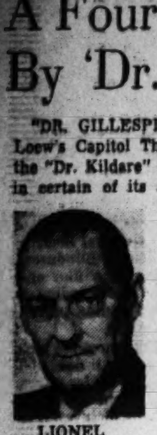
A Four-Ply Plot Unfolded By 'Dr. Gillespie,' Capitol

"DR. GILLESPIE'S CRIMINAL CASE," now on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater as the latest release in what used to be the "Dr. Kildare" series, may be a shade too clinical for all tastes in certain of its sequences, but it compensates largely for that by weaving together four separate threads of interest.



LIONEL BARRYMORE

In engineering this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer subject from a script by Martin Berkeley, Harry Ruskin and Lawrence P. Buchanan, for direction by Willis Goldbeck, Carey Wilson, the man behind the cinematic hypo, has continued a theme from an earlier "Kildare" picture that puts Dr. Gillespie (in the person of Lionel Barrymore) in the stellar spot instead of his young assistant. This is the part of the story that centers in his fight to prove that a murderer confined in prison is really a victim of dementia praecox, who belongs in an asylum. Roy Todwell proves the doctor's case by precipitating a jail-break, chase and gun battle that provide the melodramatic highlights of the film.

Over and above that, by way of good measure, is the epidemic in the juvenile ward of the great metropolitan hospital that pays glowing tribute to the devotion to duty of young doctors and nurses; the case of the survivor of Pearl Harbor whose bitterness at the loss of his legs is overcome by shrewd psycyological treatment, rather than medication and surgery, the rivalry of the internes for the post of Dr. Gillespie's assistant, and the amusing romantic adventures of one of them during his brief off-hours.

Out of all that, any spectator ought to be able to find something to his liking. Judging from yesterday's audience reaction at the first performance everyone does.

Veterans Supported by Newcomers

The pivotal roles in "Dr. Gillespie" still are in the hands of the veterans of the "Kildare" casts who created them. They are supported, however, by a group of youthful newcomers who are hailed, with some justification, as "the stars of tomorrow." Lionel Barrymore, in the title role; Alma Kruger, the superintendent of nurses; Walter Kingsford, as Dr. Walter Carew, head of the hospital; Nat Pendleton, ambulance driver, and one or two others in lesser assignments preserve the familiar pattern of the piece with characteristic skill. Van Johnson, who succeeds to the Lew Ayres part; Donna Reed, fearful victim of the murderer's sinister plotting; Keye Luke, Mr. Johnson's rival for the coveted post; Marilyn Maxwell, blonde beauty, whom Mr. Johnson never gets a chance to woo, and little Margaret O'Brien, the Bernhardt of her age, all contribute efficiently to the excellence of one of the meatier of the medical melodramas.

The new stage bill at the Capitol is given over entirely to Woody Herman and His Orchestra and specialists in a diversified interval of dissonance, sweet melody song, dance and comedy that was accorded a volcanic welcome by yesterday's first crowd of whooping adolescents. The band is pretty blatant a good deal of the time, but tapers off now and again to give way to the Herman clarinet, Chubby Jackson's bass viol the drums and a succession of "hot" soloists. The individual specialties, other than those recruited from among the instrumentalists, are judiciously intrusted to Marion Daniels, one of the most super-super of the acrobatic dancers; Frances Wayne, deep throated vocalist, and Paul Winchell and Jerry Mahoney, a more than ordinarily clever ventriloquist and his incorrigible dummy. If you are in the groove, this outfit is an uncommonly solid sonder.

Dots and Dashes

A considerable list of distinguished Washingtonians and high-ranking officers and officials of the United States Navy will be guests at the Earle Theater tonight at 8:30 to view "Salute to the Seabees," the Navy's newest building-fighting force . . . Presented as part of the regular stage bill, this special production will feature Ensign Hal Scher, Winfield Crawford, barytone; Tommy Flanagan, harmonica virtuoso, and others recruited from the Seabee personnel . . . At Wednesday's meeting of the general publicity committee for the Washington Stage Door Canteen—now comprised of the local drama desks—Judge Andrew R. Kelley, dramatic editor of the Washington Daily News, was unanimously elected chairman . . . Miss Marjorie Kelly, of this and the radio departments of The Post, was appointed to the post of Friday night "press agent" to fill a vacancy . . . Larry Sunbrock's "Rodeo and Thrill Show," is fulfilling management expectations by selling out at every performance at Uline's Arena . . . Closes Sunday night.

Movie Collie Gets Royal Treatment

Hollywood. — "Pal," the collie dog which will soon be counted among the screen's animal stars, lived in comfort and style in a hotel room at the El Portal Hotel in Mesa, Ariz., where he worked with Veronica Lake and Franchot Tone in Paramount's "The Hour Before the Dawn." Pal shared a room with the owner, Rudd Weatherwax when away from home. Weatherwax brought Pal's diet all the way from Hollywood because Pal was too valuable to take any chances with. He is virtually the star of "Lassie Comes Home," which MGM just made. It's a story about a dog and Pal's the canine. As soon as he finished with the Paramount picture, Pal left on a personal appearance tour. Hence, he was watched closely.

Camels Hoarded

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is boarding all the camels in Hollywood until their Ronald Colman Technicolor starrer, "Kismet," is finished. Another two-humper recently arrived with Russell Bros. Circus from Denver, and was immediately loaned, making 10 now in the many "Kismet" caravans.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

MORRIS L. COOKE, former Rural Electrification Administrator and New Deal trouble-shooter, has been tentatively selected to unravel the toughest economic job of the war—the plight of small business.

Four different business wizards have now tackled this job, from Wall St. Magnate Floyd Odlum to Johnson and Johnson's medicine man, Brig. Gen. Robert Johnson. All have retired disgusted and disillusioned.

Today, the Roosevelt Administration, supposed to bring a New Deal to the little man, has witnessed a concentration of 75 per cent of all war contracts in the hands of 56 big companies, has sat by powerless or incapable to act.

At one time six United States companies had more than 60 per cent of United States war orders—General Motors, duPonts, Curtiss-Wright, Bethlehem, Newport News Shipbuilding and New York Shipbuilding. Meanwhile thousands of little firms have had to close up or have limped along on the verge of bankruptcy.

The Administration has wrung its hands, has realized that after the war the country will see a greater concentration of industry in the hands of a few than ever before, but so far its attempts to remedy the situation have been tragic and feeble.

The Army and Navy have ignored little industry—partly because big concerns have been efficient, speedy; partly because of an expert lobby in Washington; partly because of old Army-Navy friendships established years ago.

First attempt to help little business was the appointment of Robert L. Mehornay, a small businessman, in charge of a Defense Contract Service. He struggled valiantly, got no support, fizzled.

Second attempt was by sensational Wall Streeter Floyd Odlum, who after much publicity found he had only advisory powers, resigned in disgust.

Third move came when Congress, seeing red, introduced legislation, earmarking 150 millions to small business, with a special agency to administer it. Immediately the "small war plants biff" ran into tough opposition from Jesse Jones. He objected to anyone lending money except himself, demanded that the Banking and Currency Committee eliminate the 150 millions, turn the money over to him.

Senators Murray, Taft, Maloney, Capper, Mead, Stewart and Ellender refused to be intimidated, pointed out that Jones had made a dismal failure of helping small business, finally voted 11 to 7 to keep the money from Jones, put it in a separate Smaller War Plants Corporation.

Finally the bill passed.

Lou Holland, a small businessman from Kansas City, sincere, hard-working, unaccustomed to red tape and the bloody bickering of Government agencies, was placed in charge of the infant agency. He was doomed from the start. The War Production Board, jealous of the new outfit, insisted on keeping it on a strangle-hold leash. It couldn't employ a messenger or spend a dime without WPB approval.

All of its work outside Washington was done by WPB field employes. The Small War Plants Corporation put up the money, and WPB spent it—on field work that was so co-mingled and mismanaged that no accurate reports were obtainable.

When assailed behind closed doors for this, Wade Childress, director of WPB Field Operations brazenly told SWPC officials:

"Well, what of it? When you weren't looking we spent your money. What are you going to do about it?"

Lou Holland lasted from July to January. Then came Gen. Bob Johnson, hard-hitting, idealistic, determined to do a job. He shook a stick at the Army, bulldozed the Navy, demanded orders from the Maritime Commission, worked hard for small business.

But in the first place he was willing to help only firms not having 66 2-3 as much business as in 1941. In the second place, he had trouble with WPB, which refused to let him have the 1700 field employes whose salaries SWPC actually paid. WPB raised such a howl that he had to be content with only 400, largely undesirables.

Finally, after lengthy, hectic battles, Johnson, suffering from stomach ulcers, resigned. He went back to medicine.

Now the most difficult, undesirable job in Government falls to Morris Cooke, who first built up REA, later headed a United States Mission to advise Brazil on economic problems, then Mexico; and has done various odd jobs for the Government since 1917. If he can rescue small business he will be a real miracle man.

Carrier Pigeon Jealousy

THE SIGNAL CORPS has discovered a way to make carrier pigeons fly faster, in delivering messages of war.

The male bird is always eager to return to his mate. And if he knows that his mate is waiting for him at the home coop, he will fly fast. But to make him fly faster, officials have found use for the eternal triangle.

Before taking the bird from home, he is shown the disturbing spectacle of his mate in close proximity to a rival male. Then the pigeon is carried away for his errand. His return home is found to be 25 per cent faster, borne on the wings of Jealousy.

FSA In Danger

FARM SECURITY Administration, lifeline of the small farmer, is about to be submerged, for lack of a life-line to rescue it.

It's life, on the present basis, expires October 31. To be continued, it must have an appropriation in the next few days. A $6,500,000 appropriation is lying inactive on the Hill.

The agency has no head. FSA Administrator "Beany" Baldwin resigned. A new man has been asked to take the job, but he is dubious about it. He is Joe Scott, president of Oklahoma's State Board of Agriculture.

Scott was summoned to Washington by Marvin Jones, who offered him the job. When Scott left, he was doubtful whether he wanted to stick his head into that noose.

He talked to members of the Appropriation Committees on the Hill, but went away feeling the future of FSA was so uncertain.

Gossip From Gotham

LEONARD LYONS

New York, Oct. 28.

Bill Paley, head of CBS, received a phone call from the MGM studios in Hollywood, notifying him that L. B. Mayer wanted to see him, and would arrive the following Wednesday at 1 p. m. On Tuesday, Paley received a second call from Hollywood, confirming L. B.'s date for the next day. On Wednesday at 11 a. m., Mayer's New York office notified Paley that L. B. would arrive for lunch. At 12:30 came another call, explaining that Mayer would be a bit late. At 1:30 Paley received a call—that Mayer was on his way. At 1:45 Louis B. Mayer arrived at Paley's office, stretched himself out on the couch, sighed: "I'm so exhausted. Only to a dear friend like you, would I give all this time"—and went to sleep.

BETTE DAVIS

George Cukor, the noted Hollywood director, was a private assigned to making Army films in Astoria, until his recent discharge . . . One afternoon, Private Cukor was directing a film in which a general appeared. He sat in a chair facing the nervous general, and rehearsed the scene with him . . . A lieutenant, who once held a minor film job in Hollywood, rushed into the room and ordered: "Private Cukor, stand up. Don't you know that you must never sit down while a general is near you?" . . . "Now listen, you," said Cukor, "the war's not going to last forever—so go away."

The Administration is recognizing that there may be a valid question as to the amount of oil reserves in the Middle East—a question raised by the five Senators who recently visited there. And so to decide the question, merely as a matter of geological and scientific fact, the Petroleum Reserves Corp. will send an exploratory mission to the Middle East . . . Lyan Rigg, author of "Green Grow the Lilacs," the play on which "Oklahoma" is based, is on leave from the OWI, and is writing two plays . . . Bette Davis wants to do the movie version of Elizabeth Janeway's "The Walsh Girls," and has asked Warner Brothers to buy it for her.

Alexander Kerensky, who was Minister of Justice and Minister of War following the Russian Revolution in 1917, was asked recently: "Mr. Kerensky, since you lived in Russia under the Czar, can you tell us this—was it better under the Czar than it is under Stalin?" . . . "That," replied Kerensky, "is like asking a German "Was it better under the Kaiser than it is under Hitler?'"

Charles Collingwood, the CBS commentator in North Africa, has returned to the States. He is the young, Washington-born reporter who was only 25 at the time Ed Murrow signed him. Murrow felt that the home office might consider him too young for such a responsible post. When Murrow sent the biographical sketch to the New York office, he therefore gave Collingwood's age as 27 . . . This sketch was published the next day in the Washington newspapers—the day those same papers also reported that Collingwood's parents were celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary.

A girl reporter for a Midwest newspaper rushed into a railroad car where Mrs. Roosevelt and her secretary, Malvina Thompson, were seated and tried to get an interview. The travelers were busy then with a large amount of accumulated mail, and so Miss Thompson explained that an interview at that moment was out of the question . . . The reporter raced back to her paper, and the next edition carried her account—in which she described Miss Thompson as "a gruff, plain-dressed woman" . . . One of Miss Thompson's friends told her: "Well, this'll teach you, next time, to give an interview" . . . "No," she answered. "Next time I'll wait a while—and shoo 'em out in time to miss the next edition."

Bridge League Championship Tournament Opens Tonight

By Marian H. Barre

Contract Championships of the District of Columbia held annually under the auspices of the Washington Bridge League will open at 8:30 p. m. today in the Hotel Shoreham. The tourney will continue through Saturday and Sunday with five trophies in competition. Events include men's pairs, women's pairs, "mixed" pairs, open pairs and a game for intermediate players which is known as Metropolitan pairs.

This evening's session will be devoted to the dual championships for men and women, LeRoy Thurtell, Washington, and R. L. Miles, jr., of Norfolk, Va., defending the President's Cup, while Mrs. W. Scott Athey of this city and Mrs. J. E. Folline, Richmond, play in defense of the Columbia Trophy. Intercity partnerships had a banner year in 1942.

Bridge luminaries from all nearby States are arriving in the Capital, among those expected in Mrs. A. M. (Helen) Sobel of New York, leading lady of the game who outranked all men players for two successive years. A kibitzer recently paid $1000 for the privilege of watching her play. The money was part of $265,000 worth of war bonds subscribed in the first 20 minutes of the "Buy-s-Bomber" campaign, organized by the American Contract Bridge League for the purpose of dropping bombs (with playing cards attached) on Berlin or Tokyo.

The beneficiary of the District Tournament is the Community War Fund. President P. E. Henninger of the Washington Bridge League has announced that the gross proceeds of the Metropolitan game will be donated to this cause.

Judge Discovers Son Among 15 Held for Contempt

New York, Oct. 28 (INS).—Brooklyn County Judge Peter J. Brancato couldn't figure it out today when 15 youths, all wearing porkpie hats, stalked silently into his courtroom.

The attendant repeated the question to the tight-lipped boys.

No answer.

Judge Brancato snapped: "I hold them in contempt of court."

The youths, still silent, were led away.

Then it was revealed that the young men were students at St. John's School of Arts and Sciences who were being initiated into a fraternity. All had been prohibited from speaking.

An hour later Judge Brancato ordered them released. Then he learned that his own son, Peter, jr., was one of the offenders.

Business Threat By Government Cited by O'Daniel

Senator W. Lee O'Daniel (Democrat) of Texas, speaking last night to the members of the Military Suppliers Association of America, Inc., at New York, and over a CBS national network, warned that a "tremendous flood of Government encroachment upon private enterprise" is "fast leading us into socialism and communism."

"You must accept it as your full responsibility," he said, "to fight every move that is made by the Government to enter into the field of free enterprise in competition with our citizens."

Typical of the encroachment on free enterprise was what the Senator called the Government's present plan to eliminate thousands of private manufacturers and retailers from the military uniform and accessory business.

"Thousands of other small and medium sized businesses throughout this Nation have been forced to close their doors and quit business, and others, small and large, see the handwriting on the wall, as tax-free Government agencies move in on them as competitors," O'Daniel said.

Czechoslovakia's Liberty Envisioned

London, Oct. 28 (AP).—"Confident assurances that efforts of the United Nations are steadily bringing nearer the return of freedom to Czechoslovakia and to Europe" were expressed by President Roosevelt tonight in a message to Czechoslovakian leaders in exile.

The message, which was joined by others from United Nations leaders, commemorated Czechoslovakia's 25th anniversary as a republic.

3-Power Parley Enters 10th Session

Moscow, Oct. 29 (AP).—Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Foreign Commisar Vyacheslav Molotov began the 10th session of the three-power conference today amid reports that some of the most important questions have been settled in an atmosphere of "so far so good."

American, British and Russian technical experts put into written form agreements already reached.

M. A. Thompson Funeral Services To Be Held Today

Funeral services for Merlin A. Thompson, 36, of 5515 Southwick st., Bethesda, who died Tuesday, will be held at 1 p. m. today at the Latter Day Saints Church, 16th st. and Columbia rd. nw. Bishop Abram Cannon of Washington will officiate and burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Thompson was a native of Utah and before taking up his residence at Bethesda, nine years ago lived in Washington about four years. He was connected for a long time with the U. S. Treasury Department at Washington and for the past year had been an employe of the U. S. Bureau of Standards.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Vina Thompson, and three children, Merline, Stanley and George Thompson, all of Bethesda. He also is survived by his mother, Mrs. Olga Thompson, Brigham City, Utah; a sister, a brother, two half sisters and two half brothers.

Capital Transit To Protect Buses From Fire Hazard

Measures to further insure safety from fire in Capital Transit Company buses will be completed in two or three weeks, Robert Dougan, assistant to the president, announced yesterday, following a report on the investigation of fire in a bus last Friday on 41st st. south of McKinley st. nw.

The company will strengthen supports of gas tanks on all buses, he said.

The investigation, as revealed by PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan, revealed the fire last week followed breaking of two of three metal straps which supported the gas tank in the rear of the buss, allowing the tank to drop to the pavement and causing the inlet tube to break. It was thought sparks were created as the tank bounced on the pavement.

More than 20 persons escaped from the old light model vehicle when the driver stopped immediately.

Municipal Hospital Reported Barring Negro Physicians

Alleged discrimination against Negro physicians and nurses at the municipal hospitals was attacked last night in a report of Dr. Paul B. Cornely, chairman of the health committee, at a meeting of the Committee on Race Relations at the YWCA, 17th and K sts. nw.

The matter will be taken up with District officials immediately, Wilbur LaRoe, jr., race relations committee chairman, declared, condemning "a situation in which Negro physicians are not even admitted to Gallinger Hospital when 69 per cent of the patients are Negro."

There are no Negro physicians at Gallinger or Glenn Dale Sanatorium, LaRoe asserted, and only 7 out of 128 nurses at Gallinger are Negro, he said.

A new executive committee was elected and includes: Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, Albert Atwood, Charles Houston, Mrs. Pauline Cogge, Mrs. Gregory Hankin, Harry S. Wender, Col. C. C. Johnson, Daniel Schwartz, Vincent Saccardi, Oscar Chapman, Dr. Edward Harris and the Rev. Howard Stone Anderson.

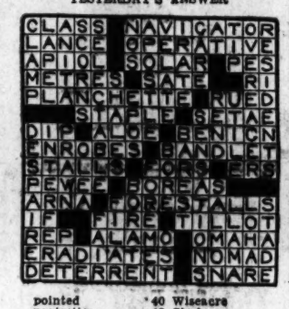
YESTERDAY'S ANSWER



Paint Association Holds 2d Annual Session 'By Mail'

The second annual "convention by mail" of the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association will enter its second day today. The headquarters staff of the association is sending its 1300 members the usual convention addresses, which are to be distributed through trade journals throughout the country.

The whole plan has the hearty indorsement of the Office of Defense Transportation, which recommended in 1942 that conventions be abandoned whenever possible. As a result, much unnecessary travel and use of gasoline has been avoided.

In a paper prepared for the association by Studebaker Corp. President Paul G. Hoffman, the members were warned against the dangers of being unprepared for peace. With the continuation of the war in the Pacific, Hoffman states the end of the European war "will bring us face to face with 80 per cent of the problems" of total peace.

Baby Abandoned In Store Thrives

Jimmy Doe II, the second baby to be abandoned here in the last few months, was in fine condition yesterday at Gallinger Hospital.

The hazel-eyed, dark-haired boy was found Monday in a 5- and 10-cent store at 1201 F st. nw. He was left in a carriage in the basement.

In the carriage were three bottles filled with milk and a note which read: "Please take care of my baby for me. I am unable to."

W. C. Handy, 'Father Of Blues,' Hurt in Fall

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—William C. Handy, 69, blind Negro musician and composer of "The St. Louis Blues," was taken to Harlem Hospital suffering possible skull fracture late today after he fell from a subway platform onto the tracks while waiting for a train. Physicians described his condition as serious.

Bidders are requested to name the interest rate or rates, and each bid may name one rate for part of the bonds of this issue and another rate for the balance of the bonds of this issue, but no bidder may name more than two rates for this issue. A separate bid for each issue is required, but any proposal for both issues may provide that such proposal is for all bonds of both issues and not for one issue without the other. Each proposal must be enclosed in a sealed envelope marked "Proposal for Bonds," and be accompanied by a certified check upon an incorporated bank or trust company, payable unconditionally to the order of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, for 1% of the amount of bonds bid for. The right to reject any or all bids is reserved. In the event that prior to the delivery of the bonds the income received by private holders from bonds of the same type and character shall be taxable by the terms of any Federal income tax law, the successful bidder may, at his election, be relieved of his obligations under the contract to purchase the bonds and in such case the deposit accompanying his bid will be returned. The approving opinions of Messrs. Mansfield and Mitchell, New York City, will be furnished the purchasers. Circular on request and proposals must be submitted on information contained therein. WASHINGTON SUBURBAN SANITARY COMMISSION, By PERRY BOSWELL, Chairman; J. DONALD CLAGETT, Commissioner; FRANK B. SMITH, Commissioner. 27,29

OFFICIAL NOTICES 5

COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, October 26, 1943—A public hearing having been held by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia on October 15, 1943, in the matter of closing certain streets, roads and alleys in the District of Columbia, as hereinafter described, and the said Commissioners being satisfied as to the equity, justice and advisability of said closings, and that the same will not be detrimental to the public interests, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the said Commissioners have prepared the following order: "ORDERED, that pursuant to the provisions of Public Act No. 307, approved December 16, 1932, the street, road and alley areas as shown in green on plats filed in the Office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia and numbered as Maps 2902, 2903, 2904, 2905, 2906 and 2907, are hereby ordered CLOSED, same to take effect on and after NOVEMBER 26, 1943, the title to the land contained in said areas so closed to revert to the abutting property owners as shown on said maps; the said areas hereby ordered closed being described as follows: 1. Closing part of Brandywine Street east of First Street, S.E., closing parts of Chesapeake Street between First Street and Livingston Road, S.E., and closing of public alleys, all in the area adjacent to Square 6169 and S-6169, and abutting U. S. Reservation No. 501; and including a transfer of jurisdiction to Commissioners, D. C., for public alley in Square 6169. 2. Closing of a public alley extending north from Alabama Avenue and abutting 36th Street, S.E., in Square 5668. 3. Closing of a public alley extending south from C Street, S.E., in Square 703. 4. Closing a part of Lamont Street between Hiatt Place and 16th Street, N.W., abutting Squares 2673 and 2675. 5. Closing streets and alleys in the Southeast Section abutting U. S. Reservation No. 419 and adjacent property owned by the United States, viz: Closing parts of Pomeroy Road and Stanton Road westerly from Sheridan Road; closing Sheridan Road between Pomeroy Road and Stanton Road; closing part of Jasper Road south of Sheridan Road; closing Hartford Street between 15th Place and Morris Road; closing parts of 17th and 18th Streets adjacent to Hartford Street; closing Morris Road from Gainesville Street to the westerly boundary of Garfield Heights Subdivision; closing parts of alleys and parts of Irving, Jasper, 21st, 22nd and 23rd Streets in the Garfield Heights Subdivision and in and adjacent to Square 5846; including a transfer of jurisdiction to Commissioners, D. C., for alleys in Squares 5821, 5838, 5846, 5848 and 5849. 6. Closing streets and alleys in the Southeast Section within the area lying southeast of Massachusetts Avenue between Branch Avenue and 39th Street, viz: Closing N Street between Branch Avenue and 33rd Place; closing 33rd Place and part of 34th Street between N and O Streets; closing parts of O Street between Pope Street and 39th Street, and west of Texas Avenue; closing Nash Street between 34th Street and Texas Avenue; closing 34th Street between Nash Street and Pope Street; closing part of 35th Street south of Nash Street; closing part of 37th Place south of Nash Place; closing part of 38th Street south of O Street; closing part of Nash Place between 37th Place and Texas Avenue; closing part of Texas Avenue southwest of Massachusetts Avenue; and closing alley areas in Squares 5509, 5810, 5812 and 5813; including transfers of jurisdiction to Commissioners, D. C., over land at this location for street and alley purposes." Any and all parties interested must file objections, if any, in writing, to said closings, or as to any item or items providing for the closings listed above, within thirty (30) days after the date of this publication as indicated at the beginning hereof, addressed to the Commissioners, D. C.; otherwise said order shall become effective on NOVEMBER 26, 1943, and the street, road and alley areas as herein described shall on and after said effective date become closed in accordance with the provisions of said Public Act No. 307, approved December 16, 1932. JOHN RUSSELL YOUNG, C. W. KOONS, GUY MASON, Commissioners of the District of Columbia. 26,27,28,29,30,1,2,3,4,5,6,8,9,10

LEGAL NOTICES 4

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia, holding Probate Court. In re Estate of John T. Knott, Deceased. Administration No. 8284. ORDER FIXING NEW DATE FOR TRIAL AND PROVIDING FOR PUBLICATION. The notification as to the trial of the issue in this case relating to the validity of the paper-writing dated the 27th day of January, 1930, purporting to be the last will and testament of John T. Knott, deceased, having been returned "not to be found," as to Nelle Platt, also known as Mrs. R. C. Davidson; Charles Platt, Bertha Platt, Dorothy Platt, Lucille F. Taylor, Mary Jane Knott, Ira M. Braden, Calvin Watson, Lucy Watson, any living legal heirs of Jane Mansell, deceased, who lived in Stalybridge, England (who was a sister of the father of John T. Knott, the deceased testator), residing in Great Britain at the time of the death of the said John T. Knott, on August 25, 1930, and the unknown heirs at law and next of kin of John T. Knott, deceased, it is by the Court this 26th day of October, 1943, ORDERED that said issue be set down for trial on the 22nd day of November, 1943, and that this order and the substance of said issue be published once a week for four successive weeks in the Washington Law Reporter and twice a week for the same period in The Washington Post, the substance of said issue being as follows: Was the said John T. Knott at the time of the making and subscribing or of the acknowledging by him of the said paper-writing dated the 27th day of January, 1930, of sound and disposing mind and capable of making a valid will? HOW PEP CAME BACK TO PATTY

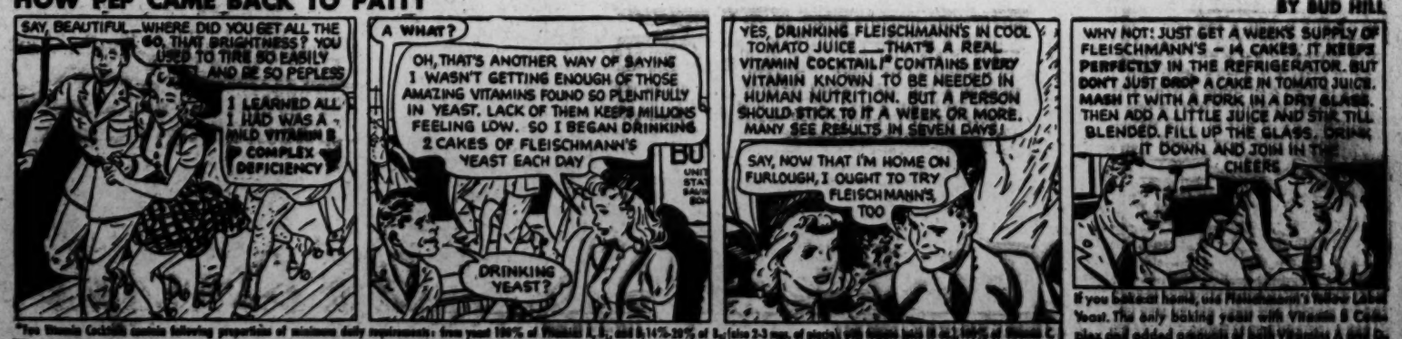
BY BUD HILL



SAY, BEAUTIFUL—WHERE DID YOU GET ALL THE GO, THAT BRIGHTNESS? YOU USED TO TIRE SO EASILY AND BE SO PEPLESS
I LEARNED ALL I HAD WAS A MILD VITAMIN B COMPLEX DEFICIENCY
A WHAT?
OH, THAT'S ANOTHER WAY OF SAYING I WASN'T GETTING ENOUGH OF THOSE AMAZING VITAMINS FOUND SO PLENTIFULLY IN YEAST. LACK OF THEM KEEPS MILLIONS FEELING LOW. SO I BEGAN DRINKING 2 CAKES OF FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST EACH DAY DRINKING YEAST?
YES, DRINKING FLEISCHMANN'S IN COOL TOMATO JUICE — THAT'S A REAL VITAMIN COCKTAIL! CONTAINS EVERY VITAMIN KNOWN TO BE NEEDED IN HUMAN NUTRITION. BUT A PERSON SHOULD STICK TO IT A WEEK OR MORE. MANY SEE RESULTS IN SEVEN DAYS!
SAY, NOW THAT I'M HOME ON FURLOUGH, I OUGHT TO TRY FLEISCHMANN'S, TOO
WHY NOT! JUST GET A WEEK'S SUPPLY OF FLEISCHMANN'S — 14 CAKES. IT KEEPS PERFECTLY IN THE REFRIGERATOR. BUT DON'T JUST DROP A CAKE IN TOMATO JUICE. MASH IT WITH A FORK IN A DRY GLASS. THEN ADD A LITTLE JUICE AND STIR TILL BLENDED. FILL UP THE GLASS, DRINK IT DOWN AND JOIN IN THE CHEERS

*Two Vitamin Cocktails contain following proportions of minimum daily requirements: from yeast 100% of Vitamin B1, B2, and 6 1/4%-20% of B6 [also 2-3 mgs. of niacin] with Vitamin pack it at 1 100% of Vitamin C.

If you bake at home, use Fleischmann's Yeast Labels. Yeast. The only baking yeast with Vitamin B Complex and added amounts of both Vitamin A and D.

Nazi and Soviet Ideologies Identical, Msgr. Sheen Asserts

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen, asserting "there is no essential difference between the ideology of nazism or communism," said today "it would be realistic to expect that Germany and Russia will once more sign a treaty of peace and embrace in a kiss of death to Europe and the world." Monsignor Sheen is a radio speaker and professor of philosophy at Catholic University.

"Russia is at war with Hitler, but it is not at war with the Nazis or the German people; the sooner we come to a realization of this fact, the more quickly we can formulate a policy to meet it," he wrote in an article in the November issue of The Sign, national Catholic magazine.

Referring to the Munich appeasement, Monsignor Sheen wrote, "The world today feels the same way about Russia. Stalin now wants the Balkan States. Will he be appeased? Poland is being prepared for the kill. If we do make that concession, then will we not have made Moscow the second Munich and unleashed the third world war?"

Monsignor Sheen said that the "real reason" for dissolution of the Communist International was to form a new Comintern, economic instead of political, with Mexico City as "the central bureau with two subcommittees, one for North and one for South America."

Declaring that "the key to the Russian problem is religion, not politics," Monsignor Sheen outlined steps taken in Russia which he said "bespeak a less violent attitude toward religion" there.

"Our bond with Russia," he added, "is in the people, not in the politics; it is with the nation, not with the state; it is with humanity, not communism.

"Russia one day will be free. May America have the wisdom to see that our political approach of appeasing communism will end in disaster, but that our religious approach to the Russian soul will end in peace and victory."

Postal Clerks to Seek Higher Pay, Policy Changes to Aid Employes

Overhauling of personnel policies in the Post Office Department "to raise the efficiency and effectiveness of the postal service" was urged yesterday in the final resolution, passed by the executive board of the United National Association of Post Office Clerks, in session here since Monday.

The board asked for "prompt action to modernize personnel policies," stating at the same time that "some progress along this line has been made in recent years."

The executive board will immediately seek action on the following points, it was said:

1. Reclassification of salaries, making the entrance salary $2100, with automatic promotion each year until a salary of $2500 has been reached.

2. Overtime based on 260 days per year.

3. Promotion to all supervisory positions by competitive examinations.

4. Complete elimination of the present "substitute" employment system, and various other steps, which the UNAPOC considers improvements of present "inequities."

Nazis Lay Red Gain to Allied Arms

Madrid, Oct. 28 (AP).—The continuing Russian successes against the Nazis were attributed today by the Berlin correspondent of Madrid's Informaciones to Soviet use of great concentrations of artillery and masses of material from the Allies.

In disagreeing with previous German reports that little British or American material had been seen on the battle fronts, the correspondent said his information came from "one of the German generals best known to the newspaper world."

Mount Rainier Pastor Leaves To Be Chaplain

The Rev. George S. Hixson, pastor of Mount Rainier's First Baptist Church, last night announced his resignation to become an Army chaplain. The announcement was made during a service in connection with the city-wide Baptist evangelistic campaign, in which Mr. Hixson has had an active role.

Mr. Hixson, who has served his present charge two years, will leave November 6 for the Army Chaplain's Training School at Harvard University.

Fellow-Baptist preachers, including visiting evangelists from several States, gave Mr. Hixson a send-off at yesterday's campaign breakfast at the YWCA, 614 E st. nw., and also offered prayers for him.

Means of integrating new church members into the church program were discussed at the breakfast.

15,000 Japanese Evacuees Refuse To Harvest Crops

San Francisco, Oct. 28 (INS).—Fifteen thousand Japanese evacuees at the Tule Lake (Calif.) Relocation Center refused today to continue their work of harvesting crops on grounds that they are "prisoners of war."

The "passive resistance" strike was announced in San Francisco by Robert B. Cozzens, assistant War Relocation Authority director.

Japs housed at the camp recently were classified as "disloyal" and have been engaged in raising food for consumption by loyal Japanese-Americans at nine other relocation centers.

The strikers are under strong Army guard, Cozzens said. There was no violence accompanying the strike and Cozzens added that none was expected.

[The Associated Press quoted Cozzens as saying that 300 to 350 loyal Japanese from other centers volunteered to harvest hundreds of acres of potatoes, cabbage, parsnips and other crops.]

350 WACS Brave Rain to Take Oaths

Despite a heavy rain, 350 brand-new WAC recruits from Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania marched across the Capitol Plaza in soldierly fashion yesterday to be sworn into the corps in the House Caucus Room.

Making their final public appearances in civilian clothes—and drenched to the skin in the bargain—the contingent stopped traffic momentarily around the Capitol. Fully uniformed and rain-coated WACS provided their escort.

The swearing-in ceremony, notable because the outfit comprised the first all-Third Service Command WAC group, was conducted by Maj. Jack Dunn of Baltimore.

Navy Officer Group Hears of Pacific War

Two naval officers, one a flier and the other a survivor of the sunken cruiser Northampton, described South Pacific battles for members of the District chapter of the United States Naval Reserve Officers Association Wednesday night at a Navy Day banquet at the Army and Navy Country Club.

The speakers were Commander Leroy C. Simpler, commanding officer of the famous "Fighting Squadron Five," on duty in the Solomons area, and Lieut. Comdr. T. P. O'Connell, formerly attached to the cruiser Northampton, which was reported sunk last year.
